

Sixty Persons Poisoned.

Waterford, N. Y., was on the evening of the 4th inst., the scene of the wildest alarm and the greatest confusion. From the facts that come to our knowledge it seems that Robert Waldron had manufactured for the market a large lot of head cheese. As it was the first of the season the citizens bought liberally, and many of them partook heartily of it that day for their evening meal. At about 9 o'clock that night the alarm was first given, the proprietor and inmates of the Howard house one after another, being taken alarmingly ill. Physicians were summoned in hot haste, and from that time until morning the greatest panic prevailed. Among the list of sufferers we notice the names of Thomas Howard, of the Howard House; his son, Adelbert Howard, and his daughter, Miss Rosa Howard, Mrs. David Vanderwerker, Miss Pease, Lewis Smith, A. T. Hawley, I. N. Vischer, W. H. Telfair, J. C. White, Charles Durham, Henry Durham, Oscar S. Kenworthy, all guests of the hotel, and Mary Fogarty, Bridget Kenny and Andrew M'Aniff, domestics. The above are all doing well, with the exception of Mrs Vanderwerker, and Mr. Howard and daughter, who are yet very sick. Among the sufferers in other portions of the town are Mrs. John Ward and daughter, Irene Webster, Messrs. Robert and Mitchell Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Geer, Mrs. Patrick M'Carthy, a son of William Wolf and a servant of E. Collins, besides many others. Altogether about sixty persons were poisoned. It is but fair to state that no blame is attached to Mr. Waldron. It is a mystery how the cheese became impregnated with the poison.

A Relic of the Past.

The Denton (Md.) Journal says: Levin W. Robinson, Esq., a few weeks ago set his farm hands to throwing up marsh mud, from the edge of Cranberry Creek, on his farm lying on the Choptank river, between Dover Bridge and Hog Creek, and when they had thrown up the mud to the depth of two feet, they came upon a box which, upon examination, proved to be a vat, a part of the remains of a tannery. Further digging led to the discovery of ten or twelve of these vats. The timber, two inch oak was as solid as new plank. Remnants of hides and bark were found in the bottom of these vats. When or by whom this tannery was established is not known. The oldest inhabitants have neither recollection or tradition to aid in solving the question.

The farm was originally patented to a Mr. Farris, about two hundred years ago, and is still known as Farris' Landing. He and his descendants are all gone, and it is likely that the inquiry when and by whom this recently exhumed tannery was erected, will always remain unanswered.

What Ails the Squirrels?

The Memphis Avalanche says: For the past six or eight weeks great numbers of squirrels have been noticed immigrating from Arkansas to Tennessee. At the foot of Island No. 25, as far down as 26, a distance of some twenty-five miles, where the Mississippi is about three-fourths of a mile in width, the squirrels have been in the habit of swimming the river, and during the time named great droves are known to have crossed.

As the steamer, Celeste passed up on her last trip to Hale's point, she nearly ran over a little fellow, and the high waves made by the boat's wheel swamped him so that he drowned while the vessel was in sight. On the down trip of the Celeste, while wooding at Brown's Landing, several squirrels made the bank from the opposite side, so much exhausted that they were barely able to creep up under the wood bank, where they were easily captured by the crew, and they are reported to be in an exhausted condition after their long swim, by numerous people residing near the river, who have been noticing their movements for some time past.

Utility of the Weather Reports.

It seems that "Old Probabilities" knew all about the coming of the late storm on the lakes, and gave eighteen hour's warning in advance of it. The bulletin issued at 1 o'clock on Saturday morning, the 28th of September, ordered cautionary signals to be displayed at Milwaukee, Chicago, Grand Haven, Detroit, Cleveland, Toledo, Buffalo, Rochester and Oswego. That evening, after a warning of at least eighteen hours, the storm broke, lasting through that night and the following day. The great number of disasters on the lakes, however, must have been due to a general disregard of the bad weather signals. The accuracy and utility of the weather calculations in this case are beyond question, and serve to confirm the general confidence which is reposed in them.

A good many years ago a Kentuckian went to Cincinnati and drove cart at low wages until he had saved up $700. With this he bought a large load of coal which sunk at the landing the night it was delivered, and he had to sell it for $400. The party who bought it failed before paying, but finally compromised by giving two and a half acres of land for the debt. The land is now in the business portion of Cincinnati, and is worth over $1,500,000 to its owner as the price of that load of coal.
