FARM AND HOUSEHOLD ITEMS

We invite communications from all persons who are interested in matters properly belonging to this department.

Wire for Plastering.

A most ingenious device has recently been patented for the use of wire in forming a plastering surface. The plan consists not in the use of any wire net-work expressly manufactured for the purpose, as might be supposed, but simply in the fastening of ordinary wire upon the posts, in place of lath. The wire is passed from a reel and drawn tightly in parallel horizontal lines about half an inch apart. It is attached to the standards by means of two narrow strips of iron, one of which is nailed to the post, and another fastened in the same manner upon the first, the wires being held at equal distances apart between the iron strips. It would naturally be supposed that plastering applied upon this wire would pass largely through, and fall off, but this does not prove to be the case, and the result of the device is a solid wall of plaster, through the middle of which the wires extend, holding it firmly. The cost of this plan is comparatively small, the work is rendered easy, and the result is what the inventor claimed for it-a wall surface which is absolutely fire proof. The device is already being adopted with much success.

Preserving Fruit.

As the season is at hand for storing fruit Tor winter, we venture to remind our readers of a process in use by the French for keeping it sound. The conditions are a dry cellar, out of the reach of frost, and such a contrivance as will induce a current of air through the fruit. A barrel perforated at both ends and raised some inches from the ground in a dry cellar meets the requirements. The philosophy of the process is in preventing the sweating of the fruit, which induces decay, or, if it takes place, to arrest it speedily by the current of air. A succession of shelves the whole extent of the cellar wall, composed of laths, with spaces between, and bexed in front, six inches from the ground and six inches open at the top, would substitute the perforated barrel on a larger scale. The shelves are better than the barrel, and for delicate fruit, like pears, which should not touch one another, are indispensable. By this means pears may be kept till they come again. And so of apples and sweet potatoes. With respect to grapes, the experiments have not been satisfactory. The French have tried different modes of suspending the bunches, but without any uniformity of result. A method of preserving grapes fresh and sound is still a desideratum.

Blood and Lime Varnish.

The Chinese are said to make a varnish by beating together fresh blood with quicklime, which is extensively used as a coating for wooden articles which they wish to make completely water-tight. Von Scherzer, who first introduced this substance to the notice of Europeans, says he has seen in Pekin wooden chests that had been varnished with it, which, after a journey over Siberia to St. Petersburg and back, were still sound and perfectly water-tight. Even baskets of straw, used for the transporation of oil, are made fit for the purpose by means of this varnish. Pasteboard coated with it becomes, both in appearance and firmness, like wood. Articles requiring to be absolutely impervious are varnished twice, or at the most three times, by the Chinese. The preparation has been tested in various ways both in Europe and Australia, and although it gives to vessels covered with it a rough, ugly red appearance, its use is recommended as a sure means of making wood impervious to water.

Don't Waste Soap-suds.

It is well to have grape-vines planted so that the waste liquids from the wash-house can be used to fertilize them. If there is any food the vine especially loves, it is the soapy liquids which accumulate on washing-days in families. Vines drenched every week with these liquids will flourish astonishingly, and extend themselves so as to cover large buildings, every branch bearing fruit. A distinguished Ohio horticulturist says that his family of ten persons eat a ton of grapes, fresh and canned, during the year; and he thinks that not only does it pay in the matter health, but also in the saving of grocers' bills through the diminished desire for pastries and other rich food.

To Remove the Taste of New Wood. A new keg, churn, bucket or other wooden vessel, will generally communicated a disagreeable taste to anything that is put into it. To prevent this inconvenience, first scald the vessel well with boiling water letting the water remain in it till cool .-Then dissolve some pearl-ash, or soda, in the luke-warm water, adding a little bit of lime to it, and wash the vessel well with this solution. Afterward scald it well in plain hot water, and rinse it well before you use it.
