

Chinese in Pennsylvania.

Considerable trouble has been made at Beaver Falls, by the introduction of Chinese as workmen. In explanation of the affair the Pittsburg Post says: On the 12th of August last, twelve white men were discharged from the forge-room of the works at Beaver Falls, and Chinamen substituted. The white workmen became discontented. The proprietors and the superintendent, Mr. Reeves, went among the men and endeavored, with some success, to soothe their discontent. Work went on as usual until Nov. 1, when eight more men were discharged from the forge room. A month later, December 1, a delegation of sixty-nine Chinamen arrived at the works and subsequently a few more straggling heathens, till the whole squad numbered 160. The proprietors immediately distributed the late arrivals, putting them in charge of the skilled Chinese, and gradually displacing a proportionate number of white men. The skilled white workmen who taught the first installment of Chinese the rudiments of the business were put at common work at reduced rates.

This state of things continued till yesterday, when the proprietors notified the foreman of the forge-shop that the firm proposed to have none but Chinese in the forge-room. As the foreman had agreed not to do this, the white workmen in the machine and forge department immediately struck. The proprietors were very angry, and urged the white men not to leave, as there was other work to do. The men not relishing the idea of doing subordinate work, while the Chinamen were given all the skilled work to do, quit in a body and a delegation of them, all having families except two, arrived in this city yesterday in search of employment. The foreman of the pocket cutlery department was also notified of the new arrangement, but he and his men refused to agree to it, and all quit except a man named Smith.

There are some 200 employed at the works and about 100 of the number are gentlemen from Hong Kong and the banks of the Yangtsekiang. The plan of the management was to keep the white men till they taught the heathens the secret of the business, and then the white men might work in a subordinate capacity at reduced rates, or quit.

The Chinese workmen at the Falls live in a miserable old hulk called the Mansion House. At the works is a storehouse where these Mongolian gentlemen get their supplies, such as opium, tea, rice, &c., which are imported direct from China. In their habits they are very dirty, and are treated with thorough contempt by the people of the neighborhood. They are gregarious in their habits, seldom "going it alone," and are addicted to drinking.

A Fight with a Deer.

The Litchfield, Minn., Ledger says: About two weeks ago a Swede by the name of Torgilerson, who resides in Swift county, was proceeding to a neighbor's, some three miles distant from his own home, carrying a shovel on his shoulder, which he was returning to his neighbor from whom he had borrowed it. He had accomplished about half of his journey and was passing through a small grove when he heard a crashing in the underbrush, and turning round saw a stalwart deer, of the buck persuasion, making for him with every demonstration of hostile intentions.

There was but one course to pursue and that was to fight for his life, and, being a powerfully made man, he anticipated an easy conquest. Mistaken man! The deer charged with antlers lowered, even as an enraged bull would lower his head when dashing at his foe. Nels, grasped his shovel and stood stoutly on the defensive. As the enraged buck neared him he aimed a desperate blow with the shovel full at his head.

It struck one of his antlers with such force as to break it, but the concussion was so strong that it forced Nels, backward several feet, and buried him breathless against a tree. Just how the fight went after that Nels, don't remember, but he knows that he fought with all the strength of desperation, and at last the deer and himself both fell to the ground, and Nels, lost all consciousness for a time.

When he came "round to his soul again" the deer was lying stark dead near by him and he could barely crawl away. His clothes were in rags, his left cheek torn open, a gash on the right side where the deer had inserted one of the prongs of its antlers, and three fingers of the left hand badly jammed up. The shovel was a total wreck, and the carcass of the deer was pretty well hashed around the head and shoulders.

The blow that caused the animals death was inflicted by a sharp corner of the shovel remaining on the handle after most of the blade had been broken off. The wounded man succeeded in crawling back to his home, which he reached in a terribly exhausted condition. It is thought that he will survive his wounds.

Mr. Williams, messenger of the Tradesmen's Bank, was assaulted on Elm street in N. Y., Saturday, knocked down and robbed of a wallet containing checks notes and acceptances amounting to $15,061, and $168 in cash. Some of the detectives doubt the truthfulness of the story of the messenger, but the bank officers accept his statement.
