HUMOROUS ITEMS.

A little girl at Dubuque amended the Lord's Prayer by asking for her daily gingerbread. A henpecked husband thinks that while to be hornet stung is bad, "woman's tongue" is worse. It is said that a lame dog is like an inclined plane because he is a slow pup, while the other is a slope up. Who was the straightest man named in the Bible? Joseph, for Pharaoh wanted to make a ruler out of him. If a spoonful of yeast will raise fifty cents' worth of flour, how much will it take to raise funds to buy another barrel with? A darkey arrested with chickens in his sack declared, "De man dat put 'em dar was no fren of mine." A little girl wants to know if fleas are white—because her uncle told her "Mary had a little lamb with fleas as white as snow." "Lor'-a-massy," exclaimed the old lady in the witness box, "how should I know anything about a thing I dunno anything about?" I rise for information, said a member of a legislative body. I am very glad to hear it, said a bystander, for no man wants it more. I don't think Mr. Dosim takes his physic reg'lar," said a doctor's boy to his employer. "Why so?"—"He's gettin' well too fast." A Cincinnati lover has been discarded by his affianced million heiress for treading on her pet cat's tail. He vowed it was an accident, but she insisted it was done on poor-puss. Says a Dutchman explaining why he kicked his wife down stairs: "She was trunk all to tay Saturday night and all to night Sunday morning, and I vos so vild that I kick the stairs right down her." An editor once wrote: "We have received a basket of strawberries from Mr. Smith, for which he will receive our compliments, some of which are four inches in circumference." Pretty good sized compliments those. A young gentleman of Morristown, N. J., was playing at hay making with a rural Maud Muller, and rather liked it until a swarm of yellow-jackets crawled up his nankeen trousers. Maud laughed heartily at the Irish jig he danced until she got "some of it in her'n." "So here I am between two tailors," cried a beau at a public table where two young tailors were seated who had just commenced business for themselves: "True," was the reply, "we are beginners, and can only afford to keep one goose between us." At Chicago, recently, a lady in church was seen to bow her head as if in pious thought. She suddenly raised it and leaned against the seat, when an explosion occurred that shook the whole building. She had pressed too heavy on an air cushion bustle. This is no romance but a stern fact. An apothecary boy was lately sent to leave at one house a box of pills, and at another six live fowls. Confused on the way, he left the pills where the fowls should have gone, and the fowls at the pill place. The folks who received the fowls were astonished at reading the accompanying direction: "Swallow one every two hours." A landlord in Paris, who was particular about not having children to muss up his rooms, asked a proposing tenant if he had any. With a solemn face, he replied: "Yes, six, all in the cemetery." He got the rooms on a lease which said nothing about children, and in due time, to the horror of the landlord, the six youngsters appeared. They had been in the cemetery, sure enough, at the time stated, but they had been sent there to play. A correspondent says: "It is my duty to impress on you the certain fact that one half of our young people lose their senses when they lose their hearts. One of our party has already written five letters to his lady-love, and he goes around groaning and sighing in a most pitiable manner. He has no appetite, and sleeps at the top of the house, close to the moon. He cannot stand by one of the columns of the piazza without putting his arm around its waist, and I caught him kissing an apple to-day because it had red cheeks." A Methodist minister, who lived on a small salary, was greatly troubled at one time to get his quarterly installment. He had called a number of times, but each time had been put off with some excuse. At length he went to his steward, and told him he must have his money, for his family must have the necessities of life. "Money!" replied the steward, "you preach for money; I thought you preached for the good of souls!" "Souls!" replied the minister, "I can't eat souls, and if I could it would take a thousand souls like yours to make a decent meal."
