HUMEROUS. A Boy's Journal. Dorry, a boy of six years old, thinks he will do as other men have done. March 12—Have resolved to keep a journal. March 13—Had roast beef for dinner, and cabbage and potato and apple sauce and rice pudding. I do not like rice pudding when it is like ours. Charley Slack's kind is real good. Mush and sirup for tea. March 19—Forgot what did. John and me saved our pie to take to school. March 21—Forgot what did. Gridel cake for breakfast. Debby didn't fry enough. March 24—This is Sunday. Corn beef for dinner. Studied my Bibel lesson.— Aunt Issy calls me gredy. Have resolved not to think so much about things to etc. Wish I was a better boy. Nothing petickeler for tea. March 25—Forgot what did. March 27—Forgot what did. March 29—Played. March 31—Forgot what did. April 1—Have dissided not to keep a journal enny more.

An Indignant Tenton. Hans Double, a German, was endeavoring to entertain some acquaintances in a barroom by reading aloud to them from an English newspaper. One of them laughed at his pronunciation, which was execrable. "What for you make foolishness mit me?" he angrily asked, staringly at Billy Mullen, who had laughed loudest. "I can read English as good as you, if I could read a little better."

In the town of Piqua, O., many winters ago; there occurred a great arrival among the "American citizens of African descent." Moze White, a half-witted, sable gentleman, was deeply involved in the excitement of the occasion. One night, after the congregation was pretty well exhausted with the various exercises, the pastor called them all to kneel for prayers. When all had kneeled he said that any one who felt like it should pray. Thereupon the half-witted Moze commenced a string of words entirely without meaning. At this the pastor raised his head, and inquired, "Who dat prayin'? Dat you brudder Moze! Jes hold on, brudder Moze, you let somebody pray datst better acquainted wid de Lord."

A gentleman was surprised during the late frosty weather, to see his little daughter bring home from the Sunday school a grave treatise on "Backsliding." "My child," said he, "this is to old for you, you can't make anything of it." "I know it, papa," was the reply, "but I thought I could when I took it. I thought it would teach me how to slide backwards."

Some time since a young minister in the West end wished to impress his Sabbath school with the dignity of life by reference to the fact that men have souls while ordinary animals have none. "Now, children, what is the great difference between a monkey and a boy?" The tail, the tail, the tail!" came from all parts, of the house, and the minister was satisfied.

An old Palmyra (Indiana) farmer lately predicted that deer would be as plenty as sheep in that vicinity this winter.— This gave an impetus to the ammunition trade until some searcher after mutton ascertained the fact that there were only two sheep in the whole county.

Horace Greeley, being asked to drink whiskey, replied: "I think about this whiskey drinking as the old man thought about fishing. His son said to him, 'Father, the fish are biting splendidly in the brook.' 'Well, my son,' he responded, 'if you don't go near them they won't bite you.'"

"Barber," said a farmer to his tonsor, "now corn's cheap, you ought to shave for half-price." "Can't, Mr. Jones," said the man of razors, "I really ought to charge more, for when corn's down farmers make such long faces that I have twice the ground to cover."

A New Haven man who went home the other evening, and found his house locked up after infinite trouble managed to gain entrance through a back window, and then discovered on the parlor table a note from his wife, reading: "I have gone out, you will find the door key on one side of the door step."

"You see that Thurlow Weed has given up smoking, my son," remarked a gentleman to his son. "Well, I mean to do the same," replied the hopeful, "when I reach his age." The boy had read the newspapers.

A Chicago paper says "a young lady of this city has just sent to Europe an order for sixty yards of Brussels carpet, twenty-five feet wide. She is going to work a pair of slippers for the editor of the St. Louis Globe."

An Irish gentleman having purchased an alarm clock, an acquaintance asked him what he intended doing with it. "Oh," said he, "it's the most convenient thing in the world, for I have only to pull the string in the morning and wake myself."
