HUMOROUS

A correspondent of a London paper sends the following: There lives near by here one of those nondescript characters commonly called old maids, Hannah Gris wold by name. Hannah is not the most brilliant female that has ever stepped upon earth to make the heart of man rejoice, but still she has a destiny to fill, no doubt. This good maiden's ambition has always been to marry, but the fates have been adverse, and she has been obliged to play her little game thus far all alone. One of her neighbors, who knows full well Hannah's ambition, told her, if she could look away over to Farmer Sheldon's barn, some three miles off, and see a hen's egg on the gable end of it, she would be married in sixty days. Taking a commanding position Hannah commenced her gaze of love. After a long and earnest look she was asked "if she could discover the egg ?" "Well," said Hannah, "I can just make out the outlines of the egg, but I can't see the

After he had cured the patient he presented a bill for $50, and proceeded to complete his preparations for the journey back to the post, thinking no more about the matter. As he was about to mount, the patient's husband put in an appearance, with his trusty rifle in his hand. "Doctor," said he, "I reckon we'd better settle this here matter now," and taking him aside,-"You wa'nt agoin' off without a settlement, was you? I don't want to owe no man nothin'. Here is a ten, which I reckon is about the squar' thing. Now, if you ain't satisfied jest get yer weapon and come round behind the hill thar, so's the old woman won't be riled up, and we'll settle it. I don't want no man to go 'way from my house dissatisfied, 'specially you, doc."

A German peddler is the innocent author of a problem of which we beg the solution: He was asked if it was not heavy work carrying a big pack around day after day. "Oh yes," he replied, "it vas heavy." "Well," said the querist, "do you make much?" "Vell, I dunno; some days I make nothing and oder days twice so
