HUMOROUS ITEMS.
In a town in the goodly state of Massachusetts, did one time reside a little lass of six years old, whose name was Martha. In the same house with this little lass lived a maiden lady of very unpleasant ways, whose delight it was to "pester" the small Martha with questions, by which means Martha had come to much dislike Miss Pump. Once Martha made a visit to Boston. When she returned, Miss Pump set upon her. Whereat this colloquy:
"Where ye been, Marthy?"
"To Boston, Miss Pump."
"La! And who'd ye see there, Marthy?"
"Oh, I saw a—angel."
"My! And what'd the angel say, Marthy?"
"He said, 'How do you do, pretty little girl?'"
"Sakes! And what else d'ye see, Marthy?"
"Oh, I saw—I saw—the Deyil!"
"Marcy! And what'd he say, Marthy?"
"He said: 'How's my good friend, Miss Pump?'"
The Pump became suddenly dry.

A nervous individual once entered a baggage car and commenced overhauling the baggage. The baggage-master, after eyeing him a moment, accosted him rather gruffly with:
"What's wanting sir?"
"I'm looking for my trunk," demurely answered the nervous man.
"I'll take care of your trunk, sir; that's my business," retorted B. M.
"O, I am aware of that, sir, but I would always much rather have my trunk, under my eye!"
"Well, then, sir, you should have been born an elephant, and then you could have your trunk under your eye the whole time!"
"Sam, I thought you were going to Wilmington yesterday."
"So I was Sol; but I missed [the boat."
"How was that?"
"Why, just as I got down to the wharf the boat pushed out into the stream."
"Why, didn't you call them to come back?"
"I did, Sol. I hollered, as loud as I could: Captain, captain! I want to get aboard!"
"What did he say?"
"Why, says he: Just stop where you are and take one out of the fence!"

Jones had worried Smith with conundrums very often; and now it was Smith's turn. "Guess what I did last night?" said Smith: Jones thought of various and sundry improbable things, and suggested the making of a speech, the doing of a kindness, the getting himself in the lock-up, and finally gave up the conundrum in despair. "Well," said Smith, in a triumphant tone, "I slept."
A minister in Wilton, having married a young fellow, was asked what was his price. The pastor said that the law gave him $2. "Well," said the bridegroom, "if the law gives you $2, there is fifty cents, so that now you have two dollars and a half," and before that parson could shut his eyes the married pair were off on their honeymoon.
An irregular apprentice frequently keeping late hours, his master at length took occasion to apply some weighty arguments to convince him of the "error of his ways." During the chastisement, he continually exclaimed: "How long will you continue to serve the d—?" The boy replied, whimpering: "You know best sir; I believe my indenture will be out in three months!"
"John" relates the following bit of conversation he had with an acquaintance:
"He said he used to write for the papers once, and meeting an editor one day, the editor said that he would like something from the pen," and says he, "what do you think I sent him?"
"Says I, 'Give it up.'
Says he, 'Well, he said he wanted something from my pen, so I sent him a pig.'"

A Detroit negress allowed a gentleman of that city to name her baby, in consideration of a two dollar bill. The poor little thing was christened William Henry Washington Colfax Grant Seipio Brutus Halifax Weed Joshua Long Jack Madison Buffalo Bill Saunders.
There must be two sides to a perfect bargain. So thought a Florida sheriff, who was recently invited to resign. He replied: "Your communication is received, stating that my resignation will meet the approbation of the Governor. It does not meet mine."
Warmoth was asked if Durell got drunk on the bench, to which he replied: "No, I think not. My impression is—mind this is only an impression—my impression is he gets drunk at home before he goes on the bench."
A Chicago young man was recently quite smitten by a neighbor's wife. She smote him with a rolling pin.
