Attempt to Destroy a R. R. Train.

The papers in the oil-regions contain an account of a most infernal attempt to destroy a freight train on the Allegheny Valley railroad, by means of an oil well torpedo. The nitro-glycerine magazine of Colonel Roberts, near Scrubgrass, was entered and robbed of a three-quart torpedo, which was placed on the track, probably with a view of wrecking a freight train, that an opportunity for plunder might be

The train came on, and the cow-catcher threw the torpedo off the rail. A partial explosion of the contents of the torpedo took place, lifting the side of the engine clear off the track and letting it drop back again upon the rail; it is likely a little of the contents of the torpedo had been spilled on the rail, and exploded clear of the rest in the case. The tender and first freight car passed the torpedo, but jarred it down against the rail in such a position that the flange of the wheels of the second car crushed and exploded it.

The effect was to break the wheels of the car to flinders, to tear a great rent in the beiler tank (it was an empty iron tank), and pretty generally used up the car; it cut a large piece out of the rail, and excavate a hole in the ground as large as a man's body. The torpedo hapened to be one filled, not with glycerine, but with fulminating powder, which had got damp; otherwise the explosion would have sent the train and all on it to "kingdom come."

The detective force of the road was immediately put to "work up" this case. It was done with so much skill and energy that the right parties were nabbed. The detectives arrested, at Scrubgrass, Lafayette Scott and George Miller. They were taken to Oil City, and in default of bail were remanded to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury. They will probably be held under the act forbidding and punishing placing obstructions on the tracks, under which the penalty is not less than three years imprisonment. It is said the evidence is amply sufficient to convict them. Scott is twenty years old, and lives about a mile from Scrubgrass. Miller is only seventeen years old, and is the son of a widowed mother living at Scrubgrass.

Who Killed Him ?

A man named Dr. Baker, was killed on Friday night a week, at a town near Walboro, Me., in rather a mysterous manner. The following are the particulars :

Dr. Baker was called to see a sick child about 9 P. M., in the vicinity of the house of Mink's. Miss Mink testifies that Dr. Baker came to their house between 9 and 10 o'clock. She having retired and hearing a knock at the door, got up and let him He entered and retired with her. About 10 P. M., she came to the house of Mr. Spear in her night clothes, crying out "I am shot! I am shot! Dr. Baker shot me!" Upon examination it was found that she was not shot, and she appeared to be in a state of frenzy and great excitement all through the night.

In the morning the neighbors found Baker's gig in Mink's yard and his horse in the barn. The door of the house was locked, and on breaking it open they found the unfortunate man lying dead on the chamber floor. He had on his vest and pants, the latter wrong side out, and one stocking partly on. It is supposed that after receiving his mortal wound he made an attempt to dress himself, and in doing so fell backwards in the position in which he was found. The bullet passed through his heart into his lung. The woman has been arrested. A post-mortem examination has been made, and an inquest commenced yesterday but not finished. Important evidence has been teleegraphed for, and the inquest will be resumed to-morrow. It is conjectured by some that a third party is implicated in the

A Dutch Funeral.

A correspondent, writing from Amsterdam, says: This morning, as the curtain was lifted for the first time, about six o'clock, we saw a funeral procession, which was one of the novelties of the place. The hearse was covered all over with a heavy pall, and horses draped from their eyes to their tails in a black covering, which is made to fit the body, and on either side walked a long row of men dressed in black, long stockings and breeches, black dress coat, white neckties, black gloves, and cocked-hat with long streamers of crape floating off behind them. There was but one carriage-all black too. Perhaps it is not the fashion here for friends to go to the Funny Lawsuit.

A funny lawsuit is to come off at Fort Madison, Ia. It is an action for $6,000 damages, brought by a lady for being forcibly ejected from a church, because she stopped her cars with her fingers during the prayer of a party personally obnoxious to her, and who had been instrumental in the excommunication of herself and husband from church membership.

I' Twelve years ago a Connecticut farmer killed himself by placing the muzzle of a gun against his breast and discharging it with a poker. Last Wednesday morning his son, also a farmer, in the same room, with the same gun, and in the same manner took bis life.
