HUMOROUS.

Not a great while ago a party of young men interested in turf matters were conversing on the subject of fast trotting, and many expressions of opinion were uttered in regard to what certain nags were capable of doing if tested to their utmost.

Now, one of the party happened to be an Englishman, and a hot-headed one at that, who could not see beyond the length of his nose, and who had a disagreeable habit of contradicting any and every statement at variance with his own opinions, which were so prejudiced that conclusive proof would hardly shake them. He had just finished an elaborate eulogium upon the merits of an English mare, when one of his friends snickered, which made him just mad enough to lose sight of what the boys intended he should.

"I suppose you think that 2.10 is pretty good time, eh, Gid?" remarked George D.

"Of course I do," he replied, angrily; "you have not a horse in this country that can beat it.

"Nonsense, Gid; Dexter has done it in less than 1.90."

"Pshaw! why there is not a horse living that can travel a mile in less than two minutes."

"I repeat that Dexter has done it, in less than 1.90, and will bet cigars for the crowd that I can prove what I say. Do you bet?"

"Bet! Why, my dear fellow, what—"

"Never mind the conundrum, and answer my question."

"Well, then, if you are so anxious to dispose of a greenback, I will bet. Now let me hear your proof."

"With pleasure. I said that Dexter had done it in less than 1.90, which is equal to 2.30, is it not?"

"Oh, the dev—"

He was too overcome to finish the sentence.

A Judge was trying a prisoner accused of felony. While delivering his charge and minutely recapitulating and complimenting on the evidence, the jury and counsel fell fast asleep! The sheriffs who had charge of the prisoner, being soon after seen to nod, a spectator, who happened to be awake, and apprehending the prisoner might escape, suddenly exclaimed:

"Wake the sheriffs!"

"Never mind," said the judge (who was a wag in his way), "the sheriffs may have their nap out, for the prisoner is fast asleep also!"

A young lady teacher in a Sunday school recently caught a boy smiling. She asked:

"What are you laughing at?"

"Nothing, mum," was the answer.

"I know better," said the teacher severely, "Now tell me what it is."

Johnny looked frightened, as he mutteringly said, "I—I—see yer n-news-paper s-sticking out, mum."

The teacher sat down suddenly and arranged things.

Leavenworth claims to be so very healthy that when it lately became necessary to "inaugurate" the new grave yard, "they had to shoot a man on purpose." On the other hand, a Nebraska man, when asked whether all the Kansas people were fair-honest, said: "Don't know about honest; but they do say as how the folks around take in their stone fences every night."

A Quaker having sold a fine-looking but blind horse, asked the purchaser:

"Well, my friend, dost thou see any fault in?"

"No," was the response.

"Neither will he see any fault in thee," said old Broad-rim.

A Portland man was caught fishing for trout on another man's land, the other day; the owner remonstrated, but retired in silence before the majestic answer: "Who wants to catch your trout? I'm only trying to drown this worm."

"I'd vote for ye, sir," said a candid constituent, "only you're such a fool."

"Fool, am I?" retorted the candidate, "then I'm the very man to represent you."

"Paddy," said a joker, "why don't you get your ears cropped—they are entirely too long for a man?" "And yours," replied Pat, "ought to be lengthened—they are too short for an ass."

"Sambo, what is dar dat nebbor was nebbor can be, and nebbor will be?"

"I dunno, Gum, I gibs it up."

"Why, chile, a mouse's nest in a cat's ear."

A fellow who hasn't been here long says this is a good place to "Learn to labor and to wait"—wait for your money. As a matter of course the fellow was joking.

A female student of medicine wants $20 "to buy a man to cut up." Most women can cut up a man cheaper than that.

A young lady "took a horn" the other day in church and nobody was shocked. His first name was William.

There is nothing singular in the fact that a boy makes a wry face when he takes his first "nip" of old Bourbon.
