FARM AND HOUSEHOLD ITEMS

We invite communications from all persons who are interested in matters properly belonging to this department.

A Bee Story.

A curious incident is related in a French paper as having occurred in a little village not far from Paris. Some bees were swarming on an oak tree, and a wood-cutter named Guiot climbed the tree and cut off the extremity of the branch upon which the swarm hung. Instead of falling to the ground, however, the swarm dispersed and settled on the head of Guiot, who was still sitting on the branch, forty feet from the ground. The bystanders believed that, tortured by the stings, he would fall to the ground. But with great presence of mind, Guiot remained perfectly still till the swarm had formed two long wreaths hanging from his temples; then, half blinded by the insects, which also covered his face and body, he contrived to descend from his elevated position, taking the greatest care not to irritate this living mantle. When he reached the ground a hive was placed on his shoulder, but three hours elapsed before the bees would take possession of their new home. When this happy change was effected the poor wood-cutter's wild delight testified to the intensity of the anxiety and discomfort he had endured.

Irregular Hatching.

A correspondent of the Poultry Chronicle having been unsuccessful with his eggs, the chickens hatching irregularly and dying soon after breaking the shell, the editor says, in answer to his complaint:

"We fancy the fault lies with your neglect of a very common rule, that of darning your eggs. We are great sticklers for nature. A hen pheasant, partridge or grouse, or a common hen that steals her nest, leaves the eggs at break of day, prompted by nature, and goes to the grass in search of food. It is at that time wet as a river. She returns to her nest reeking, and sits on her eggs. Hence the uniform success. Following our great exemplar, we always, for seven or eight days before hatching, damp our eggs with water. Failing in that, the membrane that lines the inside of the shell becomes too tough for the chickens to penetrate, and they either die in the shell or come out one two at a time, as they succeed in breaking from their prison house."

Clover in South Carolina.

The correspondent to the Agricultural Department in York County, S. C., writes: "A few years ago clover was scarcely ever seen growing in this county, unless upon some small lot belonging to what the people called 'a book-farmer'; now nearly every farmer grows from one-half of an acre to twenty acres. No machinery for threshing out the seed, that I am aware of, has thus far been brought here, and seed brought from northern markets is exclusively sown. In this county, on clay soil moderately fertile, clover has succeeded well; still, as yet, it is rarely planted as a crop, most farmers preferring to experiment on a small scale before seeding down with it any valuable portion of land. Its introduction here is a success, and its width will increase every year hereafter."

Don't Cut too Low.

We think many of our farmers make a great mistake in cutting their grass very low, and that is more particularly the case with timothy. If cut below the first joint, its roots will seldom send up shoots again until after the formation of new side bulbs. Clover and other deep-rooted plants are not so much affected, but we are satisfied that all or any of them may be, and often are, injured by too close cutting. It is a fact well known that if timothy is allowed to ripen its seed, and then cut with a reaper or cradle, the second growth will furnish double the amount of pasture as adjoining grass cut for hay.

Blackberry Wine.

The following is said to be an excellent recipe for the manufacture of superior wine from blackberries:—Measure your berries and bruise them; to every gallon adding one quart of boiling water. Let the mixture stand twenty-four hours, stirring occasionally, then strain off the liquor into a cask, to every gallon adding two pounds of sugar; cork tight, and let stand till the following October, and you will have wine ready for use, without any further straining or boiling, that will make lips smack as they never smack before, under similar influences.

Cooking Rice.

Rice may be cooked so that every grain will be as separate as when dry, by steaming. Put in as much water or milk as you would use to boil it, and set the dish in the steamer. It will take longer to cook than in the old way, but never burns or sticks, and is a beautiful dish when done.

Honey and castor oil mixed are excellent for asthma. A teaspoonful may be taken night and morning, with great benefit.
