Buried Money-A Strange Case of Somnambulism.

Friday last a resident of Division street, named Burch, received $390 in money, and it being too late to deposit it in the bank he placed it in a small tin box, and deposited the box in a bureau drawer. He has a daughter about fifteen years old, who has a morbid terror of burglars, and the girl was very anxious for the safety of the money, fearing that some one would enter the house. So great was her anxiety that she could not go to sleep until after midnight. When the family arose Saturday morning, Burch went to the drawer and found both box and money gone. He examined the doors and windows, but found them secured as he had left them the previous night, and of course it was a great mystery how the money had left the house. There were no callers the evening previous, the key of the drawer had been left lying on the stand in the bed-room, and was there when he got up, and the drawer was locked as he locked it.

What might have been a vexations case for the detectives was solved after breakfast without much trouble. The daughter, on getting up, found that a woolen rag and a piece of salt pork which she had bound around her sore throat the previous evening had fallen off and disappeared as mysteriously as the cash-box. The father heard her speaking about it, and as he passed through a grape arbor in the rear of the house he saw the cloth and the meat on the ground. Bending back to piek them up his foot sank down into soft ground, and he heard a rattling, which resulted in his pulling up the box safe and sound. While the girl could not, of course, remember anything about it, it is quite certain that her anxiety for the money led her to rise in her sleep, secure the box, unlock the door and go out and bury it in the arbor. A post had been pulled up in one corner of the arbor, loosening the soil, and she had selected this spot. Her fingers were found to be soiled with dirt, and there were dirt marks on the pillow-slip where she had placed her hand. Then the woolen which had dropped from her neck was still further proof of her somambulism.

She was as much surprised as any one, and but for the accident, as it may be termed, which led Burch into the arbor, he might have been bewailing the loss of his money a year hence. He claims to be a light sleeper, and yet the daughter had taken the key from the stand near his head, unlocked the drawer, unlocked the back door, drawn the bolt of the woodshed, passed out, returned and locked everything and replaced the bureau key, and-neither the man nor wife was awakened, and the sleeper encountered nothing to break the midnight dream which led her to leave her bed. - Detroit Free Press.

A Very Surprising Surprise Party.

Those surprise parties, somehow, nearly always turn out unpleasantly. They tell about one that came off up in Connecticut recently which was not half as joyous as it should have been. It was reported of a man and his wife, who had been married many years without having any children, that they had at last been made happy by the birth of a daughter. Some of their friends determined to give the man a presentation surprise party. So about forty persons marched up to the house one evening, carrying a cradle and lots of gum rings, and bibs, and bottles with gum nozzles, and a baby carriage and some little nightgowns, and a coral armiet and a gross of soothing syrup, and paregorie. And they all burst into the parlor at once on tip-toe. And when the man, in amazement, asked them what they meant by such conduct, they said they were coming in quietly so as not to wake the baby. And when the husband blushed and stammered, and asked, "What baby ?" they said his baby, and began to hand him the things, and to load him up with soothing syrup and gum rings, until he floored one of the guests with a quart bottle of paregoric, and held him down until he explained. And then it was revealed that it was all a mistake about the little daughter; that no such arrival had taken place at all, but that the report was false. And then the surprise party was a great deal more surprised than the man was ; and the guests gathered up the infant furniture and tried to pretend to the man that they never thought he had a daughter, but that they understood he had accepted a position as a director of an orphan asylum, and that they brought around a few things for him to distribute among the poor, fatherless OF children.
