The U. B. Mutual Aid Society of Pennsylvania, Present the following plan for consideration to each persons who wish to become members:

The payment of SIX DOLLARS on application, FIVE DOLLARS annually for FOUR YEARS, and thereafter TWO DOLLARS annually during life, with pro-rata mortality assessment at the death of each member, which for the Finest Class is as follows:

Table with columns: Age, Assessment, and values for ages 15 to 27.

Will entitle a member to a certificate of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS, to be paid at his death to his legal heirs or assigns, whenever such death may occur.

A member, or his heirs, may name a successor; but if notice of the death of a member to the Secretary is not accompanied with the name of a successor, then the Society will put in a successor and fill the vacancy, according to the Constitution of the Society.

Should the member die before his four payments of five dollars are made, the remaining unpaid part will be deducted from the one Thousand Dollars due his heirs; his successor will then pay only two dollars annually during his lifetime, and the mortality assessments.

Male and Female from fifteen to sixty-five years of age, of good moral habits, in good health, hale, and sound of mind, irrespective of creed, or race, may become members. For further information, address J. W. CRAWFORD, (Sec'y U. B. Mutual Aid Society,) LEBANON, PA.

HUMOROUS.

A Very Bad Boy. Max Adeler, mentions a report that the chief astronomer at the Washington observatory, was dreadfully sold a few days ago.

A wicked boy, whose Sunday school experience seems only to have made him more depraved, caught a fire-fly and stuck it, with the aid of some mucilage, in the centre of the largest lens in the telescope.

That night when the astronomer went to work he perceived a blaze of light apparently in the heavens, and what amazed him more was, that it would give a couple of spurts and then die out, only to burst forth again in a second or two.

He examined it carefully for a few moments, and then he began to do sums to discover where in the heavens that extraordinary star was placed. He thought he found the locality, and the next morning he telegraphed all over the universe that he had discovered a new and remarkable star of the third magnitude in Orion.

In a day or two all the astronomers in Europe and America were studying Orion, and they gazed at it for hours until they were mad, and then they began to telegraph to the man in Washington to know what he meant.

The discoverer took another look, and found that the star had moved about eighteen billion miles in twenty-four hours, and upon examining it closely he was alarmed to perceive that it had legs. When he went on the dome next morning, to polish up his glass he found a lightning bug. People down at Alexandria, seven miles distant, heard part of the swearing, and they say he infused into it much whole-souled sincerity and vigorous energy.

The bill for telegraphic dispatches amounted to $2,600, and now the astronomer wants to find that boy. He wishes to consult with him about something.

Catching a Tartar. A correspondent tells his experience thus:

I saw a fellow who looked so green that if he hadn't stirred just as he did I'd been tempted to pour oil and vinegar on him, and cut him up for salad. He was whittling a stick:

Says I: Halloo. Says he: Halloo yourself. Says I: Boy, if hens lay eggs for nothing, and those eggs sell for sixteen cents a dozen, what's the percentage of profit?

Says he: Mister, it would take a prophet to tell, I reckon. Says I: That's so; what are you making?

Says he: It's a whistle out of willer, and I say, mister, can you make a whistle out of a bowl of soup?

Says I: No, sir. Says he: Well, then, you ain't smart I can.

Says I: Do you mean to tell me that you can make a whistle out of a bowl of soup?

Says he: Yes, I can. That there is a whistle, ain't it?

Says I: Yes, it is. Says he: Well, I didn't make it in a bowl of soup, did I?

Says I: No. Says he: Well, then, I made that there whistle out of a bowl of soup, didn't I?

That made this gentleman mad, and I started to leave when he yelled out: I say, mister, if you'd lived in the days of the ark you'd gone in through the window.

Says I: Why? Says he: Because you are so green that the dove would have lit on you first, sure.

A Pat Rejoinder. At Oxford, some twenty years ago, a tutor of one of the colleges limped in his walk.

Stopping one day last summer at a railway station, he was accosted by a well-known politician, who recognized him, and asked him if he was not the chaplain of College at such a time, naming the year.

The doctor replied that he was. "I was there," said the interrogator, "and knew you by your limp."

"Well," said the doctor, "it seems my limping made a deeper impression than my preaching."

"Ah, doctor," was the reply, with ready wit, "it is the highest compliment we can pay a minister to say that he is known by his walk rather than by his conversation."

The following fresh trial from an English party is not bad:

I was one morning overtaken by an active, hale old fellow, who had been a sailor and seen a great deal of service but was at the time a river bargeman. In our journey we passed a directing post, with arms in good condition and containing full information.

"Do'ee know what that is?" said my companion. "A directing post, of course."

"I call't an exhorter!" "An exhorter! Why?" "Cause'ee tell'th the rode but dothn't go."

A country clergyman, paying a professional visit to a dying neighbor, a very churchy and universally unpopular man, put the usual questions: "Are you willing to go my friend?" "Oh! yes," said the sick man, "I am."

"Well," said the simple-minded minister. "I am glad you are, for the neighbors are willing."
