A Narrow Escape.

From the San Francisco Call we take the following. There was as witnessed yesterday afternoon, one of the most remarkable instances of presence of mind on the part of a lady we have ever heard of .-About 5 o'clock, as a large number of picnickers from Badger's Park were waiting for the train to take them to this city, a young lady about twenty years of age escorted by a young man about the same age, started to walk across the trestle-work opposite the park. At this point there is a sweeping curve in the railroad track, and when a train is approaching it cannot be seen until within a short distance of the station. The lady and gentleman had proceeded about thirty yards on the trestlework, when a gravel train came around the curve at a high rate of speed. The engineer saw the situation, and whistled down brakes, but it was impossible to stop the train in time to save them. The pair started to run for the solid ground, but it was an impossibility to reach it before the train, and the 1 rge crowd held its breath, expecting every moment to see two mangled forms. The lady, who did not lose her presence of mind for a second, saw the danger, and shouting to her companion, immediately dropped through the trestle work and caught hold of one of the sleepers with her hands just as the huge engine passed over her head, with scarcely twelve inches of space between them. The man followed suit, and they remained suspended until the long train had passed on, when a number of gentlemen rushed forward and rescued them from their perilous position and brought them to terra firma. The young lady had not received any bruises, but had her dress and sacque torn in several places when dropping down between the sleepers. Her companion received several bruises, and his wardrobe will require the aid of a tailor. The escape was indeed a marvelous one, and the brave, cool headed young lady was the heroine on the home

An Incident.

A boy hero has been developed in Nagy-Brezna, an obscure Hungarian village, lately visited by the plague. Among the victims was a poor peasant woman, who left behind a son aged fifteen, but no property. In consequence of this latter circumstance the parish priest and the rest of the villagers were in no haste to make arrangements for her interment, and, in spite of the prayers and tears of the poor lad, the body remained in the hut. Two days later a peasant woman of property also died, and a grave was immediately dug to be ready for the funeral. When, however, the body was carried to the graveyard, it was found that her grave was already tilled in. The superstitious villagers fell on their knees and crossed themselves, but the priest, guessing how the matter stood, sent two peasants to the hut of the poor parishiener to see whether the corpse was there. They returned, having found that the body had been removed, and bringing the boy with them. On being asked where the body of his mother now was, he pointed, sobbing, to the newly made grave, saying that, by exerting all his strength, he had dragged the corpse to the graveyard, placed it in the grave, and s hovelled in the earth.

The passengers on a street car plying between Scranton and Hyde Park, Pa., were thrown into a state of consternation and excitement, recently, owing to the sudden death in the car of a strange old lady dressed in black. She entered the car at Hyde Park evidently in good health, and evinced no symptoms of death until the car arrived at the foot of Franklin avenue, and the old lady took up her parcels and was about to leave, when suddenly she uttered a feeble moan and fell back on the seat. The conductor of the car raised her up, but, with the exception of a few spasmodic twitches of the lips, every sign of life had fled. Dr. Throop, of the City Hospital, was immediately sent for, and pronounced life extinct.

Trenton, N. J., September 24.-A prisoner named Marshall, from Newark, was shot at the state prison to-day by the under keeper, Frederick Lowe. Marshall had knocked down a man named Eastback who had been left in charge of shop No. 8 during the temporary absence of Lowe with a shoemaker's hammer, and would have killed him but for the timely arrival of Lowe, who shot Marshall, the ball entering his forehead and lodging in the brain. Marshall is not expected to recover. He is about twenty years of age, and had an old grudge against Eastback.

The Reading Eagle states that some time in the first part of this month, Mrs. Hupp, wife of Jacob Hupp, residing in Maidencreek township, gave birth to a child which had no neck, the head resting diretly on the shoulders. The face was quite natural, having everything in the proper place with the exception of the eyes, which are wanting, although the eye lids were in their proper places. The mouth inside had the shape of the back part of a throat. It lingered but a short time in this life, when it died for want of nourishment, it being impossible to provide it with the necessaries of life.

Iron in the Blood

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "athousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and cures "athousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

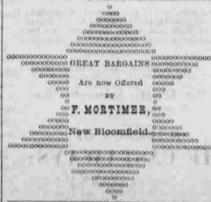

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarplaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Bolls, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or ac-companied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not fol-lowed by corresponding reac-tion, but are permanent, infu-sing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Con-stitution.
