A Raid on Counterfeiters.

A party of government detectives have made a raid on counterfeiters in Tennessee and North Carolina. The crusade was the most extended, strategic and well directed ever organized, and resulted in the arrest of about sixty outlaws, with quite a number yet to be heard from. After consultation by the authorities at Washington, it was determined to place the whole matter in the hands of Colonel Whiteley, chief of the United States secret service corps, by whom, with the assistance of Attorney General Williams, plans were matured to entrap and capture the guilty parties. Whiteley selected from his corps a number of the most experienced officers. The secret service officers obtained the condfience of the centerfeiters, and they communicated their doings to the district attorney at Knoxville, Tenn., and Ashville, N. C. The officers became aware of the organization of counterfeiters into distinct and separate gangs, all of them co-operating and working together, each gang numbering from five to eight members, reckless, determined and thoroughly armed. Each gang were fully aware of the movements of the others, and were in communication such as to enable them to summon aid at short notice. Becoming communicative, the counterfeiters told where the illicit money was made. It came direct from Ohio, and was in denominations of fifty cents fractional currency, ten-dollar national bank notes, and fifty-dollar United States legal tenders of the series of 1869. It was transported into Tennessee and North Carolina the same as any other commodity, by wholesale jobbers and dealers, with regularity and precision, and supplied to customers and friends in sums to suit, according to the demands of trade. In addition to the currency trade there was always extensive dealings in counterfeit Mexican dollars which were principally put off on travelers and emigrants going to Texas and the far west. This money was manufactured in Kentucky, and the transactions in both kinds of money were enormous. The criminals include men in every station in life-lawyers, doctors, justices of the peace, postmasters, United States deputy marshals, clerks of courts and numerous merchants. Sufficient evidence as to the guilt of the parties having been obtained to justify action on the part of the government officers, warrants of arrest to the number of ninety were issued by the United States district attorneys in east Tennessee and west North Carolina. Expeditions were organized of mounted men, armed and equipped, and started. The territory embraced an area of 125 miles long and 57 broad. The ground in North Carlina embraced an area of six hundred square miles. The programme was admirably carried out. It is estimated that about seventy-five arrests in all will be made.

What Befel a Hoarder of Greenbacks. The Alientown, Pa., Chronicle says:

"A man residing in Saucon township, this county, whose name our inquiry failed to ascertain, had hoarded in different places about his house twenty thousand dollars in greenbacks. When the recent panic came upon the country he grew fearful lest in the prevailing scarcity of currency his savings might be discovered and stolen. He went out and offered some of it to his neighbors on mortgage, and the offer being accepted, he went to take it out of its hiding places. Six thousand dollars were found to be so moulded as not to admit of indentification, and the saving farmer possibly knows now that his wealth would have been safer in somebody else's hands than his own. It would be a pleasure to get hold of his name, for while a man has a right to dispose of his money as he pleases, one whose method has proven so

A London paper says : We do not remember ever to have seen anything sadder than the following announcement among the "Deaths," recently in London: "On the 3rd of June, at Durban, Port Natal, Annie aged 13 years; on the 4th, Violet, aged 11 years; on the 5th, Maud aged 12 years; on the 7th, Robert William aged 6 years; on the 8th, Kate, aged 4 years; on the 11th, Ernest, aged 2 years and 9 months-the children of R. W. Dickinson, Esq.-of diptheria." Six little children taken away-a whole nursery silenced and made a solitude-in eight days! God help the poor parents on whom He sends such a pitiless storm as that!

In making some improvements to a house in Phila., last week, a stone slab, which had been used for years in front of one of the doors, was taken up and found to be a tomb-stone, bearing on the under side an inscription in memory of Mrs. Allison, wife of Robert Allison, who departed this life April 30, 1869, aged one hundred forty-fice years. If it can be established that Mrs. Allison was a hundred and fortyfive years old when she died she was certainly older than any person who has lived in modern times, of whom there is any account, except "old Thomas Parr," who was born in 1483, and died in London, November 15, 1635, aged 152 years.
