The U. B. Mutual Aid Society of Pennsylvania, Present the following plan for consideration to such persons who wish to become members:

The payment of SIX DOLLARS on application, FIVE DOLLARS annually for each year, and thereafter TWO DOLLARS annually during life, with pro-rata mortality assessment at the death of each member, which for the First Class is as follows:

Table with columns: Age, Assessment, and values for ages 15 to 27.

Will entitle a member to a certificate of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS, to be paid at his death to his legal heirs or assigns, whenever such death may occur.

A member, or his heirs, may name a successor; but if notice of the death of a member to the Secretary is not accompanied with the name of a successor, then the Society will put in a successor and fill the vacancy, according to the Constitution of the Society.

Should the member die before his four payments of five dollars are made, the remaining unpaid part will be deducted from the one Thousand Dollars due his heirs; his successor will then pay only two dollars annually during his lifetime, and the mortality assessments.

Male and Female from fifteen to sixty-five years of age, of good moral habits, in good health, hale, and sound of mind, irrespective of creed, or race, may become members. For further information, address L. W. CRAWMER, (See'y U. B. Mutual Aid Society,) LEBANON, PA.

ALL KINDS OF JOB PRINTING Neatly executed at the Bloomfield Times Steam Job Office.

Wanted Advice. Old Father Brayne, of Syracuse, was a very popular camp-meeting leader. While conducting a camp-meeting in Western New York, a messenger arrived at the camp to inform him that the wife of the chief deacon had died that morning.

Father Brayne delegated his powers to another, and started home to comfort the bereaved widower. After a twenty-mile's ride he reached the farm-house, where the deacon lived, about four o'clock in the afternoon.

On entering, he shook the widower by the hand and sat down in silence. By-and-by he began to condole with the bereaved man, and offered him all the consolation in his power.

'It's a very heavy grief you have to bear,' said the minister, 'but you must bear up like a man.'

'Yes,' the deacon responded, 'it's kinder rough. Let's take a walk around.'

Father Brayne, thinking that the widower felt ill and depressed, and that the fresh air would do him good, readily assented.

The deacon led him to his barns and stables, and showed him over his farm. The parson appeared to take great interest in everything, and rejoiced to think that he was helping to divert the deacon's mind from his terrible sorrow. After they had gone around the whole farm the deacon said:

'Now, minister, ye see everything's in fine order. What would you advise me to do—bring my daughter and husband here to manage this place, or go splurging about among the girls again for another wife?'

A Big Foot. Bruce—we will call him—not long since kept a "general store" in the northern part of the State. A tall countryman stalked into his establishment one day, with his feet encased in moccasins, and planted one of them on a barrel, asked Bruce if he could fit him with a pair of boots.

'Certainly!' said the latter, and after glancing at the foot proceeded to pull down a box labeled "assorted brogans, 11 to 13." Selecting a pair of the former size, he handed it to the countryman with the polite request:

'Try that on.'

The eleven were tried, but to no purpose; the combined pulling of a dozen horses wouldn't get those boots on his feet. Twelve were next tried, but with no better success. With an air of assurance Bruce handed him the thirteenth, but they shared the fate of the others. The countryman looked blank—Bruce puzzled; but he was equal to the emergency. Quietly turning the box over so as to empty its contents on the floor, he smilingly handed the empty case to the astonished customer, with the request:

'Here, put on a pair of thin socks and try on the box!'

A Young Lady, who had recently returned from Long-Branch, where she had been for her health, was met by a friend, who, after the usual greeting, said—"I hope your trip has done you good—I must say you are not looking amiss after it." "Oh, I feel much better, thank you; but still I am a miss for all that," was the reply.

Several Irishmen were disputing one day about the invincibility of their respective powers, when one of them remarked. "Faith, I'm a brick."

"And indeed I'm a brick layer," said another, giving the first speaker a blow that brought him to the ground.

It was an Irish sailor who visited a city where, he said, they copper-bottomed the roofs of their houses with sheet-lead. Perhaps it was the same man who saw a white blackbird sitting on a wooden millstone, eating a red blackberry.

The old fable modernized.—A negro boy was driving a mule when the animal stopped and refused to budge. "Won't go, eh?" said the boy. "Feel grand, do you? I s'pose you forgot your fadder was a little jackass."

A clergyman recently asked a girl concerning her intended: "Is he, in his conversation and carriage, a consistent Christian?" She replied: "In his conversation he is very pious, but I never saw him in his carriage."

John G. Saxo sends the following to a temperance convention: You have heard of "the snake in the grass," my boy. Of the terrible snake in the grass; But now you must know. That's deadlier than the snake in the grass; 'Tis a snake of a different class; 'Tis the venomous snake in the glass!

A Mr. Cobb has married a Miss Webb. The cob-web was completed soon after he spied'er.

A way speaking of a blind wood-sawyer, says that "while none ever saw him see, thousands have seen him saw."
