A Mulish Anecdote.

The Tribune says the Philadelphia express train eastward bound left Altoona at midnight yesterday, in charge of Jacob Elder, engineer, and Charles Groom, conductor. Nothing worthy of note transpired until the train entered the narrows, west of Black Log Station, and between Lewistown and Mifflintown. While passing through the Narrows the engineer first slackened up, then started forward at full speed; again slacked up and subsequently stopped dead. Before the conductor of the train, who was on the rear end, had time to reach the locomotive and inquire of the engineer what was the matter, the engineer again started on his journey but stopped once more before he had proceeded a mile. Then it was that the conductor inquired what was the matter, and was politely informed that somebody had been continually pulling the bell-rope for the past half-hour, at one time signaling him to slacken, again to stop outright, and anon to go ahead. In a state of excitement, the conductor rushed madly through the several cars attached to the train and inquired who was the "sardine that had been fooling with the bell-rope?" But echo only answered, "who was the sardine?" Again, did the train proceed forward, but only to slacken up, stop, go, ahead, and then slacken up, stop, and go shead until it reached Patterson where it stopped five minutes for

The jarring of the train precluded the possibility of sleep upon the part of the passengers, and upon their arrival at Patterson they were naturally indignant, and in tones of thunder inquired of the engineer what in the d-l be meant. The brave-hearted engineer calmly replied that he had only manipulated his engine in accordance with the signals he had received, and that he could not be held responsible for the unusual jarring of the train. The conductor stated that he had not signaled the engineer, and that he could not be held responsible, while the passengers swore vehomently that nobody in their respective cars had touched the bell-rope. An examination of the train was then made, and after bursting open one of the doors of the express car loaded with four mules, the important discovery was made that the long-cared and treacherous animals were chewing at the beli-rope and consequently were responsible for all the mischief.

When the real cause of the slacking-up, stopping and starting was made known to the passengers on board the train, the indignation of one and all gave place to laughter most hearty, the engineer and conductor of the train above all appreciating the joke, practiced upon them by a quartette of vicious brutes. Before the train left Patterson the conductor ordered the bell-rope to be run along the top of the car in lieu of the inside, which was undoubtedly a good joke on the mules.

A Scene in Court-Attempt to Murder a Prisoner.

The case of James Kingswell, charged with the killing of Francis Malone, was continued this morning, Mr. Heverin arguing that the defendant acted in selfdefence. During his argument, a man who afterwards proved to be John Malone, son of the deceased, was observed standing among the jury unempannelled. Tipstave, but he refused, and Kenney, taking hold of him, a struggle ensued in which they passed immediately behind the prisoner. As they did so Malone wheeled suddenly, and drawing a dirk, aimed a terrific blow at the prisoner, but being jerked at the same moment by Kenney the dirk failed to strike Kingswell, but narrowly missed his head. Instantly the court-room was in an uproar. The tipstaves seized Malone, who still held the dirk and struggled violently. The spectators jumped to their feet and many ran inside the bar. Among them was Francis Maloue, who ran to the assistance of his brother, and a stranger, who was seen to take the knife from John Malone. The struggle lasted for some time, the Malones resisting desperately the efforts to place them in the dock. They were finally overpowered and removed to the van, here another struggle ensued between John Malone and the officers, who finally succeed in getting him, his brother and the stranger into the van, when they were removed to prison. After the occurrence the officers of the court were ordered to surround the dock where the prisoner sat, and prevent any one from moving about the court room. When quiet was restored the argument of the case was proceeded with .- Phila. Bullstin.

The steamer Continental, which left St. Louis on the 28 inst., with prize-fight excursiopists on board, drifted, from lack of steam, to Illinois shore and was captured. Jack Looney and other managers are under arrest but Hogan and Allen are free, they not being on the boat. As soon as released by the authorities, Loony and Chambers will be arrested by Sheriff Cooper, of Madison county, for participating in the McCool-Allen fight a month ago.

adapted to the wants of its large list of readers and patrons.

Its literature is pure, elevated and invigorating, it is a great favorite in families, providing thought for the aged, and molding a correct taste in the young.

Its Scientific Record is not excelled by that of any other Magazine, and its Editorials are short, spicy, and to the point.

It meets with unbounded endorsement, is ever progressive, and now finds a circulation in every State and Territory in the Union, and as largely supported in Canada. In addition to the "Journal," we will send to each subscriber of our paper a heautiful work of art, entitled a magnificent steel engraving, 13 by 19 inches, after a design, by a celebrated French artist. It is a direct appeal to the affections, being both beautiful and touching.

PAPA'S BIRTHDAY

The father's study door is ajar. His form is visible within. His eyes rest upon an open volume, and he is all unconscious of the surprise that awaits him. Outside the door are his two little daughter's. Their bands are full flowers and choice presents, for Papa on his birthday. They approach the door cautiously, in order to make the surprise of their gifts complete. Joy beams in their faces. The deep emotions of their hearts, are told in their smiles and loving, cautious glauces. The conception of the Artist is truly grand, and his execution faultiess. The engraving will be prized as a gem by all those who are fortunate enough to become its possessor. It will look beautiful when framed, and being of large size, will ornament any parlor or sitting room.

The Subscription price of the Propla's Journal, is $1.00 per year.

The price of the Engraving is $3.00. We offer then to each new and renewing subscriber, in the shape of these beautiful joint premiums, the sum of $3.25 free. Or adding this amount to the Subscription price of $1.25 we give to them the value of $5.25 for the sum of $200.

Send at once, or call, and take advantage of our munificent offer while it is open.
