

Bear Hunting in Clinton County, Pa.

A correspondent of the Renovo Record, writing from Hammersley's Fork, gives the following thrilling account of an encounter with bears in that neighborhood: "We have just had an exciting chase after three bears. Rev. Bell first came in contact with them on what is called the "bunk," near Goodman's Mill, when he immediately gave the alarm, and the neighboring people—men, women and children—with guns and dogs, gave rapid chase. The first and largest bear was shot while in the act of demolishing several of the dogs. Then followed the most exciting time imaginable. The second bear was surrounded in the creek, nearly opposite the parsonage, and a number of shots were fired in quick succession, but without effect, when Mr. Goodman with a club in hand and one of his dogs, waded in and met the bear in mid-water, and the battle commenced in earnest. Shrieks of terror went up from the women and children on the bank; guns were exploded in mid-air; hardy lumbermen trembled for the fate of the man and dog in the water, while the crowd on the bank with one accord gave directions as to where to hit the bear next, etc. A Mr. Campbell then rushed to the rescue, and with one shot from his trusty rifle put an end to all strife, and bruin was dragged to the shore. The two bears now lay dead upon the bank, and the excited and terror-stricken crowd gathered around, each with clubs and stones ready to renew the fight should the dead come to life. The third bear is still at large, but is destined to meet a similar fate. "At Oleona, back of Henry Anderson's residence, on Saturday last, eight bears emerged from the woods. Chase was made by Mr. Yerger and another gentleman, who succeeded in killing two of them and mortally wounding a third. The mountains are now alive with excited hunters, and the chances of the remaining bears are slim."

How a Horse Thief was Caught.

The Christiansburg (Va.) Messenger notes that a horse which was stolen from the Rev. Mr. Leslie a few weeks ago had been taught to extend its front foot whenever asked by any one standing near its head. The thief was ignorant of this, as he was of the neighborhood through which he was traveling. Fortunately for Mr. Leslie, every boy along the road knew the horse, because of the foot lifting. The thief stopped at a farm-house in West Virginia, where the Rev. Mr. Leslie had frequently spent the night, and asked for dinner. The little boy who rode the horse to the stable recognized the horse as Mr. Leslie's, and to confirm it asked for the foot, which proved the matter. He ran to the house and told his father, who at once commenced catechising the stranger, which resulted in his arrest and imprisonment and the recovery of the horse.

A Juror in Trouble.

James Delos Centre, eighth juror in the Stokes case, was arraigned before Oyer and Terminer Court on the 3rd inst., on the charge of contempt of Court. He is also indicted by the Grand Jury for misdemeanor.

The Judge fixed the call at 9 o'clock. The District Attorney stated the case was one of the most heinous of contempt of court he ever heard of. The prosecution would show Centre was in the habit of leaving the Astor House at night and frequenting the vilest dens in the city; that he gambled, got intoxicated, and had conversed about the case.

The affidavits in the case so far are those of Harry Hill and Deputy Sheriff Hunt. Hill's affidavit states that Centre was in his saloon several times during the trial. On one occasion he stated there was one man on the jury who had sold himself for five hundred dollars.

What was the Matter?

Cora Wilson, a girl of fifteen, died at Shoreham, Maine, last week, after suffering for a year from a very singular disease, and one that was beyond the ken of the physicians. She was completely paralyzed—could not even move her little finger—and every particle of her hair, even to her eyebrows, dropped off, and a thick incrustation formed over her entire body. This scab was white as snow, and would drop off regularly every month, leaving her skin soft and tender, but a new one would form within 24 hours. Her appetite was even good, and she has suffered little pain. No physician who attended her ever heard of a similar case.

Hugged to Death by a Bear.

One Botocini, an Italian, and his wife, who travel over the country with a performing bear, arrived at East Newark last week, on their way to New York, where they hoped to lodge the bear during the winter. The husband came to N. Y., to make arrangements, leaving the animal muzzled and tied to a post on the roadside, away from any habitation, and under watch of his wife. When he returned he found the bear growling fiercely, and holding his wife tightly in its arms. She was already dead and horribly bruised, trampled and torn. The bear was subsequently killed.
