A Tough Story.

Old John B-, of the town of Wthis State, was, during his life, one of the most inveterate liars and story-tellers extant. The shoemaker that John patronized, lived about a half mile from the town, and, in John's estimation could beat anything in the town, or out it, mending or making a pair of boots or shoes. One morning, late in the fall, John started early to have a pair of shoes mended for his wife. As was his custom, whou going out of town, he shouldered his well-worn shot gun, thinking that he might perchance get some game on the way. He had got half way to his destination, when he heard a great "flutterin," as he expressed it, overhead. He looked up and with pleasure saw a flock of wild geese on their migratory journey to warmer climates. John's gun had but one load. He blazed away, but was astonished that no game down. He loaded hastily and in ramming the second load, his ramrod stuck tight. He had no time to loose, and so he shot ramrod and all at the rapidly passing flock. Nothing fell. John proceeded on his way wondering how he had missed, for he was a good shot. After getting through at the shoemaker's and on his return, and when near the spot where he had made his vain shots in the morning, he heard another "flutterin." On looking up he was agreeably surprised to see the ramrod he had shot away early in the morning, on its return," strung full of as fine game as he had ever shot in his life." John of course was surprised, and so were we when he told us the story. A small boy has sent to an exchange the following information : "A fu dais ago we lost our cat. She got drowned in -'s well ; but nobody knowd she got drowned in the well, and so Mr .---'s fokes, and all the fokes and M. nabors besides, drinked outen the well just the saim. Tha drinked mor'n tha. evir did afore I gess-cause the water tasted so swete. I went 2 the well furwater tother da and I seed the cat in 2 tha. well. She was ded. She was affoatin a round drowned. Me and Billy her out with a hook an line. She smelt orful. But the nabors doant drink enny more watir outen the well now. Wat I cant undirstand is whi the doant. The oughen B moar willin 2 drink the water wen the cat is out than wen she is in. I think so. ures truly. N. B. this is A tru

"Doctor, I feel sig all ofer, und de beebles dells me I petter take one fissick. "All right sir," says the clerk, "will you have a dose of salts, or some purgative pills?"

'I'll give you a do "After a vain search in his pocket for the required sum, he asked :

"Doctor, you tond got some second-hand bill, ain't it ?" In a rural town not fifty miles from Providence, an elderly gentleman died and left a somewhat eccentric wife. The parish clergyman, in pursuance of his duty called on the bereaved wife shortly after her busband's decease, and among other remarks, said that the deceased was " now free from all the ills that flesh is beir to." "Umph," replied the sorrowful wife, "there wasn't much flesh to him; all skin and bone !"

A young lady in Lancaster, has the initials Y. M. C. A. engraved on one corner of her visiting cards, which she hands to certain gentlemen visitors. At first they suppose she belongs to the Young Men's Christian Association, but it is not long before they rightly construe the letter, "You May Come Again."

A man in Lehigh county who ate sixty eggs at a sitting, is looking for a new boarding house. He wants to get into a nice, quiet family where his company will be considered an equivalent for his board though he wouldn't mind paying a dollar a week if his meals are brought to his room. His health is very delicate.

EW" "What is that which Luke had before, Paul had behind, that girls have, that boys do not have, that Mrs. O. Gallagher had twice in the middle before she was married, and which, if you wish to have both behind and before, you must go to Liverpool? It's only the letter L."

tar" More bread, landlord. I always eat a good deal of bread with my meat." "So I see, sir, and a good deal of meat with your bread."
