The Bloomfield Cimes.

NEW BLOOMFIELD, PENN'A. Tuesday, March 3, 1874.

The new horse disease seems to be making its appearance in different parts of the country. It may be well for our readers to take notes of remedies that have proved successful. The treatment adopted by the New York veterinary surgeons is to put horses on a simple diet of long hay and fodder of bran. They are then given homespathic doses of sulphur aconite and belladonna, no outward application being made.

THE women elected to the School Committee in Boston have come off victorious at last, the Supreme Court having decided that there is nothing in the Constitution of that Commonwealth to prevent a woman from being a member of a school committee. It is expected that they will now be given their seats without further opposition. This, however, will not be the only result of the decision. The Court expressly held that the common law permits "a woman to fill any local office of an administrative character the duties attached to which are such that a woman is competent to perform them." · Under this decision Mrs. Julia Ward Howe has only to prove that she is competent to perform the duties of the Governorship of Massachusetts to be eligible for election to that office.

THE "temperance panie" continues to spread. It has now reached New York, and is promised a foot hold in Philadelphia, this week. While we are firm friends of temperance, we cannot but condemn the action of women who crowd themselves upon the premises of others, against the will of the occupants, thus committing one wrong in their attempt to correct another. Vory many of the parties prominent in this movement do it for large pay, while others who spend whole days in the streets and bar-rooms, could really do more good at home. In many instances an untidy house, or negligent wife and mother is causing those who are dear to her to seek bar-rooms and saloons, when a sunny home would keep them safe from temptation. Let women make home pleasant and it will de more to promote temperance and virtue, than the course adopted by the fanatics. We do not believe any real permanent good ever came from a fanatical attempt to correct an evil. Conversions made under such oircumstances are usually but short lived, and the last state of such men are generally worse than the first.

Harrisburg Correspondence.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28, 1874. Some new developments have taken place in connection with the "bank swindle." It was found that the letters to Saunders & It was found that the letters to Saunders & Gibbons were delivered to the Bolton House and by the clerk they were given to W. H. Dimmick, member of the Legislature from Pike and Wayne counties. The other conspirator was found to be J. M. Kreiter, a broker of this city. Both parties were arrested and entered bail for their appearance before the U. S. court to stand trial for violation of the postal laws. Nearly a bushel of letters have been received from parties throughout the State, very many inclosing the remittances which the circulars, referred to in my last letter, called for.

There is no doubt but what a portion of this money was to be used to convince certain members of the necessity for increase in the rate of interest, and the remainder was to be the reward of those who had originated the swindle. If Dimmick and Kreiter are guilty of an attempt to bribe the Legislature, are not those who remitted the money equally guilty?
A list of the names of the contributors to this corruption fund is promised and will be looked for with great interest. I have seen a partial list and confess my surprise at seeing the banks and bankers who are there represented as willing to be benefited by corrupt legislation. Mr. Dimmick the (Hon?) gentleman who hails from Wayne, has saved himself from expulsion from the House by sending in his resignation. Many members were opposed to accepting it, but the Speaker ruled in favor of Dim-mick, accepted his resignation and issued his writ for a new election, to fill the vacancy. The matter is still being investi-gated by the committee, and earnest efforts are being made by some prominent per-sons to suppress the matter as far as is pos-The judicial apportionment bill has passed the Senate, leaving Perry and Ju-niata as the 41st district.

A bill has passed the House providing for the selling of bark by weight. (The bill will be found in another column. Ed.) Considerable discussion has been had this week over the salaries of the judges, and an evident disposition is shown by the Senators to make the pay such a sum that political lawyers will find the office worth striving for.

On Thursday the House by a very decided vote determined to Indefinitely postpone further consideration of the "interest bill," there is now no prospect of any change cupying the attention of the Senate. It is onying the attention of the Senate. It is now asserted that there is no salary fixed by law, so that there is no constitutional objection to the present body fixing their own as well as future salaries. I therefore think it safe to predict that a liberal salary will be allowed, as the present Legislature is to share the benefits of such section.

Ten dollars a day is the amount proposed as a fair equivalent for the services of these solons. Whew! the idea of the majority solons. Whew' the idea of the majority of the men composing the Legislature being worth that sum, when Judge Sharswood, Asa Packer and other such men once thought it an honor to serve in the same capacity for $1.50 per day. If the services of some of the men who value themselves at $10 per day could be had at their actual worth and be disposed of at their own valuation, it would be a good executation. ulation, it would be a good speculation.

Petitions against the repeal of the "local

Broke Jail-A Daring Escape.

Four prisoners made one of the most daring escapes on record from the jail at Castle, Del., on Wednesday night last. The four burglars who had robbed a a bank also took with them a man named Frazier, who was convicted about ten years ago of killing his brother-in-law at Middletown, Del., and sentenced to imprisonment for life. It is supposed the confederates came from Philadelphia to New Castle at night in a steam tug, and landed and entered the town shortly after midnight. Two such boats are known to have arrived, and one left about three o'clock.

The party found near the jail two ladders belonging to a work man who had them in use the day before. These they fastened together, making one of sufficient length to scale the walls of the prison yard, and descending into the back yard they then mounted to the cell window of Lawler and Hurlburt on the west side of the prison, prying the window from its position and enabling those two to join the crowd

It is probable that Lawler or Hurlbowt then directed the subsequent movements, and they then turned their attention to the rescue of their comrades, who were confined in a cell on the other side of the prison on the lower floor.

They therefore went to a door on the same side of the jail, which opens into a back yard, and here they either knocked after the fashion of their attempt at the bank, or their operations made some noise. At any rate they attracted the attention of the warden on guard, Israel Ridings, who went to the door, unbolted it and looked

When Mr. Ridings threw back the door as many of the men on the outside as could possibly do so rushed in and seized him, forcing him into silence. They then closed the door behind them, and thus had the prison all to themselves, to do whatever they wished, as Ridings was the only officer on duty. He was hurried along the corridor, Hurlburt picking him up like a child and carrying him. They took him into the cellar of the jail and there bound and gagged him.

His hands were handcuffed together, his feet secured to a post by a chain. A cord was then tied around his body and back under his arms, and a huge lump of coal was placed under his shoulders. Then a gag about two inches in diameter was forced into his mouth, and securely fastened there by means of a strap, which was buckled around his head.

In this condition Mr. Ridings was left and the villains then ascended the stairs into the corridor, into which they bet Big Frank, Hope and Frazier.

No other persons were released from their cells and no interference was made with any other department of the prison.

The whole party then left as quietly as they came, and the escape was not discovered until after daylight.

When Deputy Sheriff Griffin was awakened he found the cell doors and the jail door open, and the convicts gone. Ridings, after some search, was discovered in the cellar in a perfectly helpless condition. Being relieved from his bonds and gag he could neither speak nor stand. His jaws refused to close, and in fact be was in a condition which, had it been protracted much longer, would have resulted in death. Ought to be Hung.

At Rochester on the 26th ult., some wretch started a fire under the second story stairs in public school house, No. 12. The flames were discovered in time to permit of their suppression before much damage was done, and before there was any panic .-Three hundred children in the upper rooms would have been cut off from escape except by windows, if the flames had progressed far. No. 5 public school house was set on fire on Tuesday, but no damage was done.

His Own Horse Doctor.

A Shelburne Fall, Mass., man had a horse with two lame legs, which he thought ought to be poulticed. So he took a pair of his own drawers and, drawing them up over the horse's legs, tied them at the bottom, and strapped them over the back; he The Legislature re-union on Wednesday was rather an interesting occasion. Sixty six persons who had served the State previous to 1848 were present. It is needless to add that those legs are all right now with the exception of a little hair that during her voyage, sixteen of which proved Confession of a Murderer.

M'Natt, who, with Winner, murdered and burned a painter named Saviers, at Wichita, Kansas, in December last, has confessed his crime. He says Winner persuaded him long ago, in Kansas City, to enter upon a course of crime, and planned the whole affair.

M'Nutt was to have his life insured for five thousand dollars, and then kill and burn some victim and palm off the body for his, so that the money could be collected. At first they intended to commit the crime in Kansas City, but finally concluded to go to Wichita, thinking their escape would be easier there. Being painters, the men started business and soon built up a fine trade.

They were delayed, however, from carrying out their plans for want of a victim, but Winner at last came to Kansas City and engaged Saviers to work for them, and sent him down. They met him at the depot on his arrival at Wichita and took him to the shop, no one knowing anything about it. They made him drunk, and then gave him ether until unconscious. They then put his face over the fire and burned it until it could not be recognized, and laid him on a bed saturated with coal oil.

M'Nutt then cut a gash in Winner's arm with a pair of sissors, and opening a vein in Savier's arm, took out a quart of blood and sprinkled it over Winner to make it appear he had bled a good deal. M'Nutt then left his vest and empty pocket book back of the house, where it would appear that robbers had dropped it, and took a train via Atchison, for Missouri. Winner then set fire to the building, which was burned, and reported that he had been robbed and M'Nutt killed and burned.

The Strike at Catasasqua.

A letter received in Harrisburg from Catasaugua under date of February 16, says :

Our furnace men all struck for higher wages this morning. This strike is the most complete of any we have ever had here. They threw down their tools without even stopping up the furnaces, from which they had just drawn the cinder. The company are doing their utmost to get men to "blow out," but without specess as yet. If they don't succeed in this wonlight or to-merrow morning the furnaces will Things look badly to-night. Many of the men are intoxicated, and threaten the lives of any one that attempts to blow out the furnaces

Pined for Contempt of Jury.

A well-known Lafayette, Ind., land-own r was recently fined for allowing Canada thistles to grow on his farm. Being somewhat angry at the jury on account of the finding, he "let out" at them, and was arrested for contempt.

Miscellaneous News Items.

On Sunday evening a week, the Ray. T. De Witt Talmage, of Brooklyn, preached a terrific sermon on future punishment .--Among those present was Miss Mary Lincoln, a young lady whose home was in Rhode Island, but who was visiting her friends in Brooklyn.

When she went to the church she we apparently in her usual good health. At the conclusion of the discourse she fainted, and was carried out of the church. Before her friends could get her home she died .-The young lady was the daughter of rich and highly respected parents, who were overwhelmed with grief at the news of her death. Coroner Jones held an inquest, which resulted in showing that death was caused by heart disease hastened by mental excitement.

Cincinnati, February 18 .- During the Mardi Gras procession through the German portion of this city last night, George Eschenbrenner, twelve years old, was brutally stabbed by an unknown masker. The boy was standing upon the sidewalk remarking upon the different costumes as the procession moved along. His wounds were pronounced fatal.

Kingston, N. Y. February 17 .- Sarah Merritt choked her infant girl, aged seven months, to death at Phonicia, in this co., last night. The woman has been arrested.

Memphis, Feb. 24 .- No trains have arrived here on the Memphis and Charleston railroad since Saturday, owing to the heavy rains. The Mississippi Central railroad is badly washed north of Grenada.

Baltimore, February 24.—George Lynch, aged twenty-six, committed snicide this morning by shooting himself through the head. Supposed cause, he was to have been married to-night.

The steamship Mongol, from London for Wellington, has arrived at Melbourne. She had sixty-seven cases of illness on board

The Western Pennsylvania Colony.

A member of the Western Pennsylvania colony who, with others, recently went from this State to locate writes as follows from Plum Creek, Dawson county, Nebraska: We have located, and one of our party has put in a claim for timber land. There is plenty of game here; prairie chicken, jack rabbits, buffalo, deer, elk, antelopes, &c. The land is all that it was represented to be, but the weather is a little colder than in Pennsylvania. It is the richest land I ever saw. Tell anybody who comes here not to sell their things, for it will pay to bring out anything but iron ware and furniture. Every one should have four hundred or five hundred dollars. I am going to build in three weeks.

A Horse Among the Flddles.

While Ned Buntline was riding his horse Juno a few evenings ago in the Olympic Theatre, the animal backed up to the footlights and singed his legs. He then became unmanageable. Finally, to the consternation of the audience, he fell from the stage into the orchestra pit, carrying with him the footlight frame, and causing considerable demoralization among the musicians. Juno was soon extricated and the play went on.

tw On Friday morning a week, the large brewery of Henry Muller in Thirty-second and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, fell to the ground, burying twenty people under its ruins. The building was only three months old, and was built of brick, three and a half stories in height. Nearly one thousand tons of ice were packed on the third floor, and it was while new additions were making to this heavy weight that the building fell. Fve persons were killed outright; one was killed while the work of removing the ruins was in progress, and several were seriously injured.

The women's temperance movement has broken out in the city of Williamsport, the ladies having signified their intention of visiting not only the places where lismor is sold, but also the Mayor's office, The Court House and the residence of the President Judge for the purpose of engaging in prayer for the suppression of the unholy traffic

Ret the People Speak.

MANHATTAN, Kais, April 8, 1873. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—Your Faverite Prescription has done my wife a world of good. She has taken nearly two bottles and has felt better the past two weeks than at any time in the past two years. No more periodical pains; none of that aching back or dragging sensation in her stomach she has been accustomed to for several years. I have so much confidence in it that I would be perfeetly willing to warrant to certain customers of ours who would be glad to get hold of relief at any expense. I have tried many Patent Medicines, but never had any occasion to extol one before.

Wery truly yours,
