Never Known to Fail!

THOMPSON'S Fever & Ague Powders

FOR THE PERMANENT CURE OF CHILLS AND FEVER, DUMB AGUE, OR ANY FORM OF INTERMITTENT FEVER!

The Greatest Discovery of the Age!

THERE are no diseases so debilitating in their effects upon the constitution as the above, and none more difficult to cure by the usual modes of practice. The Fever and Ague Powders will effect a cure in cases of the longest standing, as well as prove a preventive in the forming stages of disease. Being purely Vegetable, they act with certainty on the disease, totally eradicating it from the system, and preventing a return at any future period. Why waste your money and health in trying every medicine you hear of, when Thompson's Fever and Ague Powders have never failed to cure the Chills in any case.

REASONS WHY THEY ONLY SHOULD BE USED:

Their Reputation is Established. — Thousands of testimonials have been received, showing that these Powders have performed miracles in curing cases of long standing, many of them considered hopeless. There is no Risk in Taking Them. — They contain nothing injurious, and, therefore, cause none of those lingering diseases so often the result of the many nostrums of the day. Physicians recommend them as far superior to Quinine, or any other known remedy, for they leave the system in a healthy state, and the patient beyond the probability of a relapse.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS. — The genuine are put up in square tin boxes, with "Thompson's Fever and Ague Powders" stamped on the lid, and the signature of "Thompson & Crawford," on the wrapper. — No others can possibly be genuine.

PREPARED ONLY BY CRAWFORD & FOBES, 141 Market St., Philadelphia.

"The illiacs are budding," says a Wisconsin editor. "You illiac Satan," responds one of the readers. "You violet truth," politely replied the editor, and both are given over to blue devils.

A gentleman asked a little girl what it was that made a person feel so when a another tickles him.

"I suppose it's a laugh creeping over him," was the reply.

"What's dis Credit More Biler dat de newspapers makin' such a fuss about?" inquired one darky of another. "Dunno," replied the other, "but I s'pose de gov'-ment buildin' steam-ships, and wants credit for more bilers dan dey can get."

Said Lord John Russell to Hume at a social dinner, "What do you consider the object of legislation?" "The greatest good to the greatest number." "What do you consider the greatest number?" continued his Lordship. "Number one, my Lord," was the commoner's reply.

A certain farmer, having company at dinner, was ambitious to make it appear that he was somebody. Addressing his boy, he said: "Have you driven those sheep in?" "Yes, sir," "Are you sure you drove them all in?" "Yes, sir; I saw him jump over the bars." He had but one.

The epitaphs of Dakota papers are most pathetic: Jim Barrett had been shovelling snow, from which he caught a bad cold, which turned into fever. The fever settled Jim's mundane affairs; and a local paper says, most affecting, in his obituary, "He won't have to shovel snow in the country he has gone to."

A dealer in horse-flesh sold to a gentleman of little experience in such matters a steed as "perfectly without fault." Next day the buyer came back in great fury, because his groom found out that the alleged "faultless horse" was blind in the right eye. "Why," replied the sly dealer, "that is not the horse's fault; it is only his misfortune."

A noted hunter of South Hero fears that he has been the victim of a "sell." He has a gun that scatters shot badly, so that it is not of much account. Sometime ago he saw an advertisement in a city paper, offering to send information whereby such scattering of shot could be eventually prevented, on receipt of fifty cents. He sent the money and in due time was informed that to prevent his gun from "scattering" he should "put in only one shot, or use a bullet."

A Paris journal tells the story of a beggar who presented himself regular at a certain coffee house with a clarinet under his arm. "Will you allow me, gentlemen," said he, in a humble tone of voice, "to play a tune? I am only an amateur, and if you will give me a few coppers I will spare you the annoyance of listening to me." Every one felt at once for a few stray coppers, and the musician departed with a profound obsequence. This he repeated several evenings in succession. At last, one evening, a young man asked him in a friendly manner to give them a tune, good or bad. "But I am afraid, sir, I shall disappoint you." "Never mind that, give us a tune." "But I am a poor player, and I have a very poor instrument." "No matter for that; I want to hear you." "Well, sir, since you insist upon it," said the poor man, "I will tell you that I don't play."

While traveling in the South a few weeks since, I was amused at the following incident:

On board the train was a colored family, consisting of father, mother, and three children. The two oldest ranged from fifteen to seventeen, the youngest about eight. The two elder were black as an epitome of midnight, the youngest was of the brightest sallow-color. An old gentleman of inquiring mind asked the mother whose children they were.

"Dey's mine," answered the old Dinah. "What, all three?" queried the old gent. "Course dey is," said Dinah. "Well, who is their father?" asked the old gent.

"Dere is dere fader; dat's my old man," said aunt Dinah; pointing to an old grey haired and decrepit darkey sitting near.

"Why," said the old gent, "you don't pretend to tell me that he is the father of all three?"

"Course he is de fader ob all free; he is my old man, he is," said Dinah, somewhat impatiently.

"Well, now," said the old gent, "just tell me this: how does it happen that those two are so black, and this one is so white?"

"Why, de Lord love you, honey," returned Dinah with a grin, "doesn't ye know dem two old uns was dun borned to do war in old reb times; dis yere one," pointing to the young cream-color, "was born since we is free."

The man of inquiring turn of mind was silenced if not convinced.
