Badly Bitten Judge.
It is a fact protty genorally known that in order to dispose of disorderly characters promptly at the New York state fairs, a justice of the peace holds court continually on the fair cround. A. West Troy justice attended to the business last Fall, and many offonders were brought before the "big judge." Among the number arrestof was a young man having the appearance of a hale witted, overgrown country boy, He was detected in "noaling the fence, and brought up by the policeman to the office of the justice. The lubberly boy admitted the charge, but pleaded in exton vation that he had no money, and hie tosire to see "the show" had induced him sontenced him to jail for thirty days or to pay a fine of five dollars.
The culprit began to ory, saying he had no money, but the 'squire was inexorable, once the outside world would bere paid at o him for thity world would be a stranger o "blabber" for nome time, the boy said bank in Albany had sont him to tho saving and he had the money with him. "Well," said the justice, "if you would avoid going ojail, take ive dollars out of your mother's money, and go home and explain matters to her." The boy flially drew off one of his cow-luide boots, and taking from it small piece of newspaper, displayed a finy With a sorrowful look and a tremblin hand the bank note was handed to "his honor," who returned forty-five dollara change. This done, the justice directed the policeman to take the boy by the col lar and thrust him out of the gate, which was done by the blue coat, who added, by way of emphasis, a good sound kick. An the protended greentiorn reached the road he was haughed at by the crowd, and in reply said: "I have finished my business in there." The next day the 'squire procoeded to deposit the fifty dollars in the bank, when he was informed that it was Imagine the feelings of "the court.""Sold," said he, "and got the money,"ances are edecoptive," and with regard to the honesty of stragera "you cant mont always tell." The " squire will keep always tell.," The squire will keep a alharp lookout for country bumpkins hereafter.

Keeping the "Piece."
Jay Keppler is a good, whole souled fellow, and he lives in Clearfield county low, and he lives in Clearfield county. Jay couldn't live if he didn't have a joke now and then, but "the cup" often got the and then, but "the cup" often got the better of him, and on such occasions he showed a little of his bull dog nature.
One time Jay "crawled" an Irishmat Paddy O'Day was his name-and in the rough and tumble fight the man o' the sacamrock lost part of au ear; a suit of damages was the result. Jay concluded that, he was old enough to tike care of himeele, and said he didn't care a d-m, he'd argy the case himself.
Here comes the argument: "Now, Mr.
'Squire," said Jay, "don't you 'Squire," said Jay, "don't you see? lookeer! s'pose you was tight-l'm jist spots eer! s'pose you was tight-T'm jint s'sposin'
-an' an Iribhman 'ud go fur you what'd you do?" Well," replied the justice, milingly, "I think I'd do the bost I could under the circumstances." that too?"
"Oh, yes, certainly; bnt I am of the opinion that under all the circumstanes it opinion that under all the oircumstances it would be advisable to bind you over to lceep the peace for at least a yeapr." Jay contemplated the aituation a moment, then drawing himmelf up, and going ono eye oo the gquire in a a way going that only Jay could when he was dubiousolinched his cane with, "now nay, lookeer,
