Laws Relating to Newspaper Subscriptions

The following is the law relating to newspaper subscriptions... 1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered willing to continue their subscription.

A Remarkable Will.

Marin O. Walker, one of the oldest and wealthiest citizens of Chicago, died last week. His will is a most extraordinary document. It places all his property in the hands of four trustees; directs that they shall pay each of his two sons annuities which shall not be less than $800 nor more than $5,000, but within these limits gives absolute discretion to the trustees; provides that the estate shall be divided among the grand-children of the testator upon the death of his sons, and failing issue from the sons, that it shall be kept intact for twenty-one years, and then be used for benevolent purposes, according as the trustees may direct.

Town Blown Away.

Tampico, Ills., June 7.—A terrible tornado passed over this village last night, making a complete wreck of it. Wonderful to say, no lives were lost, though a number of persons were injured—several seriously. Twenty-one dwellings were destroyed, and every house in the town was more or less damaged. The elevator, of Glass, Horn & Bryant, containing 12,000 bushels of grain, and that of Black, containing 5000 bushels, were totally demolished. The depot of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad was badly damaged. The most serious casualties are Mrs. J. G. Gates, leg broken in two places, Maria Banes, jaw broken and dangerously injured in the head, recovery doubtful; another Mrs. Gates, seriously bruised; Mrs. Pearson, badly injured; Mrs. Gale, shoulder broken; Granville Conner, badly hurt about the head; J. G. Gates, bruised seriously. A number of others were injured, none seriously. Cannot estimate the amount of damage yet. The people are hunting up and gathering together what little the storm has left them. The tornado struck us at 11:10, and was accompanied by rain and severe thunder and lightning. The storm came from the West and lasted but a few minutes. As soon as information of the calamity reached the officers of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad, they volunteered a special train, which has just arrived, bringing Dis. Edwards and Cook from Mendota to our assistance.

Sad Death by Lightning.

A sad case of death by lightning occurred near Worthington, Minn., on Saturday last, the particulars of which are thus given in the St. Paul Press: A house on Ocheeda lake was struck by a current of the disastrous fluid, and both ends of the house blown out by the explosion, causing the roof to fall. The house was occupied by a man, his wife and two children.

The woman escaped from the ruins with her babe, and the other child succeeded in saving himself. The father was stunned by the lightning, which struck him upon the hand, and was firmly held in the ruins by the timbers falling upon him. The light lumber quickly ignited, and despite the almost superhuman exertions of the mother and child to drag his body forth, the body of the unfortunate man was burned.

On Monday evening during the prevalence of a storm at Johnstown, a son of Henry Shaffer, aged 15 years, of Kernville, while standing on the pavement, fell dead. A vivid flash of lightning occurred just at the time; but there appeared no evidence to indicate that he had been killed by the lightning.

A Terrible Situation.

A few days ago a laboring man started to walk from Port Huron to Detroit. He laid by during the heat of the day, and was walking in the evening to make it up. While crossing the track where a switch leads down along the main track he got his foot caught in a "frog," and his efforts to extricate it were of no avail. He had on a stout boot, and it fitted so closely over the instep that he could not draw his foot out. In fact, the boot was wedged in the "frog" so closely that the man's toes were severely pinched. He pulled this way and that, wrenched and twisted, but the "frog" held the foot like a vise.

At length he could hardly move his leg for the pain, and he found that he must either be run over by the next train or make some one understand his situation.—He shouted himself hoarse, but no one came. The nearest house was half a mile away, and if the farmer heard the wild calls he gave them no attention. After the man had been a prisoner for upward of an hour he heard the whistle of a down freight train. It was yet a long way off, and he had a little time to think. He had a match-box in his pocket, papers in his bundle, and the idea came to him to signal the train. Tearing the paper off his bundle and getting at a number of letters, he rolled them into a heap, and for fear the flame would die out too suddenly, he added two flannel shirts from the bundle. The bundle was then made fast to the end of his walking stick, matches produced, and he waited until the head-light of the locomotive should appear up the track.

It finally greeted his vision, looking like a bright white star, as it glistered far up the track. The rumble of the train grew louder, the star grew larger and brighter. He struck his match, the flame blazed up brightly, but as he moved it toward the bundle a little gust of wind blew it out.—Was there time yet? Up the track he could hear the thunder of a hundred heavy wheels, and the great light of the locomotive glared at him like the fiery eye of some wild beast. Another match, an instant of fear and doubt, and then the paper blazed up and curled over and around the bundle and swayed right and left with the night wind. He waved the signal of fire back and forth, and just when he was ready to believe that death under the wheels was certain heard the whistle for brakes.

He could hear the wheels grinding and groaning, the hiss of steam as the engineer threw back his lever, and then the heavy train came to a stop with the great light shining down upon him, paling his dying signal. He was saved, but the engine had only thirty feet more to go to crush him.—The fireman came forward, got a crowbar and released him, and he was taken back to the caboose. The train men were kind to him, and he found acquaintances who arranged for his board until he will be able to work. His foot is badly swelled and very tender, and it will be several days before he will be able to walk.

A Remarkable Escape.

An escape from death as wonderful as any ever related by the pen of fiction was made by an individual on the Detroit and Milwaukee Road a few nights ago, as chronicled by the Free Press of the former city. It seems that an unknown man was permitted to ride on top of a freight train on his representation that he had no money to pay his way to Grand Rapids, and was willing to do anything he was called on to do in compensation. The brakeman forgot to tell him of the several low bridges on the route; and about midnight when the engineer, having discovered cattle on the road, whistled "down brakes," the stranger was the first up from the caboose. In running forward over the cars, he suddenly observed the dark form of a bridge close above. There was scarcely time to think, and as by instinct he sprang off when within a foot of the over-hanging structure, and striking a sloping embankment, fell down and rolled to the track, where one of the wheels caught his boot heel, crushing it off close to the sole, and whirled him around so that the next wheel sheared off the rim of his hat. When the train was stopped he climbed into his caboose entirely uninjured in person, but with some such feeling as he may have who has arisen from the lightning stroke which has tumbled the house about his ears, but left himself uninjured.

A Liberal Donation.

James Lick of San Francisco, has made a most remarkable gift to the public. He donated $700,000 to the construction of the largest and the best telescope in the world for the observatory at Lake Tahoe; $420,000 for public monuments; $150,000 for public baths in that city; $100,000 for the Old Ladies' Home; $10,000 to the Society for the Prevention of Animals; $25,000 to the Ladies' Protection Relief Society; 10,000 to the Mechanics' Library; $25,000 to the Protestant Orphan Asylum; $25,000 to the city of San Jose for an Orphans' Asylum; $150,000 for the erection of a bronze monument to the author of Star Spangled Banner in the Golden Gate Park; $30,000 for the endowment of a school of mechanical arts in California, and the residue in excess of $70,000 to the Pioneers' Society. He makes ample provisions for his relatives, and reserves the homestead and $25,000 per annum for himself.

Singular Robbery.

Charles Anderson, a retired Swedish sea captain, lately married a lady of New York. Being possessed of uncut diamonds of considerable value, he decided to dispose of some of them, and make a bridal tour to Europe. He left his apartments at Sweeney's hotel on Monday, June 1, to go to a diamond broker's on Broadway. While in the broker's building, he was accosted by a confidence man, who soon learned of his business. The confidence man pretended to be a clerk of the diamond broker, and said the latter was out, but if Anderson would call in a few hours he would find him. Anderson, on repeating his visit was again met by the same person, who had an elegantly dressed lady with him. He invited Anderson to accompany him to see the lady home, then they would go to the broker's office together. In Broadway the lady handed Anderson a lozenge and gave another to her companion and took one herself. Anderson unsuspectingly ate it and grew dizzy and semi-unconscious. The woman held her handkerchief to his nose, and he sank insensible. When next conscious he was alone in a dark room, when he was bound and gagged, chloroformed, and put in a coach, again unconscious. When next conscious he was in Spruce street; his diamonds, watch, and diamond studs were gone. The whole amount of property taken was worth $16,000. Private detectives are working up the case.

Captain Charles Anderson, the victim of the diamond robbery, says he has been rendered almost penniless by the loss he has maintained. The robbery was committed in Houston street, near Broadway. No clue has yet been found to the robbers.

Terrific Storms.

Hartford, Conn., June 8.—The heavy showers of Sunday night and Monday morning caused a freshet in Mud river at Winstead, washing the streets back, and causing considerable damage. The dam of Lathrop's cutlery works gave way. The Naugatuck and Farmington rivers are very high. The dam of the Washine Mills, Salisbury, gave way on Saturday.

Albany, June 8.—The track of the Susquehanna Railroad was washed away at several points by the storm of yesterday. At East Worcester, several houses and barns were carried off by giving way of dams. No lives lost.

Kemptonville, Ontario, June 8.—A whirlwind passed over this place yesterday, unroofing a number of houses and leveling several buildings. A large amount of property was destroyed, and several persons injured, but no lives lost.

Damage to Crops by Hail in Maryland.

Baltimore, June 10.—A dispatch received from Frederick says: One of the most extraordinary and destructive hail storms ever experienced in this section of the country passed over the northeastern portion of this county about seven o'clock on Monday evening. Much damage was done to buildings, and hundreds of acres of splendid growing crops of wheat, corn and hay were utterly destroyed. Of one hundred and ten acres of fine wheat, owned by Mrs. Jessie Wright, near Monrovia station, Baltimore and Ohio railroad, scarcely a bushel will be gathered.

Summer Polonaises.

Lovely summer polonaises are made of white organdie and fine French needlework, or Valenciennes lace. The bodies and entire fronts are made of alternate puffings and insertions, and these also form the sleeves and are carried up on the back of the skirt to the depth of several rows, the draping being gracefully effected by some pale faint shade of blue or rose-ribbon, and trails of roses.

Another charming style is made in a new and delicate material, grenadine, batiste, with a soft silken stripe of the same ecru tint. It is unlined, and the trimming is ecru lace and insertion to match, with bows, or silk-covered buttons, and sash of doubled silk matching the stripe.—From Demorest's Monthly for July.

The Fastest Railroad Train in America.

The newspaper train on the New Jersey Division Pennsylvania railroad now carries a passenger coach. It starts from Jersey City 4:10 A. M., and arrives at West Philadelphia at 8:57. The section between New Brunswick and Trenton is run at the rate of a mile a minute. The train has been in operation about a year, and has met with but one accident, when it struck a carriage, killing two persons. When the train was first put on it was manned by an engineer, fireman, and two men to handle the papers. They were volunteers, and signed a paper releasing the company from all responsibility in case of accident.

A pretty young woman of Louisville named Pauline Leinsky, noted for the beauty of her hair, which had reached the unusual length of 5 feet, a few nights ago was awakened about 2 o'clock in the morning, experiencing a sensation as if some one was combing her hair, which was loose about her shoulders. As she awoke she saw two men leave the room. When consciousness returned she aroused the family. Her mother on entering smelt chloroform, and found that her daughter's hair had been cut from the right side of her head, that in the left side being neatly combed.

The suicide was the result of depression caused by financial shortcomings.

A violin that cost $1,000 was sold by auction at an executor's sale in Providence, a day or two since, for $50. It is stated that a New York lady who knew its value forwarded $600 to an agent there to procure it, but no one at the auction suspected that the dingy, one-stringed old fiddle had such marvellous possibilities of old, and the agent secured it for what the crowd regarded as a fancy price.

A law case is pending in the Supreme Court at Jackson, Tenn., in which the sole question to be determined is whether a certain letter in a promissory note for $5,000 is "I." or "J."—whether the said note was made payable to "I.
