

Killed While at Worship.
 Richard S. Shreve was the Methodist preacher of the Botetourt circuit, Va., and the Rev. John Shreve was the Methodist preacher on an adjoining circuit. On the 1st inst., these brothers, with the wife of the first, had been visiting a friend and returned to the house of the first named near night. The evening meal had been prepared, and before partaking of it, family prayer was proposed. Mr. R. S. Shreve has several children, the eldest of which is seven. The youngest of them being fretful, the mother directed the eldest to take all of them into an adjoining room and to quiet them during worship. The adult persons then seated themselves for family worship, Mr. John Shreve one side of the window, Richard Shreve seating himself in front of the window, and the servant girl was seated near a table in the centre of the room. The Bible had just been passed to John Shreve to commence the service, when the death dealing electric stroke came. The heavens were overcast with dark, angry clouds, and a few scattering drops of water had fallen as the only premonitions or precursors of that awful electric stroke. The eldest of the children came into the room immediately after the report, and surveyed the scene, and gives the only intelligible account. Her father and mother were prostrated on the floor.— Mr. John Shreve was staggering about the room, uttering some incoherent words and soon fell to the floor. The servant was paralyzed with terror. The little girl thought to place her hand over her father's heart, and it was still beating. The nearest neighbor was half a mile distant. The servant girl unacquainted with the road, and finally the eldest girl, leaving the other children in that house of death, piloted the servant girl through the storm to the nearest neighbor for aid. The Rev. John Shreve recovered, but the electric bolt did its perfect work with R. Shreve and his wife, furnishing one of the most startling exemplifications on record of the truth of the line in the burial service in the book of common prayer, to wit: "In the midst of life we are in death."

Hard to Account For.
 Willie Cummings, lost an arm by being run over by the cars at Troy, N. Y. When the lad was taken home, his arm was brought after him. It was thrown into a pail, when the poor little fellow screamed with pain. The severed limb was then placed in a box and buried in the garden. Shortly after, little Willie complained of a pain and a queer feeling in the severed hand. He said that something was crawling on the inside of the hand. The limb was exhumed, when a large worm was discovered in the palm of the hand. A large jar was then obtained, and it became necessary to crowd the arm in, when the sufferer fairly went into a paroxysm of pain. The limb was placed in a jar partly filled with alcohol, and then replaced in the ground. The little fellow complained that his arm and fingers were in a terribly cramped position, and that the little finger and the next one was growing together.— The jar was then taken up, when the limb was found crowded and cramped as described. This is remarkable, although such instances are often related. In this case the little nine-year-old lad was ignorant of what disposition was made of the limb.— The lad is very low at the present writing, and some doubts are entertained of his recovery.

Bill McKenna, of Grafton, New York, got up early the other morning. He was nervous and ugly. He took his revolver from a drawer, cleaned it carefully, and loaded every chamber. He said he was impressed that he should shoot somebody before night. He didn't know why he felt so, exactly, but that was the way he felt, although he had no idea whom he was going to shoot. After breakfast he sauntered around with a fierce scowl on his face. He was moody and reserved, but to a confidential friend he showed his revolver, and said he had a strong presentiment that he would shoot somebody before night. The rumor spread that McKenna was bad that day, and social intercourse with him was circumspectly offensive. Many times his hand wandered to his pistol pocket, and toyed with the handle of the deadly weapon. Those movements caused uneasiness among those who noticed them, and because they remembered his impression that he would shoot somebody before night. Finally Bill McKenna went home, and began to undress for bed. He took the revolver from his pocket, and said he was so glad that he hadn't shot anybody after all. He pulled the hammer back to a full cock, and was going to take out the cylinder to clean it. His hand unwillingly touched the trigger. Bang went a charge, and up went a bullet into his shoulder. After the ball had been extracted, McKenna said he had felt all day as though he was going to shoot somebody.

At Philadelphia on the 18th inst., John Williams, who is separated from his wife went to her mother's to see her and ask her to return home. She refusing, he drew a pistol and fired three shots, one took effect in her left breast. The husband has not been arrested.

Manhood: How Lost, How Restored!
 Just published, a new edition of Dr. Cuijverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of Spermatorrhoea, or seminal Weakness, Urinary and Sexual Disorders, Impotency, Mental and Physical Debility, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also Consumption, Epilepsy, and Pile, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance. Price, 6c.
 This is a sealed envelope, only six cents.
 The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates from thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured, without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.
 This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.
 Sent under seal, in plain envelopes, to any address. Post-paid, on receipt of six cents in two postage stamps. Also, Dr. SILLI-MAN'S REMEDY FOR PILES. Sent for circular.
