

A Woman's Remarkable Escape.

On Saturday a week an itinerant peddler entered the house of Jas. Tolin, living near Minot's Landing, (Md.), and proceeded to display his wares to Mrs. Tolin, despite her assertions that she did not wish to buy anything. Mr. Tolin was confined to his bed, and had been so confined for many years, being so crippled with rheumatism that it had been long impossible for him to leave his bed unless carried from it. After showing his goods, and Mrs. Tolin not buying anything, the peddler commenced a conversation, in the course of which he learned the helpless condition of Mr. Tolin. Finally he made an insulting proposal to Mrs. Tolin, and she indignantly ordered him to leave the house. Instead, he approached her and seized hold of her, saying, with an oath, that she was in his power, as her husband was as good as dead. Mrs. Tolin, being a delicate woman, ran screaming into another room. The peddler followed her, and before she could escape by the door, caught her again. A desperate struggle ensued between them, and Mrs. Tolin was thrown violently to the floor by the powerful villain. Mr. Tolin had been all the time a witness of the struggle, lying powerless in his bed. At the sound of his wife falling on the floor, however, and her frantic shrieks for aid, he seemed to be endowed with supernatural power. Under the influence of that power he sprang from the bed he had been unable to leave for years. Seizing a heavy crutch that stood near the bed, he rushed into the room where the struggle was going on. Mrs. Tolin had succeeded in regaining her feet, but the peddler had grasped her around the waist and was endeavoring again to throw her. As Mr. Tolin entered the room, the singular spectacle of a bed-ridden cripple hastening to the defence of his wife seemed to paralyze the scoundrel, and he stood staring as if in a trance at the approach of the husband. Mr. Tolin, nerved with unnatural strength, brought the crutch down over the head of peddler and felled him like an ox to the floor. The next instant the excitement and superhuman effort that supported the husband left him. With a shriek that told of the intense agony of the relapse he clasped his hand to his forehead and dropped to the floor and almost instantly expired.

Mrs. Tolin succeeded in getting the body of her husband back into bed, and then started for assistance. She was obliged to go over a mile before she was able to obtain any. When she returned with several neighbors the peddler was gone. He had recovered consciousness and fled, leaving his pack in the house.

A Terrible Revelation.

We have already given some details of the tragedy near Anderson, Ind., in which Mrs. Mawson murdered her son Albert, and threw his body in the well, subsequently committing suicide. By the following it will be seen that the Mawsons were another Bender family: For many years the Mawson family have been a terror to the neighborhood in which they resided. Mrs. Mawson is believed to have murdered two children by her first husband and then to have made way with their father. A dark suspicion hung over her at the time, but no clue could be gained sufficient to warrant her arrest. Eight years ago a man by the name of Hoppas was killed only a few feet from the well into which Albert Mawson was thrown, and by his side was a saffras club with which he was struck.

A man by the name of White was found guilty of the murder and hanged, although he maintained his innocence to the last. Three years ago, when Mrs. Mawson's second husband died, it is said, he confessed that he murdered Hoppas, and that White was innocent. It is believed that Mawson himself was poisoned by his wife. In the evening he was as well and strong as usual, but the next morning he found it convenient to die before any of the neighbors were up.

Last spring Mrs. Mawson's eldest daughter gave birth to an illegitimate child and killed it by choking it to death. She left for parts unknown. About two months ago the skeleton of a man was found at the bottom of what was formerly a pond of water on the Mawson farm, and was identified as that of an old bachelor hermit who lived in the vicinity, but who disappeared very suddenly about a year ago.

He was known to have a considerable amount of money in his house, but after his sudden exit none was found. Just before Mrs. Mawson committed suicide she told a visitor that if they would search her farm some other important disclosures would be made. It is thought she referred to other murders, and her farm is to be thoroughly searched and the ground probed.

Served them Right.

A Charivari party in La Grange, Wis., surrounded the house of one Tobin, who having lived nearly half a century in single blessedness, had at last taken a wife. He received the serenaders with apparent cordiality, but administered to them the following dose: Two gallons of good strong whiskey infused with a powerful decoction of snuff and tobacco. The effect can well be imagined. His house and surrounding buildings resembled a cholera hospital all that night.

Have You Tried JURUBEBA? ARE YOU Weak, Nervous, or Debilitated?

Are you so languid that any exertion requires more of an effort than you feel capable of making? Then try JURUBEBA, the wonderful Tonic and Invigorator, which acts so beneficially on the secretive organs as to impart vigor to all the vital forces.

It is no alcoholic appetizer, which stimulates for a short time, only to let the sufferer fall to a lower depth of misery, but it is a vegetable tonic acting directly on the liver and spleen. It regulates the bowels, quiets the nerves, and gives such a healthy tone to the whole system as to soon make the invalid feel like a new person. Its operation is not violent, but is characterized by great gentleness; the patient experiences no sudden change, no marked results, but gradually his troubles "Fold their tents, like the Arabs, And silently steal away."

This is no new and untried discovery, but has been long used with wonderful remedial results, and is pronounced by the highest medical authorities, "the most powerful tonic and alterative known."
