Laucaster-Its Progress.

Among the leading towns of our Commonwealth, is the old town of Lancaster, characteristic of mental and moral advancement, in her citizens and institutions; but of slow progress in the line of manufactory. Within the past year, however, a new life seems to have inspired its capitalists, and they begin to move out from their haunts of case and secluded retirement. On the first Monday of this present month, the City set a mile post in her history, by respectfully throwing open to their citizens and the public, the doors of one of the most elaborately arranged and commodious hotels in the state. For no less than a year, has this great building proved material for lidle, as well as, more sincere speculation among the people and papers of the place. It is being conducted by Messra. Wilsons, who are New England men, and who know how to entertain their guests to the full credit of the House, the honor of the town, and the happy satisfaction of patrons. In evidence of the respect to deserving representatives acting in the interests of her people, and common humanity abroad, this Hotel will be known as the "Stevens House." A Watch Factory is also rearing its head on a commanding eminence, on the grounds to the south of the City, to be known as the "Adams and Perry Watch Factory," who, with others of its artists, are men of acknowledged ability, coming direct from the great watch factory of Elgin, Ill. 'This week, the City is to introduce to its streets the luxury of street car riding. The track having been contracted for early in the season, was to have been completed by Nov. 1st, but from the amount of work required, it was found necessary to make a change of date for

The Teachers' Institute was held in the Public Hall of the City, last week, (Nov. 12th) which was an occasion of intense interest. Fulton Hall being crowded to its utmost each day and evening during the week. Nearly six hundred teachers reported themselves present. No better proof of the intellectual progress of a country need be given, than was manifested on the occasion of this institute.

That Lancaster is the centre of colleges, schools and mental culture in the State, is unquestioned. h.

Fatal Surgical Operation.

A Pittsburg paper says : Some days since one Mrs. Ford a resident of Johnstown visited the office of Dr. A. G. Walters of this city, having with her a son about nine or ten years of age, who was suffering from an immense tumor that had grown upon the left side of his face and neck. The tumor was of the size of a man's slouch hat, and its weight and pressure caused a difficulty in breathing and was endangering his life. Surgeons in Philadelphia and elsewhere had been visited, and while they had pronounced death inevitable from it, uone were willing to undertake the risk of its removal. The mother stated that she was unable to go to any further expense in the matter, and Dr. Walters seeing an interesting case and being willing to attempt the removal of the tumor if it was desired, volunteered to stand the expense. He accordingly had the mother and child cared for in his building on Boyd's Hill, formerly used as a hospital, and there the operation was performed. Dr. Walters called to his assistance Drs. Cable and Wallace, and the mother insisted on being present. Chloroform was administered at first, but being found that it had the effect of making the 'patient's breathing more difficult and dangerous, its use had to be abandoned. The operation progressed slowly under the skillful handling of Dr. Walters, but the boy did not have the vitality to bear it, and a cessation of the work was several times necessary. Once he got so low that it took half an hour to revive him, and then only by the free use of stimulants. The tumor was removed, but the patient died soon after. On the discovery that the child was dead the mother became crazy with grief, and attacked the physicians. Dr. Cable had to run from a pair of shears with which she struck at him, while Dr. Walter was compelled to call on the police. A large crowd of persons gathered about the house, of course, with sympathy for the mother, and, for some time, much excitement existed in the neighborhood. Coroner McCallin was sent for, but upon learning that competent physicians had been attending the case he declined to hold an inquest.

It is proper to state that before undertaking the operation, the surgeons warned the mother of the boy that it was dangerous.

A Faithful Dog.

The Detroit Free Press says : Wednesday afternoon a half-drunken man named Croy, living in Canada, was wandering around the Potomac, accompanied by a big dog and having lots of money. The next morning he was found in an alley, sleeping a drunk-en sleep, and his dog was keeping watch over him, and would allow no one to come dog had been stabbed twice with a knife, and there were two extra bats in the alley, showing that thieves had come to rob the man, and that the dog had fought them
