Quite "a Sell."

A few days since an Arch street, Philadelphia merchant was surprised at the entrance of a man into his store, bearing on his shoulders a box about four feet long and eighteen inches wide. Depositing the box on the floor the porter departed without saying a word. Sundry wires protruding through small holes in the top and bottom gave to the box a very suspicious appearance, and what increased suspicion was the fact that it bore no address.

After carefully inspecting it, the merchant concluded that it was nothing more nor less than an "infernal machine," intended to blow him and his establishment to the golden shore. This opinion was strengthened by the fact that he had been a witness in the Udderzook case. He imagined that the machine had been sent by some of Udderzook's friends for purpose of

Now in Commerce street there lives a careless kind of a fellow who has a special fancy for dangerous adventure. Learning of the receipt of the box, and the fears of the recipient, he proposed to ascertain the nature of the contents, provided he might be permitted to retain them as his own, Only too glad to get rid of the infernal thing upon such easy terms the merchant consented, and the box was carefully carried to the yard in the rear of No, 529 Commerce street.

Notice was then given to every one on the premises to get out of the way of the anticipated explosion, and the man who had undertaken the dangerous task proceeded to the fifth story of the establishment, opened a window, and with a steady hand dropped a fifty-pound weight on the box. As the ponderous substance crashed through the wood, shivering it into splinters, there was a moment of painful sus-

Then from every window popped an eager head, and great was the surprise and merriment when, instead of an infernal machine, there on the pavement lay the remnants of a nicely prepared skeleton. The weight in its fall had broken it into so many pieces as to utterly destroy it.

A few minutes after a portly gentleman, almost breathless and covered with perspiration, reached the place, and eagerly inquired for the box. When it was pointed out his words were inadequate to ex press his indignation. He threatened to bring suit against the men who had wrought the rain; he threatened to 'articulate" them, and wondered why such idiots were permitted to breathe. A furniture car was sent for, the mutilated skeleton places in it, and it and the justly indignant owner departed.

A Mystery.

Mr. George O. Merrill of 24 State street, Newark, has been missing some weeks. He entered the oilcloth Lusiness with Alexander Buchanan, about a year ago, at Montrose, Westchester county. Mr. Buchanan has a daughter Maggle, to whom Mr. Merril was engaged. They were to have been married on the 9th of october. On the 3d Mr. Merrill left Montrose, saying that he was going to Newark to see his mother, and that he would return the next day. He did not return.

The wedding day came. Everything was in readiness, the minister and guests arrived, but Mr. Merrill did not appear.

Mr. Buchanan telegraphed to Newark and received a reply that Mr. Merrill had not been there. He has not since been heard of.

The body of a man whose stomach contained arsenic and who had evidently been poisoned and thrown into the river to conceal the crime was taken from the Hudson near the Jersey City shore a few days ago, and some of Mr. Merrill's friends thought that it was his. But a close examination of the clothing having been made Mrs. Merrill, his mother, is positive that they were not her son's.

On Wednesday it was rumored in Newark that Miss Maggie Buchanan had also suddenly disappeared, and some said she had joined Mr. Merrill in Canada. The cause assigned for Mr. Merrill's sudden departure was that the firm was heavily in deb and that Mr. Merrill had collected what money he could, and with the knowledge of Mr. Buchanan had mysteriously disappeared-the marriage engagement being broken or interrupted to make the case seem more mysterious.

This store was investigated and the young lady is at home. She has not been to Canada, and Mr. Buchanan and his daughter emphatically deny all knowledge of Mr. Merrill's whereabouts. The firm is in debt, but the debts are not so beavy, Mr. Buchanan says, as to embarrass him.

When Mr. Morrid went away from Montrose Mr. Buchanan thinks he had about $500 in cash. The theory advanced by his friends is that he was sobbed and murdered. He was a young man of good reputation.

A New way to Propose.

The other day Bishop Haven took an unfair advantage of a guahing youth at Marysville, in Marion county, Iowa. The Bishop was dedicating a Methodist Church and soliciting subscriptions for it, and a certain young man whispered that if a certain young lady in the congregation would marry him he would give $500 to the church. And the Bishop blurted right out in menting, and the young lady, like Barkis announced that she was willing.
