

COMBINE & BENEFIT PROPRIETORS.

Committee Meeting.

The Republican Standing Committee of Snyder County is requested to meet at the Court House in Middleburg, on Tuesday May 17, 1876.

A full attendance is requested as business of importance will be transacted.

The following are the names of the Committee:

- Chairman: J. H. SHINDLER. Secretary: D. R. MOYER. Members: J. D. Conrad, Joseph S. Uihl, West Weaver, J. J. Marten, Joseph Mink...

We call attention to the able speech of our Representative, Hon. John B. Factor, which will be found on the first page of this paper. Mr. Factor will understand the great interests of the country, as will be seen by the bold stand he has taken on the tariff question.

When the Republican party came into power in 1860 in Indiana, they received as a legacy from the Democrats a debt of $10,000,000. To this amount the war added $3,000,000. The Republican administration has paid off the debt $7,000,000, and hopes to wipe it all out before the 1st of January, 1871.

Mr. MAYNARD, of Tennessee, during the debate on the tariff bill, Monday evening, made the following very pertinent remarks: "The telegraph reports him as follows: 'Mr. Maynard said he was one of the Committee of Ways and Means who did not favor the reduction of the duty on pig iron from 50 to 37. He advocated the protection of the American manufacturers of iron for the benefit, primarily, ultimately, and all the time, of the consumers of iron. A policy that would send them abroad for their iron was not the policy that would ultimately cheapen iron. Nothing could be truer than this. It is only by a policy and persistently assuming that a protective tariff is a tax upon consumers that free traders obtain any converts.'

THE STATE SENATE.—The terms of the following Senators expired with the adjournment of the Legislature: Messrs. Davis, of Berke; Randall, of Schuylkill; Robinson and McIntire, of the double district composed of Blair, Centre, Huntingdon, Mifflin, Juniata and Perry; Nagle, of Philadelphia; Brown, of Lehigh and Northampton; Beck, of Lycoming, Union, and Snyder; Lowry, of Erie and Crawford; Lenderman, of Berks; Stinson and Brooke, of Delaware, Chester, and Montgomery, the district being double; and Howard, of Allegheny.

A FAVORABLE CONTRAST.—The monthly report of the bureau of statistics, now in press, shows that for the past seven months of the current fiscal year the gold value of our exports exceeds that of our imports by only $2,023,572. This represents a favorable contrast with the corresponding period of the last fiscal year, when the excess was $38,552,178. The great disparity between the excess for the first seven months of the present fiscal year, and that for the calendar year as shown in monthly report, No. 6, is accounted for by the fact that during the first months of the calendar year the imports largely predominated, while the exports rapidly rallied during the first seven months of the fiscal year, and thus reduced the proportion. The returns of our foreign trade for the month of January, 1876, alone exhibit an excess of exports of $3,495,333.

INDEED, the Northern Democracy are to be pitied. They were true to the South during the war, nor the South turns against them. The negro, as usual, makes the trouble. Read the following from the Augusta (Georgia) Constitutionalist, of a recent date: "Large fragments of the so-called Democracy of the Northern States show a great tendency to wear the old clothes of Radicalism. Wary of battling for principle they evince a hypocritical desire to abandon the high ground of the white man's party by seeking to out-radical the Radicals on the negro question. This is the supreme of folly. In the first place they sell their souls to vain. They get no negro votes to speak of; and secondly, they make it impossible for disgraced Republicans to become Democrats. If men are to choose between two unequal parties, they will adhere to a bold and successful faction rather than desert to a pusillanimous weak one. When Democracy shall become a second edition of Radicalism, no man who once admired it need mourn over its dissolution."

Jubilee of Colored Voters. On Tuesday last the grand event which for weeks and months the colored people of Philadelphia have been preparing on a scale of unparalleled splendor, transpired. It was the celebration of the great achievements of emancipation and enfranchisement—the act which have made the last decade historic. Editorially speaking of the great event, "The Day" says: "The demonstration made by the colored people of this city yesterday was very creditable to them. It was well arranged and managed, and the conduct of all participating in it was highly commendable. Excepting a few musicians, the procession, which was very large, was composed entirely of citizens of African descent. The banners, flags, and devices, dress and decorations, were generally appropriate. The colored militia made a very creditable appearance."

able community, and she, in her corporate capacity, as an object of odium. Sr. I am proud of dear old Pennsylvania, my native State. She was the first to adopt the Federal Constitution, and was in fact the key-stone of the Federal arch, holding together day preciously the representative State of the Union. You cannot strike her so that her industries shall be laid without those of other States feeling it, and feeling it vitally. She has no cotton, or sugar, or rice fields; but apart from these she is identified with every interest represented on this floor. Gentlemen from the rocky coast of New England and the gentleman who are here from the more fertile and hospitable shores of the Pacific, especially the gentlemen from the beautifully wooded shores of Puget sound, complain that their ship-yards are idle. Here, alas! are also idle, although they are the yards in which were built the largest wooden ships that the Government ever put afloat, and the largest sailing iron clad it ever owned. She has her commerce and sympathies with young San Francisco and our great commercial metropolis, New York. She was for long years the leading port of entry into the country. She still maintains a respectable direct commerce and exports, very largely through New York, for the same reason that London does through Liverpool and Paris through Havre.

Are you interested in the production of fabrics, whether of silk, wool, flax, or cotton? If so her interests are identical with yours, for she employs as many spindles and looms as any New England State, and their productions are as various and valuable. Are your interests in the commerce, are you the likes? Then go with me to the beautiful city of Erie and behold how Pennsylvania sympathizes with all your interests there. Are your interests identified with the navigation of the Mississippi and seeking markets for their products at the mouth of that river and on the Gulf? I pray to remember that two of the navigable sources or the American "Father of Waters" take their rise in the bosom of her Mountains, and for long decades her enterprising and industrious people have been plucking from her hills bituminous coal and floating it down that stream past the coal-fields of Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, and other coal-bearing States, to meet that of England in the market of New Orleans and try to drive it there. Gentlemen from the coal regions, where were the miners trained who first brought to light, with any measures of science and experience, the vast resources in gold and silver bearing quartz of the Pacific slope? They went to you from the coal, iron, and zinc mines of Pennsylvania. There they had learned to sink the shaft, run the drift, handle the ore, and crush or melt it. It was experience acquired in her mines that brought out the wealth of California almost as magically as we were taught in childhood to believe that Aladdin's lamp could convert base articles into that precious metal.

Nor, sir, are the interests of Pennsylvania at variance with those of the great agricultural States? Before her Representatives in the two Houses of Congress had united their voices with those of gentlemen from the West to make magnificent land grants for the purpose of constructing railroads in different directions across the treeless but luxurious fertile prairies Pennsylvania was first among the great agricultural States. And to-day our products of the field, the garden, the orchard, and the dairy equal in value those of any other State. Gentlemen from Ohio, notwithstanding the statement of the gentlemen from Iowa, [Mr. ALLISON] that you alone manufacture Scotch pig iron and suffer from its importation, as you alone have the black band iron, from which it is made, is it not true that when Pennsylvania demands a tariff that will protect the wages of her laborers in the mine, quarry, and furnace, she does but defend the interests and rights of your laborers and those of the every other iron-bearing State in the Union. Gentlemen from Virginia, Maryland and North Carolina, Pennsylvania is denounced because she pleads for a duty on coal that will enable you to develop your magnificent tide-water coal-fields in competition with Nova Scotia. The coal of your tide-water fields of Pennsylvania, which depend on railroads for transportation. On the banks of the James, the Dan, and a score of other navigable rivers, he coal-beds to within a few hundred feet of the vessels which are to carry the precious fuel away may come, and they lie nearer to the markets of New England than those of your coal-rivals at Nova Scotia; and when you were not here and Virginia and North Carolina were voiceless on this floor, I pleaded with the Thirty-ninth Congress for the duty of $1 25 per ton in order that Virginia and North Carolina, soon to be reconstructed, should be able to produce fuel for New England better and cheaper than Nova Scotia does and that it should be carried in New England built vessels, so that the thousands of people employed in producing and transporting it should constitute a market for the grain of the western farmer and the productions of American workshops. I might, Mr. Chairman, extend the illustration of the identity of the interests of Pennsylvania with those of the people of every other State, but will not detain the committee longer on that subject. In leaving I however reiterate my assertion that you cannot strike a blow at her industries without the people of at least half a score of other States feeling it as keenly as she will. She asks no boon from Congress. Her people, whether they depend for subsistence upon their daily toil, or have been so fortunate as to have inherited or acquired capital, to seek no special privileges from the Government. They demand that we shall legislate for the promotion of the equal welfare of all. They know that they must share the MEMBERS, Tenn., March 23, 1876. My DEAR SIR: Yours of the 23d inst. reached here during my absence, which will explain the delay in this reply. Senator Cameron made no such statement as quoted by you. He made no remarks to me at the time of my withdrawal from the Senate other than the expression of his good wishes for me. His relations with me had been uniformly those of personal kindness, and I have expected him as a duty to himself and to truth, to deny having made such remarks as have been imputed in the newspapers.

Men had not then reached the degree of publication which caused the withdrawal of States from the Union to be called "rebellion"; and the only remarks, so far as I know, made by any Senator, which had the least practical bearing, was Mr. Hale, of New Hampshire, that he expected us all soon to come back.

Very respectfully and truly yours, JEFFERSON DAVIS. In 1861, about two weeks before Mr. Davis left Washington to join his fellow traitors in the South, Senator Cameron met Mrs. Davis on Pennsylvania avenue. In reply to her question as to why he did not "come and see Jeff," the Senator said, "Why does not Jeff ask me?" "Well I ask you to come and breakfast with us to-morrow morning." "At what hour?" "Nine o'clock." "I will be there."

At the time mentioned Senator Cameron made his appearance, and after breakfast the conversation naturally turned upon the then attitude of the South. Davis was, as usual, outspoken in his secession views, and threatened that if it came to the worst and blood had to flow, war would be waged in the States North of Mason and Dixon's line. As may well be supposed, such words were not pleasing to the Pennsylvania Senator, and he answered in effect the rebellious section would be brought back into the Union, and that he firmly believed that, if the South persisted in its course, not only would the slaves all be set free, but that "One day a colored man will occupy your seat, Mr. Davis, in the United States Senate."

Davis, in great anger, turned to Senator Cameron, and said that the North, not the South, would suffer from the coming war, and that he himself would "lead a party to burn to the ground your property, Mr. Cameron, in Pennsylvania."

Of this incident Mr. Davis appears to be as forgetful as he has been of his oath. When the invasion of Pennsylvania was attempted by the rebel army, it of the generals received orders to destroy, if possible, the property of Simon Cameron and Thos. Stevens. They burnt that of the latter, and went on their way to destroy General Cameron's, when they turned upon their tracks.

This is a plain, straight story.—Cameron fulfilled his prophecy better than Davis his threat.—PENN.

The following bill relating to certain counties of the western judicial district of Pennsylvania, and of some adjacent territory, was introduced into the House of Representatives, at Washington, on the 12th inst., by Hon. Wm. H. Armstrong, and was read twice, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.—

It enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all process, in all prosecutions, and all judicial proceedings at law or equity, which shall hereafter issue, and in which the defendant or defendants shall reside in any of the following counties of the western district of Pennsylvania, viz: Wyoming, Union, Northumberland, Montour, Columbia, Sullivan, Bradford, Tioga, Lycoming, Snyder, Centre, Clearfield, Clinton, Cameron and Potter, shall be issued from and returnable to the courts of said district, to be holden at Williamsport, and together with all suits, prosecutions, or business heretofore begun, pending and undetermined arising from any of the said counties, shall be heard and tried there only; unless with consent of parties, the court shall direct the same to be heard or tried at the courts to be holden at Williamsport or Erie, in said district.

Horrible Murder. BALTIMORE, April 21.—The entire city was greatly excited to-night by the report that five horrible murders had been perpetrated by a mother who had cut the throats of four of her children and her own mother. The report proved true, the facts being as follows:—About four o'clock this afternoon, Mrs. Catharine Marsh, who with her four children lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwyer, at No 199 Canal street, a few squares from Bellair Market, committed the terrible butcheries, first killing her children and then assaulting her mother, Mrs. Dwyer.

The mother of Mrs. Marsh, in her ante-mortem examination to-night, stated that about 4 P. M., herself and daughter, Catharine Marsh, and three children of Catharine, being the only persons in the house at the time, Catharine asked her if she had ten cents, and on her answering "No," Catharine said she had ten cents, and put on her bonnet and left the house. She went a few doors and borrowed a butcher-knife, and then proceeded to District School, No. 13, and calling out her son James, aged eight years, cut his throat from ear to ear, nearly severing the head from his body. A little boy named Burnett came out of the school-room with James and witnessed the murder. Catharine then rushed at the boy Burnett, but he escaped her. Thence she returned to her home, and went into the back yard, where another son, William, aged seven years, was swinging his little sister, Mary Jane, being at play near by. She seized William, cut his throat, causing instant death, and then the daughter, nearly cutting off her head. Then she went in the house, and cut the throat of her youngest child, George, aged about 2 years and five months, the head being almost severed from the body. She next assaulted her mother, aged about fifty-four years, a very feeble woman, cutting her throat so severely that she cannot survive.

Mrs. Marsh, the murderer, is about 27 years, was born in County Kerry, Ireland, and has been in the United States about ten years. She was married some nine years ago in this city to William Marsh, a barber, who left her about eighteen months since to find employment elsewhere, and is now said to live in New York city. The reputation and character of Mrs. Marsh is said to have been very good, and she was undoubtedly temporarily insane when committing the murders. The faces of the murdered children, as they lay side by side to-night, are as placid and calm as if they were composed in a sweet sleep. They are dressed neatly in the same clothes they were killed. At 9 A. M. the mother, who is confined at the Eastern District police station, was conscious of her terrible deed.
