The Situation.

"The situation in France," says the Day of Tuesday, "appears to be extremely critical and the greatest anxiety prevails throughout the empire, but more particularly in Paris, where preparations are being made to resist the threatened invasion of the Prussian hosts. The effect of Saturday's disastrous defeat, like ours at the first Bull run, seems to have fired the people with the fullest determination to drive the invaders from the soil of France, to turn the tide of victory against Prussia, and to finally achieve a great triumph. But that there will be bloody work for them to do, ere this can be accomplished, the late battles and the present position and proclaimed purpose of the Prussians, plainly indicate.

"It is stated in a cable dispatch that Prince Frederick William is rapidly advancing into the very heart of France, and on a bee-line for Paris. While he is doing this with a large portion of the Prussian army, other portions of it are watching the French at Metz, which place the prince, it would seem, intends to leave on his right, preventing MacMahon, who is on his left, from joining or communicating with the French Emperor and that portion of the French army stationed at and near Metz. "Divide and conquer" appears to be the motto of the Prussians. Frossard is said to be falling back from the Saar with MacMahon towards Nancy, and if the Prussians can prevent both from communicating with the emperor, so much the worse for the French. The indications are that the French will be compelled to evacuate Metz and hasten to the defense of Paris. Napoleon has already shifted his headquarters to Chalons, half-way between Metz and Paris. This would free a large portion of the German army and to allow it to move on Paris in conjunction with Frederick William, and would transfer the grand theatre of the war to the very gates of that gay capital. This would seem to be apprehended by the French who are making every preparation to defend Paris.

It is due to the Prussians to say, that thus far they have shown consummate generalship and the highest soldierly qualities. They have brains at work in somebody's head and brave soldiers to accomplish their plans.—The dash of the German soldiers in this and other recent wars, is the subject of general remark. The Prussian generals seem to have adopted the tactics of the first Napoleon and the German soldiers to have exchanged their traditional phlegm for the elan of the French.

"We leave it for military strategists whether or not the rush of the Prussians into the heart of France and 'on to Paris' is a rash and dangerous movement. That this movement will unite all France in a deadly determination to defeat Prussia appears certain, and that it may get the latter into serious trouble seems, to a mere looker on, quite probable. It is not impossible that the intoxication of the first victory may lead to folly, as another sort of intoxication generally does.

The reported force of the Prussians actually in the field—eight hundred thousand—is immense, far exceeding that of France, according to any figures we have seen. Such a force, properly handled, must prove highly dangerous to France, unless Napoleon can meet it with an equal number of well trained and well-armed men.

"That another great battle will occur soon is generally believed, and seems inevitable from the situation of the armies, and, especially, the movement of the Prussians, who seem resolved to vigorously follow up their advantage."

Our Congressman and the Income Tax.

The heads of the editors of the Millheim are perfectly level on this subject. They forcibly express our views in the following words:—

"The Democratic papers are bitterly assailing every member of Congress who voted for the measure, and our own member, Hon. John B. Packer, comes in for a fair share of the Democratic abuse. We would be a little surprised at this, were we not so familiar with Democratic inconsistency. The leaders and organs of that party have ever been bemoaning the burden of taxation sustained by the poor man, and yet when a tax is levied that only reach the rich man, (for a man that has an income of over two thousand dollars can scarcely be called a poor man) they are clamorous for a repeal of that tax, and abuse all who vote to retain it. We confess, ourselves, that we bear no love to the income tax, but when it is a question as to whether that tax shall be retained, which is borne alone by the rich man, or tea, sugar, coffee, &c., heavily taxed instead, we favor the income tax by all means. And this was exactly the case in Congress. It was found that the Republican administration had managed the financial affairs of the Government so admirably, that a reduction of $5,000,000 per annum could be made without detriment to any interest,—The question was of what shall the reduction be made. Of course each interest favored the reduction in its department. The rich man desired the income tax abolished. But Congress chose the wise mean between two extremes. It reduced the tax on the poor man's tea, coffee, sugar, &c., and increased the exemption from $1,000, as heretofore, to $2,000. Our member of Congress, Hon. John B. Packer, is arraigned by the Democratic press of this district for his action in thus favoring the poor man and the man of moderate means. We are sure that our readers will agree with us in commending his action on this question, and the Republicans of the district have shown by unanimously re-nominating him that they have fully endorsed his course as their representative.

THE WAR.

Another Great Battle—Defeat of Marshal MeMahon by the Crown Prince.

BERLIN, August, 7.—King William sends the following despatch to the Queen:

Good News! A great victory has been won by our Fritz. God be praised for his mercy. We captured 4 000 prisoners, thirty guns, two standards, and six mitrailleurs. MeMahon during the fight was heavily reinforced from the main army. The contest was severe and lasted from 11 a. m until 9 p. m., when the French retreated leaving the field to us. Our losses were heavy.

LONDON, August 7—[Special to New York Herald.]—From official news received here the situation may be summed up as follows: The Crown Prince has driven McMahon's army from Weissenburg, Lauterburg, and Worth, and probably compelled the evacuation of Hagenau and Strasburg. The victory of General Goben at Saarbruck and Spriechen and the advance from Hamburg has driven Frossard's corps from Forbach and St. Avolt, and has probably rendered Bitche untenable. McMahon's corps is at present cut off from Metz.

The prisoners taken by the Crown Prince and General Goben number 8,000. The number of killed and wounded is unknown. Immense quantities, of army stores have been captured. There are rumors, which lack official confirmation, of the evacuation of Thionville, capture of Sicrck, and Hagenau, and the advance of the Prussians across the Rhine from South Baden. We know, however, that large Prussian armies are gathered at Saarlouis and the Southern part of Baden.

In the battel of Forbehweiler, near Worth, MeMahon had the support of five divisions of Failly's corps, and after the battle these divisions were unable to join their corps. The details of this battle are still very vague. It is said that many cavalry charges were made, but the Prussians had the mitralense (Kugelspitzen), which did us much harm.

BERLIN, August 6, via London—10 30 P. M.—The Crown Prince telegraphs the following bulletin from the field of battle:

"A victorious battle has been fought near Worth. MeMahon was totally beaten by the larger portion of my command. The French retired upon Bitsche. FREDERICK WILLIAM."

BERLIN, August 6.—Intense enthusiasm prevails throughout north Germany. In the large cities of the Confederation crowds assemble in the streets to hear the war news and make demonstrations of loyalty.

The headquarters of King William are at Cologne, Prince Fredrick Charles is in command of at Kreuznach, and the Crown Prince at Mannheim. Information has reached here that all Germans in France will be obliged to take out official permits to remain in the country.

The prisoners French so far taken in the war have been distributed around Berlin. The Prussians will prove by their treatment of them that, though they are captives, they are no longer enemies.

The Prince Fredrick William, commanding the South German army, has issued the following proclamation

"SOLDIERS OF THE 3D CORPS: Appointed to command you by the King I greet you, soldiers of Prussia, Wurtemburg, and Baden, united under my command. Your courage, discipline, and perseverence fill me with pride, joy, and confidence. In true fraternity continue to spread their flag over new victories—victories which, God aiding us, will insure honor and peace to united Germany."

MAYENCE, August 7—4 A. M.—The Crown Prince reports (August 6, evening): "In the battle which we defeated MeMahon, whose corps had been reinforced by divisions from the corps of Failly and Canrobert, we have taken two eagles, six mitrailleuse and at least 4,000 prisoners. General Baze was wounded. The loss was great on both sides."

PARIS, August 6.—The Journal Official of this mouing says that the French troops who, to the number of seven or eight thousand, were engaged in the affair before Weissenburg, had to contend with two Prussian army corps, including the picked troops of the Prussian Guard.

PARIS, August 7.—The Journal Official in its second edition to day publishes the following proclamation:

"FRENCHMEN: Up to this hour we have always given, without reserve, all certain news which we have received, and we continue to do so."

Last night we received the following despatches:

METZ, Agust 6—Midnight.—Marshal MeMahon has lost a battle. General Frossard, on the Sarr, has been obliged to retire. His retreat was effected in good order. All can be re-established. NAPOLEON.

METZ, August 7—3.30 A. M.—My communications have been interrupted to place myself in the centre of the position. NAPOLEON.

PARIS, August 7, via London.—The Senate and Corps Legislatif have been ordered to meet on August 11. The despatch from the Emperor announcing MacMahon's defeat and separation from the main army has caused the utmost consternation. According to the Emperor, however, all may yet be retrieved.

La Liberte tells the people of France to rise en masse and repel the invaders.

A despatch from the Emperor, dated at 3.30 A. M., on Sunday, says "communication with MeMahon having been severed, nothing was received from him until last night. General L'Aigle then announced that MeMahon's loss was great in the battle, but that his retirement was effected in good order.

"On the left the action began about 1 A. M., but was not serious until several masses of the enemy had concentrated, before which the 2d Corps momentarily held its ground. Between 6 and 7 P. M. the masses of the enemy became more compact and the 2d Corps retired on the heights. To-night all is quiet. I go to the centre of the position."

PARIS, August 7—[Official].—The following has been received:

"THE GENERAL HEADQUARTERS,
"METZ, August 7—8 30 A. M.

"That we may hold our position here, it is necessary that Paris and France should consent to great efforts of patriotism. Here we lose neither our coolness nor our confidence, but the strial is hard."

"MeMahon, after the battle of Kirchofen retired, at the same time covering the road to Nancy. The corps of General Frossard, which suffered severely, is taking energetic measures for defence. The major general is in the front."

11 A M.—The concentrating of the troops continue without obstacle. All other hostilities seem to have ceased.

PARIS, August 8—A. M.—The French war office having received confirmatory intelligence of the defeat of the french forces at Woerthe and Spiekeren, the news of the reverses of MeMahon's and Frossard's corps has been officially bulletined, and distributed throughout all the department of France.

METZ, August 8—A. M.—The Prussian advance has arrived at St. Avoil. The French troops are concentrating in great numbers at this point. Reinforcements from the east and detachments from Thionville and other points are constantly arriving and forming a formidable camp. The morale of the entire army is suberb. A battle between the two armies, it is expected, will be fought near here today.

Despatches from the emperor's head quarters last evening, state that Marshal MeMahon, commanding the first corps, is concentrating his scattered forces. He has also opened communication with General De Failly, commanding the fifth corps, lately located at Bitche.

The Prussian armies, which have been closely pressing the retreating commands of Generals MacMahon and Frossard, have ceased the pursuit, and the main body of the German forces occupied St. Avoid, and encamped there.

PARIS, August 8—2 P. M.—The national guard has been assigned to the defense of Paris. The troops clammor to be sent to war. The fortifications surrounding the city of Paris are being placed in preparation to sustain a seige or assault. Guns have been mounted upon the new fortifications and troops are garrisoned in the barracks.

All able bodied citizens of the municiple of Paris and the department of the Stats have been enrolled. All the citizens between the ages of thirty and forty have been incorporated in the ranks of the national guard. Those under the age of thirty have been enrolled in the Garde mobile.

LONDON, August 8.—The Prussians claim they will have 800,000 men on the theatre of war by this evening.

Advices from Rome state that the French disaster caused profound terror, and that the pope has asked Eugenie for just one ship to defend him from the Italians now organizing for the attack on papal authority and the papal dominions.

The latest information received directly from the seat of war this afternoon confirms the news in every particular of the Prussian victory.

The Prussians to-day occupy St. Avoid the place where MacMahon's headquarthrs were located on Saturday.

Marshal MeMahon's corps is in full retreat toward Nancy. It is thought in military circles he is endeavoring to form a junction with the French forces at Metz

Gen. Frossard is falling back from Saar river with MacMahon toward Nancy.

The corps in the late engagement suffered heavy losses in both officers and men.

Metz has been hurriedly placed in a state of defence. Every male person in the place has been pressed into service.

General Buffiniere is in command of the fortifications at Metz, and it is believed should MacMahon effect a junction with the forces there, that the victorious march of the Prussian army though France may be checked.

In the event of MacMahon being cut off from Metz, there is not the slightest doubt but that General Bazaine will be compelled to evacuate Metz, and fall back towards Paris.

Napoleon has left Metz, and to-day established his headquarters at Chalons-sur-Marne, a point just about half way between Metz and Paris.

The whole of the Prussian reserves commenced moving yesterday, and are rapidly coming up with the Prussian advance.

AN HONEST ENEMY.—There is about the following item, clipped from the Ottawa (Canada) Times, such charming frankness, that we desire to call the attention of our readers to it. It is from the London Spectator, and is a specimen of the way in which the admirers of internal taxation to so attractive a bit of English complacency:

'Without some protection, the United States could not manufacture for themselves at all. England would supply them with every thing they want—ships, houses, planes, saws, and even door-knobs—in iron;" and it adds, what is also true, "that the internal taxation of the United States is counterbalancing even the high protective, making the cost of production in England, in spite of the present discriminating tariff, less than in the United States."

It is not often that anything altogether so honest as the above finds its way into the English journals, and the editor of the Times deserves extensive recognition for his capacity for stating the truth, even when the truth is likely to become a weapon in the hands of his political enemies.

NORTH CAROLINA ELECTION.—Returns enough have been received to settle the fact that the Conservatives carry both houses of the Legislature by decisive majorities. They also carry the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, and Seventh Congressional districts, which makes the delegation stand five Conservatives and two Republicans. In the Third district Waddell, Conservative, is undoubtedly elected, though there are yet two counties to hear from. Careful estimates fix his majority at 375. It is conceded that Skipp, the Conservative candidate for Attorney General, carries the State.

GREENBRIER, White Sulphur Springs Va., August 6.—A terrible accident occured to-night on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad to the up train at Jerry's Run. The next car from the rear coach was precipitated down an embankment one hundred feet high and shattered to pieces. Twelve persons were killed and twenty wounded. The names of the killed and wounded cannot be ascertained until morning. Major Paxton and son, of Lexington, Va., are mortally wounded. There were about forty persons on the train.
