THE POST.

Middleburg----JANUARY 21st. 1875.

Anecdote of Judge Whitman.

The old gentleman told the following bit of his experience in my hearing, and he laughed heartily in the remembrance:

In the other years, when Maine was a district of Massachusetts, Ezekial Whitman was among those to represent the District in the Massachusetts Legislature. He was an eccentric man and one of the best lawyers of his time. In those days Whitman owned a farm, and did much work upon his land, and it so happened that when the time came for him to set out for Boston his best clothes were a suit of homespun. His wife objected to his going in that garb, but he did not care. "I will get a nice, fashionable suit made as soon as I reach Boston," he said.

Reaching his destination, Whitman sought rest at Doolittle's City Tavern. Let it be understood that he was a graduate of Harvard, and at this tavern he was at home.

As he entered the parlor of the house, he found several ladies and two gentlemen there assembled, and he heard a remark from one of the former,—

"Ah, here comes a countryman of the real homespun genus. There's fun."

Whitman stared at the company, and then sat down.

"Say, my friend—you are from the country?" remarked one of the gentlemen.

"Ya-as," answered Ezekial, with a ludicrous twist of his face.

The ladies tittered.

"And what do you think of our city?"

"It's a pooty thick-settled place, anyhow. He'e got a swapin' sight o' houses in it."

"And a good many people, too."

"Ya as—should reckon so."

"Many people where you came from?"

"Wal,—some."

"Plenty of ladies, I suppose?"

"Ya-as,—a fair sprinklin'."

"And I don't doubt that you are quite a beau among them."

"Ya-as, I beats—some—to meet in' an' singin' school."

"Perhaps the gentleman from the country will take a glass of wine?"

"Thank'e don't keer if I do."

The wine was brought from the sideboard.

"You must drink a toast."

"O, git out! I eat toast—never heard of such a thing as drinkin' it. But I ken give ye a sentiment."

The ladies clapped their hands: but what was their surprise when the stranger rising, spoke calmly, and clearly, and in tones ornate and dignified as follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen, permit me to wish you health and happiness, with every other blessing that earth can afford; and may you grow better and wiser with advancing years, bearing in mind that outward appearances are often deceitful. You mistook me, from my dress, to be a country booby, while I, from the same superficial cause, thought you to be ladies and gentlemen. The mistake has been mutual."

He had just spoken when Caleb Strong, the Governor of the State entered and inquired for Mr. Whitman.

"Ah!—here I am, Governor. Glad to see you." Then turning to the dumbfounded company—

"I wish you a very good evening."

And he left them feeling about as small and cheap as it is possible for full grown people to feel.

---

PASTORAL VISITS.—The Christian at Work has racy remarks on this topic, on which there has been of late considerable debate. It says to ministers:

Use common sense, and the Lord will take care of you and your reputation forever. Do not go about, as many ministers, with promiscuous demonstrations of affection. Kiss your own wife and children and sisters-in-law and cousins as much as you will, but do not feel called upon to treat with similar ardor the attractive people of your congregation, unless it be the deacons and sexton. Greet these last with a holy kiss as often as you have a mind to. Solomon says hard things about the women; but if he had contented himself with six or seven hundred less of them, he would not have had so much trouble. With ordinary prudence, there has not since the foundation of the world been a single instance where a good man's name has permanently suffered. A dark cloud may hover for a while but afterward the clear sun shine.

GRAPES FROM CUTTINGS.—The propagation of grapevines from cuttings may be done with very little trouble. Have a box two feet high, and about two and a half wide—the lengths as you require; fill half full of well pulverized soil; prepare the cuttings with three eyes; cut smooth below the bottom one; place them in slanting position with the last bud just above the soil; take six penny white cotton cloth, and nail tightly over the box; give warm soft water freely every evening; place the box in a sunny nook, and in a few weeks your box will be filled with grape-vines ready for potting or planting in borders.

—Erie has a horse which was driven sixteen miles in one hour and seventeen minutes, without fatigue.

—The Philadelphia detectives made 302 arrests during 1874, and recovered $78,500 worth of stolen property.

—Warren is excited over a rape case the villain being a boy of sixteen and his victim a girl of twelve.

—An advertisment of a farm for sale winds up as follows: "The surrounding country is the most beautiful that ever came from the Creative hand. The scenery is celestial divine; also two wagons and a yoke of steers."
