THE POST.

Middleburg, April 15, 1875.

ROCKING THE BABY.—George Washington Fenton drove the oxen at Armstrong's mill. He was a lank, cadaverous-looking individual, and maintained the dignity of the labor, by as little familiarity as possible. He had, however, an extensive family, and as they would eat, he had to shift, somehow, to feed them. When the lacteal fluid was surreptitiously abstracted from the neighbor's kine, or when a farmer went to harvest his sweet potatoes, he found them minus the tubers, the Fentons were making cottage cheese or feasting on roasted Carolinas.

One bright cold day Mr. Walker slaughtered a fat pig and hung it up in the smoke house. Next morning it was gone.

Walker and his son John found Fenton at home, and, in his wife's absence rocking the cradle and singing, "Hush-a-by baby." The object of their being made known, Fenton, with a hemorrhage of words, protested his innocence, and told them to search the house.

"I would accompany you," she added in a hushed voice, fearing to disturb the baby, "but if this little one wakes he will howl like a tr——."

Walker would not search the house without his presence.

"Gals can rock the cradle until we return," said Walter.

John seated himself at the cradle and rocked diligently. After a thorough but fruitless search, Walker returned and found John still rocking the cradle and the baby still sleeping.

Fenton thanked the latter profusely for his services as nurse, and the two friends departed.

When alone, Fenton executed a war dance, by the way of rejoicing. He had stole the pig and expecting the owl had left the pocker in the cradle as a substitute for the baby. Getting it up very nicely John had quietly rocked the object of their search while his father was looking for it. Consequently the Fentons had roast pigs and apple-sauce for dinner.

It is said that a "young gentleman" about eight years old recently sent his card to another young lady, a few years younger, and received the following answer: "Compliments of Mrs——. Mr. ——and regrets that previous engagements cannot be accepted. She will be at home all day without asking for it, but must be excused if she is trapped at seven and [illegible] at night."

The Great Cause of HUMAN MISERY

Just Published, in a sealed Envelope. Price 6 Cents.

A Lecture on the Nature, Treatment, and Radical cure of Seminal Weakness, or Spermatorrœa, induced by self-abuse, Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility, and Impediments to Marriage generally; Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits; Mental and Physical Incapacity, &c.—By ROBERT J. CULVERWELL, M.D. author of the "Green Book," &c.

The world renowned author, in this admirable Lecture clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of Self-Abuse may be effectually removed without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations, bougies, instruments, rings, or cordials, pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands.
