

THE NEW "DOMESTIC," A DOUBLE THREAD LOCK-STITCH MACHINE.

It carries all the features of the first Domestic "DOMESTIC" including the Automatic Tension, which was a new invention, and the most PATENT HOLLOW CONICAL BEARINGS on both the Machine and Sewing Feet.
The new and old styles, worked out with hand made Machine and Sewing Feet, are now on hand in this city, and you can see them at the new store, in the building formerly occupied by the Pennsylvania Bank.
TO THIS STATEMENT AND THE MACHINE ITSELF
We invite the attention of all, especially those having high mechanical skill or observation. W. L. M. S. WARD, Proprietor.

A MATTER OF POPULAR INTEREST.

We condense from the 24th Register the following report of the committee on the subject of the proposed Pennsylvania State Lottery, which was adopted by the Legislature on April 21st, 1876. A visitor and philosopher, who was present at the public hearing, has been asked to give his opinion on the subject. "What is the object of the Lottery?" "It is to raise money for the support of the public schools, and to provide for the redemption of the State debt." "What are the objections to it?" "It is a matter of public opinion. It is a matter of public opinion. It is a matter of public opinion." "What are the objections to it?" "It is a matter of public opinion. It is a matter of public opinion. It is a matter of public opinion." "What are the objections to it?" "It is a matter of public opinion. It is a matter of public opinion. It is a matter of public opinion."

Millions of Pigeons. A despatch from Moscow, Pa. dated April 11, says: A sickness known as the "Roach Wood" exists in a large portion of Pike county and northwestern Monroe county, this State. The Bonnett and Clint Waters, bark peddlers, were in the depth of the woods on Friday last, when they were startled by a sudden dancing of the sky and a noise like a heavy glof of wind. At the same time the trees about them began to fill with wild pigeons. They came from the northwest, and as far as the men could see, in that direction, the air was black with the birds. They settled down in the green as thick as bees, and in an incredibly short space of time the woods were covered by a heavy mass of pigeons. They landed in the trees, and some of them were seen to peck at the branches. They were all killed, and the bones were scattered all over the woods. The birds were all of one species, and were all of the same color. They were all of the same species, and were all of the same color. They were all of the same species, and were all of the same color.

Remains of Robert Morris. The remains of Robert Morris, the signer of the declaration of Independence, and the signer of the Revolution, are to be removed during this Centennial year from their resting place in Christ Church graveyard, Philadelphia, to a more suitable locality. It is proposed to erect a monument over his remains under the supervision of the bankers of Philadelphia.

Philadelphia Times, the other day, in speaking of the magnificent standards which are now being banded at public men, said: "Considering that this is the Centennial year, and that the people of the world will be our guests, wouldn't it be well to have a true banner, the banner of the Centennial?"

Pennsylvania sympathy for criminals has reached a point where the reaction ought to take place. People nowadays sentenced to jail live on good boarding houses, with comfortable rooms, and spend their time in reading or sleeping—in fact, in a life as they could wish, leaving their families in the hands of their out-door liberty. Great criminals are treated with a consideration and sympathy that is not to be met with in any other country.

This is the era of scandal. Every liar who can concoct a scandalary story is summoned to Washington to testify, and the travels from Maine to Texas and from Truth is putting his boots on. The lies uttered at Washington by the Democratic leaders is the same as that which was uttered many years ago by Father Ritchie, of the Richmond Register, upon the Virginia Democratic editors who waited upon him to learn what was to be the keynote of a then approaching campaign. The veteran Ritchie told it all down into two words—"three men."

It is the duty of every citizen to be sure to keep their spirits alive, and the moment one of them has expired, they should take care to get another to take its place.—Hindley Comment.

Mr. Dow has been singularly unfortunate for some time back. Only a short while ago, while in Port Richmond, he received two dispatches at once. One stated that his child had just died and the other informed him that his brother had been killed by the explosion of a locomotive. He should, and we know will, have the sympathy of the entire community in his many and grievous afflictions.

Lanaster has lost one of its most mysterious characters—a man aged sixty three.—Mary Henderson, supposed to be a witch. She was conspicuous to the last, and in anticipation of her death expressed a wish to have no religious services at her funeral. Had in different parts of the room were found $24 in money, $20 in greenbacks, some pennies, and the remainder in notes of old State banks, some good and some worthless. In another room were about two barrels of stone and bricks, &c., which had been thrown into the house by bad boys; in another room were knives, a gun, powder, shot and traps, and in another about four barrels of rakes, which had been given to her by different parties, and were dried up, besides pens, &c., tied up carefully, all of which she refused to eat because of her apprehension that some one was trying to poison her.

There is an English capitalist representing, so it is said, fifteen millions of dollars, now in North Carolina to establish a smelting furnace for the treatment of sulphurets and refractory ores. The establishment net complete will cost one hundred thousand dollars, and draw six hundred skilled operatives from England to utilize the ores of that and the neighboring States.
