The Unknown Future.

I know not what may befall me, God hangs a mist o'er my eyes, And before each step of my ouward way, And every joy he sends me comes As a sweet and glad surprise.

I see not a step before me,
As I trace the day of the year;
But the past is still in God's keeping,
The future His mercy shall cheer.
And what looks dark in the distance, May brighten as I draw near.

For perhaps the dreadful future Has less bitter than I think ; The Lord may sweeten the water
Before I stop to drink;
Or, if Marrah must be Marrah,
He will stand beside the brink.

It may be he was waiting For the coming of my feet, Some gift of such rare blessedness, Some joy so strangely sweet, That my life can only tremble With the thanks I cannot speak.

My heart shrinks back from trials Which the future may disclose, Yet I never had a sorrow But what the dear Lord chose ; And I sent the coming tears back With the whispered words, "He knows."

Be I go on, not knowing, I would not if I might, I would rather walk with God in the dark Than go alone in the light, would rather walk with Him by faith Than walk alone by sight.

and lay our heads on a soft pillow some cold winter's night, it sometimes seems as if nothing but a luxurious couch of this sort could be worth calling a bed. Yet a large part of the world enjoy no such arrangements for sleeping, and could not enjoy it if they had it. Our own ancestors reposed on a less luxurious fashion.
