Narrow Except — The Chronicle prin-ting office in this place made a very narrow escape from destruction by fire on last Sunday morning. About eight o'clock that morning large quantities of smoke were noticed coming out of an open window on the south side of the and a number of gentlemen at once broke open the door, and found the from portion of the office on fire. The flames had already reached as high as the ceiling, and the prospects of saving the building were exceedingly slim but the men at once ran for buckets and water. The heat was so intense that they could scarcely get up the stairway. A ladder was quickly put up to the shed in front of the office, and througi a window the water was thrown on the fore.
