Jackness whereas all the fashions come,
And when they disappear?
hy one brief meath should make a fright
Of what was 'such a dear?
Who knows how little bills can swell
To such predigious size?
Who knows, indeed, what's going on
Beneath his very eyes?

Who knows just Where her husband goes When 'husiness' keeps him out?
Who knows when best to wear a smile,
And when to wear a pout?
Who knows the time to face the fact When she's no longer young?
Who knows how best to speak her mind,
And how to hold her tongue?

Who knows the most convenient day
To bring a friend to dine?
Who knows the half of what he spends
On clubs, eigars, and wine?
Who knows one bannet cannot last
A woman half her life?
Who knows the woman is the same

Who knows why all the pretty girls
Are often last to go—
How all the ugly women wed
Who never have a heau?
Why small men fancy wives so large,
And large men fancy small?
Who knews, in fact, how half the world
Was ever made at all?

When Warren recovered his consciousness firemen were dragging him from the smoke which had assembled thickly to his room from the bank below, for the latter had been drank it. The young man paid no at

Since 1869, when the Democratic party, under the specious cry of economy and, reform, through the nulification of the laws of the State, seized the reins of government in Tennessee, he has been a leader of the most greceless and successful ring that ever cursed the country. A ring that has robbed that debt burdened State of over twenty-five million dellars, that has failed for seven years to pay the interests on the State debt, that has relinquished, under the cry of liquidation and extinguishment of the State dedt, twenty millions of securities held by the State, from the Raliroads, to secure their indebtedness, and yet has left the State forty millions in debt. A ring that has addedlargely to the burdens of investice, and has lafted to pay even the current expected in subduing the fire, which is supposed to have originated from a linguing somewhere about the isoned ciothing.
