It is said that a hen held up by one leg will not squeak half as much as when both legs are grasped. Thanksgiving Day is only about one week hence, and persons who are accustomed to purchase their poultry at night, a few hours after the fowls have retired, will do well to cut this out and paste it in their hats. So says an exchange.

Come, girls, take our advice. The weather is getting cold now, and winter is coming on. If you care anything for your health and comfort throw away your tilters, thin shoes, thin clothes,, and put on warm wrappings. Put something on your heads and heels that will keep them warm, and the icy lips of winter will kiss a bloom upon your pretty cheeks that will add beauty to your smiling faces and health to your shivering forms.

CHEWING TOBACCO IN CHURCH.—To see an old tobacco muncher take a chew in church, is always an amusing sight. He seems to labor under the impression that a certain number of the congregation have their eyes fixed on him, and so uses a strategy that would accomplish wonderful things if it only were used to some good object. The first movement is to put his hand carelessly in his pocket where he knoweth the sweet and delicious morsel lieth.—Keeping one eye on the minister and the other on his nearest neighbors, he gradually withdraws his hand and very unconcernedly rests his elbow on the pew. Then he takes another look around, bows his head upon the pew before him as if in silent prayer, and that "chaw tobacker" is then doing duty. Drawing his pocket handkerchief from his pocket he blows his nose, and would be willing to take a so'emn oath that no one saw him do it—[Ex.

HOW BARNS ARE BURNED.—A gentleman residing in an adjoining county narrowly escaped being burned out a short time since. He was walking through the entry facing his horse stalls, when there was a snap and a flash under his foot, and in an instant a quantity of loose hay lying near was in a blaze. Fortunately a bucket of water was at hand and the premises were saved from ruin. Some one of the farm hands, while working in the entry, had dropped from his pocket a parlor match, which, when trod upon, ignited; and had not the owner discovered it, his barn would have been laid in ruins. Doubtless nearly every conflagration we are called upon to record, happens by such careless means. A match is dropped about the building is trod upon by a horse or other stock, the fire blazes up, the barn is burned, and the "tramp" gets the blame. Farm hands should not, under any circumstances, be allowed to enter the barn or outbuildings with matches loose in their pockets.

MISSPENT EVENINGS.—The boy who spends an hour of each evening lounging idly on the street corners, wastes in the course of a year three hundred and sixty-five precious hours, which, if applied to study, would familiarize him with the rudiments of almost any of the familiar sciences. If, in addition to wasting an hour each evening, he spends ten cents for a cigar, which is usually the case, the amount thus worse than wasted would pay for ten of the leading periodicals of the country. Boys, think of these things. Think how much time and money you are wasting, and for what? The gratification afforded by the lounger on the corner or the cigar is not only temporary but positively hurtful. You cannot indulge in them without seriously injuring yourselves. You acquire idle and wasteful habits which will cling to you with each succeeding year. You may, in after life, shake them off, but the probabilities are that the habits thus formed in early life will remain with you to your dying day. Be warned, then, in time, and resolve that as the hour spent in idleness is gone forever, you will improve each passing one and thereby fit yourself for usefulness and pleasure.

The Sunbury and Lewistown R. R.

A meeting of the bondholders of the Sunbury and Lewistown railroad was held on Saturday, the 4th inst., at the Philadelphia Exchange. Mr. Joseph B. Brosius presided, and George Bull acted as Secretary. Mr. Jas. H. Campbell, on behalf of the attorneys for the bondholders, presented the second report of a committee who purchased the road on behalf of the bondholders at the time of the sale under the foreclosure of the mortgage. The report states that at a meeting held at the Girard House on the the 26th of January, 1876, the committee was directed to expose the road to public sale on March 9th, 1876, provided it was not disposed of at private sale before March 1st, the terms being that $15,000 should be paid at the time of sale. After the failure of private efforts to sell the road it was duly advertised and put up at auction on March 9th, when it was bid to $153,000, the committee having started the bidding at $150,000. The sale was then adjourned until march 23d, and Mr. J. K. Valentine became the purchaser for other parties for $161,000. After paying all claims the treasurer, Mr. Josiah Hart, has in hand $11,254, 21 for distribution. There is also a claim of upwards of $8,000 against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which it is believed may be compromised. The report was signed by Josiah Hart and Wm. Budd Deacon. Mr. Hart also submitted a resolution providing for the appointment of auditors to audit the accounts of the treasurer, and to make arrangements for the distribution of the money in his hands. The resolution was adopted and the auditors, J. M. Wherrill, J. B. Smith and J. B. McConnell, was continued.

Last week a post mortem examination was held on the person of a young married woman, in Chapman tp., who had been buried several days, upon the suspicion that she had been foully dealt with. A jury was empanelled, the examination was made by Drs. Amick Kershner and Backhause. No traces of posion or other evidence calculated to confirm the suspicion was discovered. The most remarkable feature in the case was, that the coffin contained a new born babe, which was not in the coffin when it was buried.—Tribune 16th inst.

'UP SALT RIVER.'—The Explanation of the Politicnl Slang Term—The origin of the eXpression 'up Salt River,' as applied to a defeated political party, was as follows:

Davy Crockett, the famous Kentucky Congressman, while a Whig candidate, was challenged by his democratic opponent to meet him on the stump in joint discussion. Crockett accepted, and the day and place were fiXed, but Crockett did not appear, and the people thinking him afraid to do so, rallied for his opponent and elected him. It afterwards turned out that Crockett, who had started for the place in a canoe propelled by a negro, had been landed in the forest at the head waters of Salt river, by his treacherous guide, who then swiftly padled off down the stream. Crockett was to good a hunter to starve in the wilderness, but he was totally unable to reach the appointed place in time, and gave it up, and with it his chance of election. Hence the phrase 'Up Salt River"—meaning that a party is hopelessly defeated.

Crockett, however was more lucky two years afterwards, being elected by a handsome majority.

BAD MANNERS AT TABLE.—To a nervous person, vulgar manners at the table are the most irritating of all things. It takes away the pleasure of eating, the relish for food, and in a measure unfits the digestive organs for their work. The fact is, it does a stomach absolute harm to be affected in this way during the process of digestion, and persons habitually annoyed by such things are sure in the end to suffer seriously from it. At no other place do the habits of vulgar people appear so vulgar as at the table. Trifling things that one would not notice in the parlor or in ordinary conversation about the house, become positively offensive when indulged at the table, and persons who have ever felt their stomachs turn at the disgusting sight of a knife ladened with food on its way to the jaws of a woman, or heard with a sickening of the nerves an uncontrolled belch from a man, must have known dyspepsia in all its most horrid forms. It is needless to protest that such cases are rare, and to claim that it is not often the case that men or women are so vulgar as to pick their teeth with pins at the table, or even to blow their olfactory organs. But they do both and all, and not all well-bred people are so fortunate as to escape enduring agc ny from such causes. Women who set themselves up to be teachers of morality, and who condemn coarse and rude talk in others, are guilty oftentimes of manners at the table that would really shock them if they knew how they affected others. The matter is one that demands consideration from all young and old persons, and if there are persons who know of themselves that they have vulgar habits at the table, whether it be of one kind or another, there should be no time lost in correcting them. There are innumerable ways in which vulgarity is exhibited, but the most commonly vulgar forms are those mentioned, and the greater number of people who are offenders at all, are offenders in those particularly mentioned wars.

Carving A Turkey.—There is no thing a young unmarried man likes better than to go to a dinner at the house of a friend and to be asked to carve the turkey. He never carved a turkey in his life, and with an old maid on one side of him watching him closely; and on the other side a fair girl for whom he has a tenderness, he feels embarassed when he begins. First he pushes the knife down toward one of the thigh joints. He can't find the joint, and he plunges the knife around in search of it until he makes mince meat of the whole quarter of the fowl. Then he sharpens his knife and tackles it again. At last, while making a terrible dig, he hits the joint suddenly, and the leg flies into the maiden lady's lap while her dress-front is covered with a shower of stuffing. Then he goes for the other leg, and when the young lady tells him he looks warm, the weather seems to him suddenly to become 400 degrees warmer. This leg he finally pulls loose with his fingers. He lays it on the edge of the plate, and while he is hacking at the wing he gradually pushes the leg over on the clean table-cloth, and when he picks it up it slips from his hand into the gravy dish and splashes the gravy around for six square yards. Just as he has made up his mind that the turkey has no joints to its wings, the host asks him if he thinks the Indians can really be civilized. The girl next to him laughs, and he says he will explain his views upon the subject after dinner. Then he sops his brow with his handerchief and presses the turkey so hard with the fork that it slides off the dish and upsets a gobuet of water on the girl next to him. Nearly frantic, he gouges away again at the wings, gets them off in a mutilated condition, and digs into the breast. Before he can cut any off, the host asks him why he don't help out the turkey. Bewildered, he puts both legs on a plate and hands them to the maiden lady, and then helps the young lady to a plateful of stuffing, and while taking her plate in return, knocks over a gravy dish. Then he sits down with the calmness of despair and fans himself with a napkin, while the servant clears the table. He dosne't discuss the Indian question that day. He goes home right after dinner and spends the night trying to decide whether to commit suicide or to take lessons in carving.—Ex.

West Beaver Institute.

At the call of the directors of W. B., ten teachers; namely, J. O. Wagner, H. Edmonds, Libbie Bowse, J. W. Steely, Mr. Glass, I. Spangler, H. Uish, J. Lepley, I. Filson and B. McGilsey met in convention at the Church School-house and organized an Institute by electing from their number the following officers: Pres. H. W. Uish, Sec., J O Wagner; Reporter to the Post, B. McGilmsey; Treasurer Libbie Bowes, and as reporters to the other papers in the county, the Pres. appointed J. M. L., J. O. W., and I. W. Spangler.

When the association was organized, it was decided that the institute work should be carried forward in the form of a model school; that the Pres. act as principal and impose the teaching of different branches upon such teachers as he may see fit, and that all teachers present participate in the recitations.

This being done primary arith., language, and primary reading were selected as subjects for consideration at the next meeting, Nov. 3), at Middleswarth's school. The teachers, given in the same order as the branches, are Mr Glass, J. M. Lepley and I Filson.

Before the close of the exercises, one of the teachers proposed the delivering of short lectures at each meeting; and, after a few minutes' discussion, it was decided that two half-hour lectures should be delivered at each convention, one at the opening of the morning and the other of the afternoon session.

The Pres. thereupon appointed four speakers two for the 30th of Nov., and two for the 9th of Dec.

After singing a few selections from the Silver Chords the institute adjourned. REPORTER

A CARD TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC.—For many years we have made two medicines suited to the ailments of a vast class of sufferers. Thousands of cures have been made by them and, in fact, the word failure could never be coupled with them. But within the last two years counterfeits of our medicines have sprung up dangerous in their close imitation of our Trade Mark. To secure the people we have placed upon each genuine box of Holloway's Pills and Holloway's Ointment the fac simile of the signature of our Agent, Mr. Joseph Haydock. To counterfeit this is felony. We shall relentlessly pursue any one who imitates this with the utmost vigor of the law. We most earnestly beg that the great mass of the American people will aid us in our efforts to protect their health, and help us in our task of bringing these most unprincipled men to the bar of justice. Unfortunately refuse to purchase Medicines purporting to be ours unless Mr Joseph Haydock's signature is attached to each Box of Pills or Pot of Ointment and the end will soon be reached.

The following is an extract from a description of Vineland, published in the New York Tribune, by the well known Agriculturist, Solon Robinson:

All the farmers were of the "well to do" sort, and some of them, who have turned their attention to fruits and market gardening, have grown rich. The soil is loam, varying from sandy to clayey, and surface gently undulating, intersected with small streams and occasional wet meadows, in which deposits of peat or muck are stored, sufficient to fertilize the whole upland surface after it has been exhausted of its natural fertility.

It is certainly one of the most extensive fertile tracts, in an almost level position, and suitable condition for pleasant farming, that we know of this side of the Western prairies. We found some of the oldest farms apparently just as profitably productive as when first cleared of forest fifty or a hundred years ago.

The geologist would soon discover the cause of this continued fertility. The whole country is a marine deposit, and all through the soil we found evidences of calcareous substance, generally in the form of indurated calcareous marl, showing many distinct forms of ancient shells of the tertiary formation; and this marly substance is scattered all through the soil, in a very comminuted form, and in the exact condition most easily assimilated by such plants as the former desires to cultivate.
