It is the manner of discharging the daily duties of life which forms our characters. Life seems to stretch out vast and illimitable before us, and in the uncertain future we look for wonderous change and great happiness, when in reality it is the daily execution of life's work to which we must look for contentment of mind, happiness in this world, and reward for a well spent life in the world to come. There are so many petty cares to be borne patiently, so many trifles to be done day after day and year after year with no permanent result. We must endure, without visible irritation, the whims and caprices of those around us. We must tolerate their faults and bear with their perverse tempers. We must overcome our own pevishness and proneness to fault-finding. All this is hard to do, but it brings its own reward.

A great lesson is like a heavy blow—in it there is rebound; and the heart is not always so sorely tried by it as it is with the harrassing vexations of everyday life.

The old Bishop of Litchfields motto, was, "Serve God and be cheerful," and if we all act out this advice daily, we shall find many a "hill of difficulty" leveled. We must take things as they come and to do so pleasantly is certainly wise. There is an anecdote of Socrates' that he once went to a fair where there were many beautiful and useful articles for sale. Looking around he exclaimed: "How many things I do not want!" The world is a fair of multitudinous proportions, but how many of us in going through it daily are satisfied like the heathen philosopher, with the blessings that it pleases God to give us? Rather are we like children, never contented with what we have not. That excellent Christian woman, Madame Guyon, used to say that wishing fitted not her condition, but to acquiescence suited her best. She knew the keynote by performing the duties of daily life faithfully—contentment.

Disraeli thinks that however a man may plan his life, he is the creature of circumstances. The unforseen happens and upsets everything. We are mere puppets." This sounds very plausible, for unforseen circumstances do much to affect our life; but if we will reflect we shall find the wires in our own hands. And every man is like a waterfall—he fashions his own channel, and cannot be turned aside by fortuitous events.

We must do penance now as in days of old, but not by making pilgrimages to visit the tombs of saints, but by battling daily and moral character by self denial and a patient performance of life's daily duties.

Gems of the Sights of Jerusalem.

The Wailing Place of the Jews is on the west side of the Temple enclosure; it is in a long, narrow court, and the huge blocks of stone of this part of the original wall. These stones are no doubt as old as Solomon's Temple, and the Jews can here touch the very walls of the platform of that sacred edifice. Every Friday a remnant of the children of Israel comes here to weep and wail. They bring their scriptures, and, leaning against the honey-combed stone facing it, read the Lamentations and the Psalms in a wailing voice, and occasionally cry aloud in a chorus of lamentation, weeping, blowing their long noses with blue cotton handkerchief's and kissing stones. We were told that the smoothness of the stones spots was owing to centuries of osculation. The men stand together at one part of the wall and the women at another. There were not more than twenty Jews present as actors in the solemn ceremony the day we visited the spot, and they did not wail much, merely reading the Scriptures in a mumbling voice and swaying their bodies backward and forward. Still they found picturesque and even pathetic groups; venerable old men with long white beards and hook noses, clad in rags and shreds and patches in all degrees of decadence; lank creatures of the tribe of Benjamin with the corkscrew curls; and skinny old women shaking with weeping, real or assumed. Very likely these wailers were as poor and wretched as they appear to be, and their tears were the natural outcome of their grief over the ruin of the Temple nearly two thousand years ago. I should be the last one to doubt their enjoyment of this weekly bitter misery. But the demonstration had somewhat the appearance of a rot and show performance. While it was going on a shrewd Israelite went about with a box to collect mites from the spectators. There were many more travelers there to see the wailing that there were Jews to wail. This also lent an unfavorable aspect, to the scene. I myself felt that if this were genuine I had no business to be there with my idle and prying curiosity, and if it were no genuine it was the poorest spectacle that Jerusalem offers to the tourist. Cook's party was there in force, this being one of the things promised in the contract, and I soon found myself more interested in Cook's pilgrims than the others. The Scripture read and wailed this day was the fifty-first Psalm of David. If you turn to it (you may have already discovered that the covert purpose of these desultory notes is to compel you to read your Bible) you will see that it expresses David's penitence in the matter of Bath-sheba.—[The Atlantic Monthly.

Is Your Hair Falling Out
OR TURNING GRAY!
If So Do Not Fail To Use
LONDON HAIR COLOR RESTORER.

The Great Reputation

Which it has attained at the large number of testimonials which are constantly being received are conclusive proof of its great value.

Proof Positive—A New Suit of Hair, Natural Color and Beauty Restored.

Dr. Swayne & Son—Some six years ago, I began to loose my hair, and continued to do so until the scalp became as bare as the palm of my hand, troubled also with a disagreeable itching fever, great heat and dandruff, small pustules would form, quite sore to the touch, and the remaining portion of the hair, on the side and back of the head, became quite gray. After using a number of Restoratives, (so called), without success, and my head nearly destitute of hair, I reluctantly commenced using the "London Hair Color Restorer and Dressing."

Now, through its use, candor and justice compel me to say to all that I now possess a new and beautiful growth of hair, completely restored to its original dark and glossy appearance, and I venture the assertion, the world furnishes no preparation equal to this; and I do conscientiously say to all who are gray or bald, hair dry and harsh or falling, to use at once this cleanly and delightfully perfumed article.

ISAAC N. MARSHALL,
Gauger, U. S. N., 830 Leonard Street, Phila.

Dr. Dalton of Philadelphia, says of it: The London Hair Color Restorer is used very extensively among my patients and friends, as well as by myself; I therefore speak from experience.
