Winter.

BY LONGPHILLOW.

When Winter winds are piereing chill.
And through the hawthers, blows the gale.
With selemn feet I tread the hill.
That overbrows the lonely vale.

O'er the bare upland, and away
Through the long reach of desert woods,
The embracing sunbeams charely play,
And gladden these do peolituous.

Where, twisted round the barren oak, The summer vine is beauty cluns, And summer winds the stillness broke, The crystal icide is hung.

Where, from their frozen urns, mute springs Pour out the river's gradual this, Shrilly the skater's from rings. And voices fill the woodland side.

Alas I how changed from the fair scene.
When birds cang out their mellow lay,
And winds were soft, and woods were green,
And the song cassed not with the day.

But still wild music leabroad, Pale, desert woods I within your crowd: And gathering wulds, in horse scoord, Amid the vocal reeds pips loud

Chili airs and wintry winds f my ear.
Has grown familiar with your song
I hear it in the opening year—
I listen, and it choers me long.

Select Tale.

How They Got Ready.

When they reached the depot Mr. Man and his wife gazed with unspeakable disappointment at the receding train which was just pulling away from the bridge switch at the rate of a thousand miles a minute, Their first impulse was to run after it, but as the train went out of sight and whistled for Sagetown before they could act upon the impulse they remained in the carriage and disconsolately turned the horses heads homeward.

"It all comes of having to wait for a woman to get ready." Mr. Man broke in with very grimly.
"I was ready before you were," replied his wife.

"Great heavens!" cried Mr. Man. in irrepressible impatience, jerking the horses' jaws out of place, "just listen to that ! and I sat out in the buggy yelling for you to come along until the whole neighborhood heard
