HAYES ELECTED

The Electoral Commission, on Friday by a vote of 7 to 8 decided that Louisiana cast its electoral vote for Hayes & Wheeler for President and Vice President. The only State now remaining in dispute is Oregon, as to the eligibility of one of the Hayes electors, and as this State gave the republican candidates over 1000 majority, we have no doubt that it will be added to the Hayes column, thus securing the three disputed States, Florida, Louisiana and Oregon, and a majority of the Electoral vote. It is now safe to say that the republican candidates have been honestly elected, and will be inaugurated on the 5th of March as President and Vice President of the United States for the next four years.

TEXAS appears to be eight very stubborn men on the electoral jury who will not yield to the other seven.

FOR selling liquor on election day, after the polls had closed, Benjamin Rodgers, of the Ross Tree Hotel, Delaware county, was fined $250 by the court. His legal adviser had told him that he could sell without violating the law.

THE opinion freely expressed by gentlemen of the legal profession, that the five Judges of the Supreme Court of the United States would be a unit on the legal questions before the commission has not been sustained by the results thus far.

THE Eastern question still perplexes Europe. Russia and Turkey are earnestly preparing for war, notwithstanding all assertions to the countrary. Russia, in Europe, has a population of 71,739,989, while European Turkey has a population of 8,500,000. The population of the whole Turkish Empire is 47,640,000; of the Russian Empire is 86,536,000. Russia has 12,148 miles of railroad, and Turkey 955 miles.

A WORD to the disappointed at Washington. The party which filibusters is lost. The people will not tolerate any attempt to defeat the findings of a Commission founded on a compromise and finally accepted by both parties, and will not soon forgive the party which prolongs by a single unnecessary day the uncertainty of business. Dispatch your business, gentlemen!—N. Y. Tribune.

A narrow escape from a horrible death, in a manner similar to several that are recorded in railway annals, is given by the New Haven Palladium: While a woman was walking up from the steamer at Belle dock, last week, on Monday night, both her feet became caught in the rails of the railroad, at the Bridge street crossing. The switch engine was approaching, and fright deprived her of the power of speech. Fortunately the engineer saw her soon enough to stop before reaching her, and by unbuttoning her gaiters she was released from her perilous situation.

☞A sharper was standing at a street corner in Cincinnati. A man who looked unsophisticated approached with a sealed package, and asked the sharper to read the address for him. On the package was written, '$1,000 Government bonds,' with the name "James Harper," and a number. "I'm James Harper, I'll take the package," said the sharper, thinking that he had a chance to swindle. The other handed over the package, after simulating hesitation, and said that two dollars were due him for carriage. The money was paid, and the package was subsequently found to contain blank paper only.

THE country now has a right to demand from the Democrats, whose threats and protests caused the acceptance of this measure, and whose votes made it a law, prompt and unquestioning submission to the decision. They were not willing to trust the officer charged by the Constitution with the duty of counting the votes, and at their demand their claims were referred to the unknown judge. They have no right to talk any longer of fraud; no right to pretend that they have been wronged; in the preparation of the case they have had every advantage, and let the decision of the Tribunal to which they agreed to submit the case against them. As to Florida, at least, the time has come for them to acquiesce in decent silence.—N. Y. Tribune.

A BRIGHT FUTURE.—It is believed that the four years upon which the country will enter after a President is inaugurated will prove a period of the most healthful prosperity, provided that there is no tampering with the tariff or the currency to upset things. The symptoms of this are visible on every side, and one of them is the popular impatience to have the Presidential question settled. So convinced are many that good times are near at hand that they are taking advantage of the present low price of labor and using capital in the country to manufacture in anticipation of the coming improvement in business. Those logs into the cost of which bills of labor largely enter can be produced [illegible] more economically than they will be again for years. It is a question for people to think of, whether times do not hold out to them in respect an opportunity of the greatest importance.

[illegible] man by the name of Weldon [illegible] Philad., attempted to assassinate Gov. Packard from Louisiana, [illegible] New Orleans, a few days ago.

Special Correspondence.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Feb. 13, 1877.

We are rapidly nearing the end, so far as the labors of the arbitration Commission can determine the person of our next President; and all the heart burnings, jealousies, disappointments, and bad blood engendered during the campaign and the indecisive eleven weeks which have elapsed since that event, and growing out of the decision in the Florida case finds expression in a ceaseless flow of abuse and profanity, whenever wine bibbers, whisky guzzlers political and other gamblers, place hunters unreconstructed rebels unexpectant copperheads and other aspiring statesmen of their kindred order mostly do congregate. Out of more than two hundred Democratic papers coming from almost every State and Territory of the Union consulted with special reference to ascertaining their sentiments of the Democratic Congressmen less than a score of the whole numbers opposed or even attached any conditions to their support of it. Outside of the Democratic delegation in Congress and among the leading men of the party who were gathered here to urge its adoption, the sentiment in its favor was intensely overwhelming. The oracles of the party announced it as a Democratic measure and all their followers shouted amen. The party stood solemnly pledged to facilitate the working of the Commission representatives had created, and to cheerfully acquiesce in its conclusions. Though it was not a favorite with the Republicans, and the party press, outside of our largest cities opposed it, as soon as the bill became a law all factious opposition ceased and every one knew the result whether favorable or otherwise would be quietly accepted. Now what do we see? Regardless of solemn pledges, upon the first adverse decision a powerful faction of the Democratic party leaders, evidently supported by the masses of Tilden's adherents are found plotting to defeat any decision until the advent of the fourth of March shall render one of no effect. No one familiar with the antecedents of the organization should feel the least surprised at such a shameless exhibition of mendacity.

Whether this element led by Field, Nnott Blackburn and others of that ilk control the party remains to be seen. A serious rupture between them and those of their party associates who are too honorably or too politic to thus ignore their record of the other day is eminent. At a caucus at Hewitt's house the other evening this revolutionary element was knocked on the head and temporarily suppressed. The fact is Southern Democrats who went into the field and beggared themselves and their section in fighting a treasonable war against the Government which was planned and fomented by the heartless, calculating, copperhead chief of the North, while they got rapidly rich in the rear of the armies gathering up the spoils, have come to have a more correct appreciation of the character of their professed allies; and all the signs point to a wholesome withdrawal from such an unequal alliance of these Southerns, who are truly desirous of a reestablished Union and their identification with the great national party which fought them when they were wrong but which will welcome them to its ranks if they are ready to throw the crazy theories of government exiled at the war, and are willing to come as advocates and workers in the cause of human equality before the law, as against that spectral social distinction of color which is the foundation stone of domestic governments and whose recognition and adoption saved the South for years and made it essentially anti-republican. A brief review of the two [illegible] began at set out to [illegible] to resume the count. Of course the House had previously decided by a party vote not to accept the decision relative to Florida; but as the concurrence of the Senate could not be obtained to reject the vote of the Commission, that State was first counted for Hayes and then Mr. Ferry went rapidly forward until Louisiana was reached when a large number of separately worded objections were formally filed against counting the certificate of the Hayes electors. &c. Ferry thereupon announced that all the evidence could be referred to the Commission for its decision. Some New Orleans wags perpetrated a rather humorous burlesque on the conventional certificate, in which a crowd John Smiths swore upon the strength of the "goody half-dozen" that they had cast the vote of the State for "kind old Peter Cooper and the honey sweet haste on the ticket Clare. As the papers were regular in form their reading could not be dispensed with without unanimous consent, and Mr. Mills insisted that they be read through. Some few of the members and spectators were disposed to greet their [illegible] solemn at such a [illegible] in vain," but the most of those present took the matter good humoredly which was the most philosophical thing to be done under the circumstances.

The proceedings were less dramatic and more monotonous than [illegible] on the first day of the count. Emotional correspondents will no doubt make the most of it; but it was as devoid of interest as any ordinary day's proceedings so far as outward manifestations of the intense excitement concerning the actors was concerned.

Almsgiving and "honest charity" have become quite fashionable through several societies and other entertainments by day and night, and so runs the world (of Washington) away.

Hass' Expectorant is no humbug. I would not be without it if it would cost five dollars a bottle.

J. H. HOOVER,
Pres. Citizens National Bank,
Ashland, Pa.

A JUST VERDICT.

I have dispensed Hass' Expectorant among my patients, and it has proved more effective, than any other medicine of the class that I have been using in my medical career. And even in my own case, in very ordinary colds, as well as dangerous ones, I derived the greatest benefit from its employment. I feel strongly averse to recommend to the use of any secret nostrums or patent medicines, but the universal reputation of the Expectorant has induced me to give it a fair trial, and not only have I realized its reputed virtues and merits, but even more than my most sanguine expectations. Hoping that every one may convince himself by its own trial, and that the Expectorant may reach the [illegible] to whom it may be benefited by it, I remain,

Truly yours,
I. LEO. SINGLE, M. D., Green Briar, Pa.

THE BEST.
