Robinson:

All the farmers were of the "well to do" sort, and some of them, who have turned their attention to fruits and market gardening, have grown rich. The soil is loam, varying from sandy to clayey, and surface gently undulating. Intersected with small streams and occasional well meads we, in which deposits of peat or muck are stored, sufficient to fertilize the whole upland surface after it has been exhausted of its natural fertility.

It is certainly one of the most extensive territle tracts, in an almost level position, and suitable condition for pleasant farming, that we know of this side of the Western prairies, we found some of the oldest farms apparently just as profitably productive as when farst cleared of forest fitty or a hundred years ago.

The geologist would soon discover the cause of this continued fertility. The whole country is a marine deposit, and all through the soil we found evidences of calureous substances, generally in the form of indurated calcareous marine deposit, and all through the soil we stance is actatered all through the soil, in a very comminuted form, and in the exact condition most easily assimilated by such plants as the former desires to cultivate.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care. Its effects are as wonderful and as satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all cruptions, itching and dandruff. It gives the head a cooling, soothing sensation of great comfort, and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean. By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong. As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

What is Trouble.

A company of Southern ladies were one day assembled in a lady's parlor, when the conversation chanc-ed to turn on the subject of earthly affliction. Each had her story of peculiar trial and bereavement to repeculiar trial and bereavement to re-late, except one pale, sad-looking woman, whose lusterless eye and de-jecting air showed that she was a prey to the deepest melancholy. Suddenly arousing herself, she said in a hollow voice, 'Not one of you know what trouble is.'

Favors.

If you want to be happy never ask a favor. Give as many as you can, and if any are freely offered, it is not necessary to be proud to take them; but never ask for or stand waiting for any. Who ever ask-ed a favor at the right time? To be refused is a woeful stab to one's pride. It is even worse to have a favor granted hesitatingly. We suppose that out of a hundred who petition for the least thing-if it be only an hour of time—ninety-nine wish, with burning cheeks and aching hearts, that they had not done so. Don't ask favors of your near-est friends. Do everything for yourself, until you drop, and then, if any one picks you up, let it be be-cause of his own free choice, not from any groan you utter.—But while you can stand, be a soldier. while you can stand be a soldier.—
Eat your own crust, rather than feast on another's wine. The world is full of people asking favors, and people try to grant them. Love or tenderness should never be put aside when its full bands are stretched towards you; but so few love, so few are tender, that a favor asked is apt to be a mill-stone around your neck even if you gain the thing you want by the asking. As you cast your broad on the water, and it returns, so will the favor you ask, if unwillingly granted, come back to you when you least expect of desire.

The Blagest of the favor you ask, if unwillingly granted, come back to you when you least expect of desire.

The Blagest of the favor you desire.
