Only Remedy for Hard Times.

Change Your Surroundings.

All wanting FRUIT FARMS, especially adapted to the growth of the VINE, where it is an established success and pays LARGE PROFIT. The land is also adapted to the growth of Peaches, Pears, Apples and small fruits; also, Grain, Grass, and Vegetables.

Many hundreds of excellent VINEYARDS, ORCHARDS and FARMS can now be seen.

THE LOCATION is only 34 miles south of Philadelphia, by Railroad, in a mild, delightful climate, and at the very doors of the New York and Philadelphia Markets. Another Railroad runs direct to New York.

THE PLACE is already Large, Successful and Prosperous. Churches, Schools and other privileges are already established. Also, many factories of Shoes, Clothing, Glass, Straw Goods and other things, at which different members of a family can procure employment.

It has been a HEALTHY RESORT for some years past for people suffering from pulmonary affections, Asthma, Catarrh, Ague, and debility; many thousands have entirely recovered.

A new Brick Hotel has just been completed, 150 feet front, with bank buildings, four stories high, including French roof, and all modern improvements for the accommodation of visitors.

Price of FARM LAND $25.00 per Acre, payable by installments, within the period of four years. In this climate planted out to vines, 20 acres of land will count fully as much as 100 acres further north.

Persons unacquainted with Fruit Growing, can become familiar with it in a short time on account of surroundings.

Five Acres One Acre, and Town Lots in the towns of Landisville and Vineland, also for sale.

Whilst visiting the Centennial Exhibition, Vineland can be visited at small expense.

A paper containing full information, will be sent upon application to CHARLES K. LANDIS, Vineland, N. J., free of cost.

The following is an extract from a description of Vineland, published in the New York Tribune, by the well known Agriculturist, Solon Robinson:

All the farmers were of the "well to do" sort, and some of them, who have turned their attention to fruits and market gardening, have grown rich. The soil is loam, varying from sandy to clayey, and surface gently undulating, intersected with small streams and occasional wet meadows, in which deposits of peat or muck are stored, sufficient to fertilize the whole upland surface after it has been exhausted of its natural fertility.

It is certainly one of the most extensive fertile tracts, in an almost level position, and suitable condition for pleasant farming, that we know of this side of the Western prairies. We found some of the oldest farms apparently just as profitably productive as when first cleared of forest fifty or a hundred years ago.

The geologist would soon discover the cause of this continued fertility. The whole country is a marine deposit, and all through the soil we found evidences of calcareous substances, generally in the form of indurated calcareous marl, showing many distinct forms of ancient shells, of the tertiary formation; and this marly substance is scattered all through the soil, in a very comminuted form, and in the exact condition most easily assimilated by such plants as the former desires to cultivate. GRIMM & DILL,

Attorneys & Councelors AT-LAW,

Office Near the Post Office.

Many a man sits in his own house, full of benevolent desires, longing to do good to somebody, anxious to make those around him happy, but he does not know how, and seems to himself a useless and merely speculative being, incapable of doing good. Let that man only put on his hat and visit the garrat of some poor family, or assist his poor relatives, and it will do good a thousand ways. The money he throws away daily in luxury would feed and clothe a dozen sick and starving families. Such benevolence will do more to promote economy than it will ever cost. It will all come back to him who gives in saving him from foolish luxuries. It will show up the hollowness of he follie s on which he wastes what might set up many a family. Fifty dollars extra on a piano might seem much; but there is many a poor and honest widow to whom a fifty-dollar sewing machine would be a fortune; and she could in time even repay the money it cost, to be lent in the same form to another and another.

HATE NOT.—Hate not. It is not worth your while. Your life is not long enough to make it pay to cherish ill-will or hard thoughts. What if this man has cheated you, or that man has played you false? What if your friend has forsaken you in time of need, or that one, having won your utmost confidence, your warmest love, has concluded that he prefers to consider and treat you as a stranger. Let it all pass. What difference will it make to you in a few years, when you go to the undiscovered country? A few more smiles, a few more pleasures, much pain, a little longer hurrying and worrying through the world, some hasty greetings, abrupt farewells, and our play will be 'played out,' the injured will be laid away and, ree long, forgotten. Is it worthy to hate each other?

SKINNED ALIVE.—The Mayfield (Ky.) 'Democrat' tells a story of the disappearance of the eleven-year-old daughter of a farmer of Ballard county, whom a negro bore to the woods and tied to a tree, keeping her there for several days, coming at night to bring her food and water and to assault her. When the farmer found her he told her to remain quiet till night and he would procure assistance, and when the negro came back that night they would secure him. When they had captured him the girl was asked what should be done with him and she replied, 'Skin him alive,' which they proceeded to do immediately. They commenced at the crown of his head and stripped the skin down to his feet. He only survived about five minutes after the operation.

OFFICE—

Brigam Young Dead.

He Leaves Millions of Money and Eighteen Wives.

Brigham Young died at Salt Lake City Wednesday afternoon, 29th August, at 4 o'clock, of cholera morbus. He was born in Whittingham, Vermont, June 1, 1801. Shortly after his birth his father removed to New York State, which was his home until he embraced Mormonism, forty-five years ago.—Brigham's parents were very poor, and could only afford [illegible] to 1832 joined the Mormons at Kirtland, Ohio. Joseph Smith, the Mahonet of the Mormon creed, was also a native of Vermont and Young's junior by four years. By the aid of Sidney Rigdon he produced the "Book of Mormon," which he pretended to have found by angel guidance on plates; and with this he organized a church at Manchester, N. Y. in 1839, and the next year he removed to Kirtland, where he built a church, started a wild cat bank and was tarred and feathered for fraud, in company with some of his disciples. Brigham was a suitable co-laborer with Smith; was speedily made an elder and an apostle, and was engaged in proselyting until the whole party was driven from Kirtland in 1838. They escaped to Far West Missouri, but were speedily driven away for immoralities and settled at Nauvoo, Ill. There Smith concentrated all powers, divine and human, in himself before he was shot in June, 1844. Young aspired to the succession; and having shown more ability than any other man, was unanimously elected President. He excommunicated his great rival, and when the city was attacked in 1846 led his followers to their promised land in Utah. The migration was most prudent, and, indeed, absolutely necessary; and it was conducted by Young with great skill and energy against very great difficulties and dangers.

In the summer of 1847 the new Prophet founded Salt Lake City, and two years later organized the territory of Desert, of which he was the absolute ruler. He laborered zealously to attract immigrants, and felt himself strong enough in number and distance to defy the authority of the Union when a non-Mormon was appointed as his successor in 1854. For three years he was not seriously interfeared with, and his apostles sent in many recruits from various portions of Europe. His boldness grew with this growing power, and it was not until 1857, when a military force of two thousand and five hundred men was sent out with Governor Cumming, that his pretentions were curbed. Immediately after his arrival at Salt Lake Young promulgated the doctrine of polygany as a reserved revelation of Smith. The assertion was denied by Young's family, and led to a schism in the church. Some of the early followers of Smith seceded with his sons, but Young incorporated the doctrine as a church tenet and maintained it to the last.

In the administration of his great powers the late leader showed signal sagacity and power. He conciliated the neighboring Indians. He organized and directed the Danites a band of armed men responsible only to him, by whom emigrants were plundered and killed and the disaffected were controlled. He made industry the cardinal basis of mirit, and by a shrewd system of tithes accumulated a great share of all the products of labor in his own hand. His apostles were sent into all parts of Europe, to the Sandwich Islands and to Mexico. He is reported to have large investments in Europe, and did certainly control no inconsiderable political power in congress for some years.

Young seems to have had no difficulty in his domestic relations, although he had eighteen wives and seventy children, until a suit in divorce was commenced against him by Ann Eliza, who was only partially successful before the courts. He was possessed of a fearful greed for money; he truly loved it, no miser over gloated over his gold with greater ecstacy, although he informed the faithful that 'he liked money only for the good he could do with it,' and all that he had the Lord had given him. It is believed that he was worth many millions of dollars, but he never could have accumulated anything like one million had he not had the tithing office at his back and been perfectly unscrupulous 'in a trade.'

The life of Brigham Young is a singular commentary on the cruelty of the age. His death is the earnest of the dissolution or departure of the body he controlled. It was organized, held together and directed by his personal sagacity and power. It is improbable that a successor can be found who will unite the same characteristics in the same degree; and greater skill and greater power are required to continue what he founded. So far as he is personally concerned there is no reason to suppose that he viewed the Mormon doctrine as anything but a handle to power and profit but he used it most efficaciously to secure those ends.
