on the Mists Haro Cleared Away.

When the mints b/re rolled in splender From the basely of the hills. And the emobile, warm and tender, Fails in hissey on the tills. We may read lots's shining letter In the raimbow of the spray : We shall know each other better When the mists have cleared away. We shall know as we are known, Never more to walk alone, the dawning of the morning. When the mists have cleared away.

If we orr is buman blindness, And forget that we are dust, If we miss the law of kindness, If we miss the law of kindness, When we struggle to be just, Snowy winds of peace shall cover All the pains that cloud our day, When the wary watch is over. And the muts have cleared away. We shall know as we are known, Never more to walk aloue, In the dawning of the morning. When the miss have cleared away.

When the silvery mists have veiled us From the facts of our own. Oft we deem they love has failed us, Of we down they love has failed us, And we trend up path alone ; We should see thim nears and truly, We would trustthem day by day, Neither love or tisme unduly. If the mists hav cleared away. We shall know as we are known, Near more trusther love Never more towalk alone, In the dawning of he morning. When the mists juve cleared away.

When the mists have risen above us, As our Father knews His own. Face to face with those that love us, We shall know as we are know ; Love beyond the oriset meadows Pleats the golden fringe of day ; Heart to heart we bide the shadows Till the mists have cleared away. We shall know as we are known. Never more to walk alone. When the day of light is dawning. And the mists have cleared away.

But he saw that was all right, and it was plain enough it was all meant for him. 'But I would like to see myself eating that all alone, even if I could, when my mother has only potatoes for ber dinner, and a little sup of tea. I'll save her a good half of everything.' A short Temperance Story. At a certain town meeting in Penn-sylvania, the question came in wheth er any person should be licensed to sell rum. The clergyman, the deacon, the physician, strange as it may now appear, all favored it. One man on-ly spoke against it, because of the mischief it did. The question was about to be put, when there arose from one corner of the room a mis-erable woman. She was thinly clad, and her appearance indicated the
