The Post.

Middleburg, JAN. 31, 1878.

J. CROUSE, Editor & Proprietor.

GOLD touched 101¼ in New York, Monday a week, the lowest point reached since May 1, 1862.

THE Senate and House at Washington both voted down, last week, resolutions proposing to hear the lady suffragists.

APPLICATIONS have already been received from American exhibitors for three times the amount of space allotted to the United States at the Paris Exposition.

THE great Voorhees says "this fair land will be again convulsed in agony," if repudiation is defeated. At the last convulsion this same Voorhees did his best to increase the "agony" by letting out his eloquence in favor of secession.

AUGUST KARLEMAN, a poor boy of eighteen, receiving $3 a week as a druggist's clerk in St. Louis, has fallen heir unexpectedly to the estate of an uncle at San Francisco which is valued at $300,000.

IT may be of interest to those who suffer or have suffered from the gold and silver mining fever, that in Colorado last year more money was earned by raising grain and stock than by mining, although the number employed in the two avocations was almost the same.

THE statistics of failures in business for 1877 as reported by R. G. Dun & Co's. Commercial Agency have not a favorable look, the number of mercantile failures during last year was 8872 with liabilities to the amount of $190,669,000. In 1874 the year after the panic they numbered 5830 with liabilities amounting to $155,239,000. The number of failures last year was larger and the liabilities greater than in any previous year.

IN consequence of the sensible course of the House—to leave the old legislative calendar slide, and commence business in the new—legislation has begun in earnest, and there is a reasonable hope that the public business will receive due consideration. The local, private and special bills on the old calendar have gone into the general wreck, and members are left free to devote their time and talents to matters of public importance.

THE Harrisburg Telegraph says it is noteworthy as a fact revealed in the bankruptcy of merchants who have lately failed, that the immediate cause of the disaster is due to over-trading. The disposition to run risks, to extend credit on the one side, and incur vast indebtedness on the other, garnished by extravagance in living, is primarily the cause of nine out of every ten failures in manufacturing or mercantile pursuits.

A CORRESPONDENT from Mississippi says that half the State is for sale. Planters who under the slave system owned two and three thousand acres of land, don't care now about keeping more than two hundred acres. The average price of private land is from $3 to $10 per acre, while government land can be bought for $1.15. Were there a better guaranty that immigrants could enjoy freedom of opinion and all the rights of citizenship, and escape social persecution, land would not go begging for purchasers in the South.

ANOTHER name is added to the long list of Confederate Brigadiers in Congress, by the election of Gen. Williams by the Legislature of Kentucky, to the United States Senate. Of course he is a Democrat "dyed in the wool," just as he is an unreconstructed rebel, who mourns for the lost cause. It may be all right to fill up the halls of Congress with this kind of material, but we cannot see either the safety or propriety of it. If at the close of the war those men who had earned the halter, had been forever debarred from holding a seat in Congress, the punishment would have been regarded as totally inadequate to the offense.—Ex.

IT has turned out that the suit against Governor Tilden for the recovery of unpaid income tax, was one of the greatest blunders that a lawyer can be guilty of, such a blunder as will forever render brieftless the blockhead who made it. The suit was brought for the recovery of income tax for the year 1861, a year for which no income tax was ever collected. There was no law authorizing tax for that year. The lawyer's name who thus blundered is Bliss. It's a nice name he has, but he is too vicious a man, or too dumb a creature to ever reach the happy land of bliss.

THE Lebanon Times says that on Christmas eve a party of convival spirits gathered at the Carson Brewery where they played cards and drank beer for a while. Berggans, an attache of the brewery, accused another employee of the institution, named Fred. Neifer, of cheating. Neifer was thrown to the floor by Berggans, and Berggans was bit in the hand. On Thursday last Berggans experienced considerable pain in the hand bitten, yet sought no medical assistance. On Friday morning his arm was greatly swollen, and on Friday night he called in the aid of a physician; but by that time his case had assumed such a malignant form that medical science could do him no good. He died

GENERAL H. V. BOYNTON has published in The Cincinnati Gazette a letter on the question of a "bargain" between the President and the Southern Democrats. In brief his argument is that the Southern Democrats went to Washington last winter more interested in securing local self-government in their own States than in securing the inauguration of Tilden. They were disgusted with the way that Tilden was forced upon them in St. Louis, and still more disgusted by his letter on the payment of Southern claims. They saw that the forcible inauguration of Tilden meant revolution, and they had already had their fill of that. They saw that if Mr. Hayes kept the promises of his letter of acceptance in his treatment of the South he could do more for them than Tilden could. Under these circumstances they were easily influenced by the Republican assurances that Mr. Hayes would keep his pledges, and would restore a Constitutional Government to the South. There were no promises to individuals, and nothing that approached the character of a bargain. It was the announcement of a policy on the one side, and its acceptance, as the best attainable good for the South, on the other.
