The Post.

Middleburg, Feb 14, 1878.

I. CROUSE, Editor & Proprietor.

Eight thousand and sixty-four languages are spoken in the world. 587 in Europe, 896 in Asia, 276 in Africa and 1,264 in America.

Senator Blaine of Maine on the 7, inst., made a speech on the silver question which is highly spoken of by press.

Strange that way down in Maine they favor remonetilization.

Mackay, the silver king, is now said to be worth $275,000,000, while the richest Rothchild has only $200,000,000, and the Duke of Westminister, the wealthiest man in England, has to be content with a paltry $80,000,000.

Horseflesh is now becoming so common an article of food in Paris that a thousand beasts are consumed every month. They are not killed until they become useless for work through age or lameness. The meat is but half the price of beef

A Judge for Northumberland.

Harrisburg, February 7.—The House bill to create an additional Law Judge for Northumberland Co. passed the Senate to-day, being the first act ready for the Signatur of the Governor during the session. The bill was taken up out of its order to accomodate Senator Dill, who stated that two thousand cases had accumulated on the court docket of Northumberland county.

Glowing accounts come from the Black Hills of mineral deposits there Foremost among these are gold, petrolium and salt. The ore from the Reno mine, near Gayville, is said to yield an average of 850 dollars per ton, while the prospective petroleum and salt yields are exciting the cupidity of large numbers. Who knows but the Black Hills may yet prove an antidote to the commercial ills through which this country has long been passing.

Pope Pius IX died in Rome Italy on the 7th, inst His last words, were, "Guard the Church I loved so well and sacredly."

The immediate cause of his death was the closing of the wound in the leg which made the humors mount into the lungs and brain.

He was born in the Duchy of Urbino May 13th, 1793. In June 1846 he was elected Pope. He filled the chair for nearly thirty two years, and lived to see great progressive movements and the power of the church of Rome greatly curtailed. Who will be his successor?

Information has been received at St. Paul that Sitting Bull with 3,000 warriors has recrossed the line and is now at Frenchman's creek, only a few miles from Fort Keogh, which is garrisoned by two companies of infantry, while Gen. Miles is at Fort Peck with 400 men, making a total force of 500 available men against this wily savage. We may expect soon to hear of another slaughter of our troops, and then the Indian sympathizers will say that they ought to be kindly treated. The only way to treat them is for the government to send sufficient of troops to thoroughly and forever end this Indian business by simply killing off all that will not respect the kindness of the government.

Philadelphia and Reading R R. The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company was held in Philadelphia last week. President Gowan submitted his annual statement of the year's business, showing the gross receipts of the road in 1877 to be $12,142 910, and gross expenses $7,751,693. Net profits, $4,391 217.

The gross expenses, including renewal funds, rents of lateral roads, taxes, &c., in the year 1876, were 9 6.[illegible] per cent of the gross re[illegible]n 1877, 63 8-10 per cent.

number of passengers carried [illegible]77 was 674 889, equal to 799,[illegible] through passengers, being a decrease from the previous year represented by $523,635, or 33 8-10 per cent.

The old officers and directors were reelected without opposition, F. B. Gowan as President

G. A. Nicolls was elected President of both the Reading and Columbia and the East Pennsylvania Branch roads.

In speaking of the President's position, the New York Times says that the great defect in it is that Mr. Hayes has endeavored, in a spasmodic way, to prevent the interference of Congressmen, while he has failed to substitute anything for it except his own judgment or whim or recommendations of favored friends. The result is that he has alienated Congress and laid himself open to the charge of using the public service to reward his personal friends and adherents, without in any degree of advancing the cause of real reform. Already the complaint is rife that the only difference between the new order of changes and the old is, that whereas, formerly the appointments were bestowed upon the friends of the President and of Congressmen, they are now bestowed on the friends of the President alone. Unfortunately, there are many facts which support this view, but even if there were not, so long as the President is unable to point to an impartial system of selection, from which his own personal wishes, [illegible]nished from public consid[illegible] excluded as absolutely [illegible]ressmen, he can not from such accusa-

Prof. Peck, of Cortland Co., N. Y. has been fined $25) for beating a pupil. He will peck a little more delicately next time.

The Legislature of this State has passed a bill making it a penal offense on the part of any officers of a corporate company or a trust to make false statements to the public. The penalty prescribed not to exceed ten thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not less than three months nor more than two years. This is salutary legislation, and the punishment is not greater than the crime deserves.

While we are complaining of hard times in this part of the world we should contrast our condition with that of the people in northern China, where persons of all ages are dying of actual starvation by thousands. The famine extends over a district which includes at least 5000 villages, and it is said that at least 500 die daily. Houses are pulled down in every village to sell the timber and thatch in order to get food. Those who can get husks and dry leaves, ordinarily used for fuel, are considered well off. Most of the poor young girls have been sold; old men, middle-aged men and young and children die daily of sheer starvation, and others freeze. The dead cannot get a burial; they are too many, and none can afford the expense; so they are cast daily into large pits. The people of Shansi are said to be living on the corpses of their fellow beings who die of starvation. And the strong are killing the week for the sake of obtaining their flesh for food.

The Efforts For Peace.

London, Jan. 28.—The Standard's Constantinople correspondent says the Porte has received a telegram to the effect that the preliminaries of peace have been signed, and that the Turkish delegates and the Grand Duke Nicholas would reach Adrianople on Saturday. The same correspondent states that England had the Porte's permission to enter the Dardannells.

The Post publishes the following as an official version of the preliminary conditions of peace:

First—Autonomy for Bulgaria (boundaries not defined) under a Goveror, to be appointed according to the stipulations of the Constantinople conference, the Turkish military forces to be withdrawn to certain localities to be determined upon.

Second—The independence of Roumania, with compensation for territory near the mouth of the Danube, which she will make over to Russia.

Third—Local autonomy for Bosnia and Herzegovinia, and the independence of Servia with territorial rectification. [This "rectification" of the Servian frontier may mean the transfer of Little Zwornik to Servia, but in deference to Austria and the other powers, the question is left quite open.

Fourth—Aggrandizement for Montenegro, on the basis of the status quo post bellum, subject to the approval of the powers.

Fifth—The cession of Batoum and payment of indemnity in money, territory, or some equivalent to be determined upon.

Finally, the Sultan to undertake to consider how to protect Russian interests in the passage of the Dardanells.

The Agence Russe contradicts the rumors that the Russians are marching on Gallipoli, and that the peace conditions contain a special arrangement relative to the Suez Canal.

British Cheek.

Special dispatch to the Telegraph.

Washington, D. C. Feb. 9.—Parties in British interest are here endeavoring to secure legislation by which, in the event of active hostilities, British vessels can have ficticious ownership under the American flag. It is claimed that Wood's new tariff bill practically repeals existing navigation laws, and no further legislation is necessary.

Official dispatches from London indicate that a rupture with Russia is unavoidable.

From the above dispatch it seems that a terrible struggle in Europe is unavoidable. For several days the dispatches have indicated that Russia is determined to make peace with Turkey on her own terms without interference by the great powers of Europe England is in a fury, the supplementary vote of 6,000,000 pounds has been granted by a majority of over two hundred. Every indication points clearly to the fact that England is anxious for war, and in the present state of affairs, it will be an easy matter to provoke a collision. But the climax of English effrontery is reached in the request of Johnny Bull asking the United States to protect her vessels in the event of war with Russia. America should not forget the action of the two powers during the late rebellion. Of the two, which stood between the American Union and her European enemies? Russia. And will the United States now protect a people who during the war harrassed her on every hand. Such a course would be monstrous.

Anderson's Conviction.

The Returning Board Trials.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—General Anderson's conviction at New Orleans is regarded by moderate men of both parties as tending to the inevitable reopening of the contest over the President's title. Those who effected a peaceful solution of the controversy by the creation of the Electoral Commission now fear complications equally dangerous to the peace of the country. Private letters from here urge Nichols to arrest the further progress of these suits or to pardon the per-

Steamship Disaster.

The steamship Metropolis stranded on Currituck beach. She is a total loss. Two hundred and forty-eight persons were on board. Fifty swam ashore. There was no assistance from the life saving stations. The wreck is about twenty miles north of Kitty Hawk station.

The Metropolis sailed on Jan. 29 from Philadelphia for Brazil. She was dispatched by contractors for the Maderia & MaMore railroad. She carried 200 laborers, 500 tons railroad iron, and several mails for Brazil.

The wreck was caused by the vessel being unseaworthy. She sprang a leak about midnight, and stranded at 7 A. m., Jan. 31. The only way of saving life was by running ashore, as the vessel was in a sinking condition. A dispatch from Norfolk says the loss of life is estimated at one hundred. Occasionally a survivor reports and decreases the number. The beach for several miles each side of the wreck is strewn with bodies. It seems the people on board the Metropolis, seeing no prospect of help from shore, gave up all hope after word was given to save yourself consternation prevailed, over which no mortal power had control.

COUNTY INSTITUTE.—VIII

Thursday Afternoon Session

The committee appointed for that purpose reported a series of resolutions, which were read and adopted.

The committee appointed last year for the purpose of revising the Constitution of the Institute, also reported, and the new Constitution was adopted.

Prof. Raub next gave an address to the directors that were present. The directors, he said, should be the friends of the teachers. Both have important duties to perform, and these they can discharge best when they co-operate with each other.

The directors should insist the schools, It is their duty to do so. They should not however fix a day and then all go in a body. Every one should go alone. When all go together, they embarrass the pupils, who are not accustomed to so many visitors at a time. It enables the teacher too to make special preparations for the occasion, whereas if they go singly, and at different times, they will be more likely to learn the true condition of the school. After having visited all the schools in their district, they should meet to compare notes and to consult upon the condition of the schools, and a good plan would be to lay a statement of their observations before the Superintendent for his consideration, and for his guidance during his visits. Several of the directors should also accompany the Superintendent in his visits, to learn his suggestions as to the changes and improvements to be made. The directors should visit for the purpose of observation and information, but not to find fault.

It is the duty of the teachers to become acquainted with the directors and with the patrons. Those who neglect to do so, cannot expect to meet with the same success as those who act more wisely and intelligent in this respect.

Directors frequently fail to do their duty in not giving the teachers the right kind of tools to work with. Teachers, no better than persons in other employments can produce good work with poor implements. How many thoughtless directors and parents blame the teacher for his failure of proper success, when they are themselves to blame for not giving him suitable instruments to work with! Many schools are yet to be found that have scarcely any apparatus. Some do not even have sufficient black-board surface, and what little they do have is so poor that it can scarcely be used. A dictionary, a gazetteer, a globe, charts, maps, and apparatus for illustration and object teaching, should be found in every school. Every school-house should have plenty of play ground, and the latter should be neatly fenced and planted with shade and ornamental trees.

Directors should seek to interest the parents in the schools, by inviting them to visit the latter frequently for the purpose of encouraging both teachers and pupils.

Employ always the best teachers you can get. Do not engage teachers because they offer themselves cheaper than others. It does not pay to employ poor, or cheap mechanics, nor is it advisable to employ the same kind of teachers.

When you get a good teacher keep him as long as you can

It is a wise policy to employ local supervision; especially is this the case when low salaries are paid, and consequently many inexperienced teachers employed

Prof. Noetling endorsed what Prof. Raub had said, and then spoke of the present condition of the schools of the county. Taking into consideration the small salaries paid he doubted whether any other county in the State can show better schools. The teaching he would be willing to have compared with the best anywhere else in the State. But to improve the schools in a county like this is no easy matter. So long as poor teaching is tolerated anywhere, and especially since most of the counties have no other, it is difficult to convince people whose intelligence is very limited, that there can be anything better. School-teaching is a business in a business that can and must be learned, and only those who study it can speak intelligently about it but those who know nothing about it, and who can scarcely be said to have any education, pretend to know most, and are the ones who retard the improvement of the schools. A few of this class can yet be found here and there in the county. They would like to see the schools again as 'good' as they were forty years ago, when they received their "education"—not as much as boys and girls of ten years of age now have.

It is not the pleasantest thing imaginable to be a school directors; for if a director does his duty, he is censured and misrepresented; and if he neglects it, he fares no better. Hence a director is treated equally bad whether he neglects his duty or whether he does it. Those who neglect to do what is proper put the blame too frequently upon somebody else. If, for example, they fix the salary too low to employ qualified teachers, they beg the County Superintendent to grant certificates to persons unfit to teach, and if he fails to do so, they blame him for not having teachers for their schools. Or, if they are obliged to employ teachers of sufficient education but of very little experience, and they latter fail to give satisfaction, they again saddle their own sins upon the Superintendent saying that he should not have given them certificates. The Superintendent is thus made the "scapegoat" for the short comings and sins of the directors.

The teachers too not unfrequently make him carry their unsuccessful efforts at instruction. But as all connected with the schools whether teachers, directors, or superintendent, have their share of burdens to bear, it is perhaps best to sympathize with one another. Every one, however, should carry his own sins, and not put them upon some one else. Honesty is the best policy, in all things. Reporter.
