Farm, Home, &c.

Beef and mutton are found to be best between November and May, and the reason of it is that the animals are usually fed some grain during that time.

The Herald of Health.—cautions parents not to allow their children to be waked up in the morning. Let nature do it; she will not do it prematurely. Take care that they go bed at an early hour—let it be earlier, until it is found that they wake up themselves in fair time to dress for breakfast.

The Collars of coats become soiled very quickly from contact with hair, but chloroform will clean them very well without any bad odor. Potato starch water, made by grating potatoes into a little water and letting it settle, then pouring it off and rubbing it on with a sponge, will also take off the grease and spots.

To keep tins looking bright is a simple matter if boiling water is used. The teakettle and various articles of kitchen furniture will need frequent polishing. For tin, copper, steel and zinc, use kerosene and finely pulverized bristol brick. Wash in hot soap suds and polish with whiting.

Interior Fences.—The interior fences of farms occupy more space, and cost more money than the outer fences, while they are almost entirely unnecessary. In the majority of cases pasturing the cultivated lands cost many times more than the little gain derived from it. The pasturing of mowing lands and newlyseeded stubbles, as a rule, is very injurious, and when, under exceptional circumstances, this is desirable, a temporary fence of portable hurdles might be profitably used. It may be beneficial to have a permanent pasture lot upon every farm and where there is a roughish piece of land, it may be so used. But it will be found profitable to fence a small lot in a convenient place for the stock, and feed them there with green fodder, grown and cut especially for them, than to make a practice of indiscriminate pasturing with the necessary maintenance of interior fencing at high cost.

Manure.—Make arrangements to save every particle of manure from hog-pens, liquid and solid. It is too valuable to lose. Every hundred pounds of such manure—liquid and solid mixed—is estimated to equal in value about one hundred and sixty pounds of common barnyard manure. It is good on all crops, and especially suited to fruit trees. Nothing is better to preserve its virtue than swamp muck on dry earth. Use it freely, covering the floor of the pen at night, and cleaning out in the morning, after which the floor should be sprinkled again. It is not only good for the manure, but for the swine. The hog-pen is generally the most offensive spot on the farm during the fattening season. A little dry earth judiciously used every day would dispose of all unpleasant odors.

Rules for the Care of Sheep.—Keep sheep dry under foot with clean litter. This is more necessary than roofing them. Never let them stand or lie in the mud or snow. If a ewe loses her lamb, milk her daily for a few days, and mix a little alum with her salt. Never frighten sheep, if possible to avoid it. Separate all weak, sick or thin sheep in the fall from those that are strong, and give them special care. If any sheep is hurt, catch it at once and wash the wound with a healing lotion. If a leg is broken, bind it with splinters tightly, loosening as the limb swells. If a sheep is lame, examine its foot, clean out between the hoofs; if unsound, apply tobacco, with blue vitroil boiled in a little water. Shear at once any sheep commencing to shed its wool, unless the weather is too severe. Keep none but the best, and see that they are properly attended to.

Dried Herbs.—Dried herbs are necessary with good housekeepers. Some are good for cooking, some are medicinal in their properties, &c. The practice of sending for the doctor every time one feels a little bab catches a bad cold, or overworks, is very bad, hot infusion of the proper kind and a good sweat after it would save many a spell of sickness if taken instead of the drugs of the doctor, or worse still, some patent nostrum. Herbs should be dried by spreading them thinly on trays and exposing them to the heat of the sun, or better still, in a dry, warm oven, observing in the latter case to turn them often. The quicker they are dried the better, as they retain their original properties better. The tops and leaves are the parts to be used, and all decayed parts to be thrown away and free them from the dirt before they are dried. Paper sacks are very good to keep them in after drying. Aromatic herbs should be dried very quickly to preserve their color.—Germantown Telegraph.
