Farm, Home &c..

Cucumbers.—Dust with ashes or lime to keep off striped beetles.

Onions.—Harvest as soon the tops die down. Store in a cool airy place.

Squashes.—Keep clear of bugs by hand-picking. Let the vines strike root at the joints.

Tomatoes.—Keep from the ground by frames or trellises. Brush or hay is better than nothing.

Celery.—Satin rows three feet apart and six inches in the row on the level, in well manured soil. The trench system has nearly gone out of practice.

The Southern Planter says the leaves of mullen scattered among the corn in the crib, will effectually preserve it from the ravages of rats, and that corn soaked in a solution of sulphate of iron (copperas) previous to the planting will not be troubled with moles.

Poultry.—The flock should now be weeded out; all unprofitable fowls, poor layers, and poor mothers, should be used or marketed. Two weeks feeding in a coop will be sufficient to make them fat. A few of the best old hens may be kept over for early setting, but many in a flock are unprofitable.

Cows.—A cool, dark, clean stable for the cows, is for many reasons preferable, to a hot pasture in the middle of the day. Cows that have been kept up on moderate feed, will shrink in their milk on being turned into a luxurious pasture on a hot day. Dry earth or sand makes a better beding than straw during the hot season.

Pigs.—Young pigs may be made ready for market, in 100 days if desired, by good feeding. The sow should be well fed with rich slop, to force a good flow of milk, and a feeding place for the pigs should be provided, in which they can get spare milk with a little fine ground barly meal or wheat middings.

The utmost cleanliness should be preserved about the premises in the hot weather. All wastes and garbage should be disposed of on a compost heap; a load of good soil and sods from fence rows will be useful, as the bases for it. Weeds should be gathered and added to the heap. Liberal additions of plaster will prevent disagreeable oders.

I had a mare some years ago that had a large wart on her side where the harness rubbed and kept it sore. In summer the flies made it worse. To prevent this I put on a good daub of tar, and in a few weeks the wart was killed and disappeared. I have frequently tried it since on cattle and horses, and seldom had an occasion to use a second application. The remedy is simple and effective.—Prairie Farmer.

Pure drinking water is of the first importance. More dangerous poisons are taken into the system with the water used, than in any other way. That from brooks is dangerous, as wash from manured fields, and soakage from the soil flows into them. Water from clear wells and springs only, should be given to cattle, and if such precaution is needed for them it is equally so for the owners. Much avoidable disease is due to impure water.

Eye Lotions.—First—One of the best liquids is a very diluted solution of sulphate of copper, or acetate of lead. Second—Sulphate of zinc, six or eight grains; glycerine, two tablespoonsful, water, four tablespoonsful. Drop two or three drops into the eye night and morning, and bath the lids frequently. For styes, pull out the eye lash in its center and touch the stye very carefully with lunar caustic moistened. At bed time apply bread and milk.

How Mad Dogs are Produced.—Let any one stand in a crowded thoroughfare at noontide at this season, says the New York Times, and he will have a good chance of seeing mad dogs manufactured. An animal gets astray, and runs about amid the carriage wheels, cursed and whooped at. Soon his tongue protrudes. He turns this way and that, and only to find at each turn some terrifying obstacle. Such a case occurred lately where Canal street intersects Broadway. The dog was evidently longing for water. A kindly peanut vender crossed the street to a drinking fountain—for horses and men, but without accommodation for dogs—and fetched some, but the dog when approached, was too frightened to avail himself of what he so much needed. The keeper of a large restaurant near by said that there were not half enough places where a dog could get water, and that he would order a bowl to be put out for them every day in future in front of his place. If his example were followed it would save much suffering, and not improbably many cases of hydrophobia, which of late years has been so dreadfully frequent.

The Buckeye is the very lastest improvement in Pumps. It is constructed with air-chambers which make it very easy to operate. Hose can be attached to the Buckeye Pump, and water can be thrown upon any building in case of fire. You can water your Garden and Yard, Wash Windows, Wash Buggies, and have a
