Poetry.

For All Who Die.
It has been said, "For all who die
There is a tear;
Some pling, blessing heart to sigh
O'er every bier."

Select Tale.

The Widow Reed.

Dennis McLean and Dick Renshaw were two of the most expert and successful counterfeits ever known in the Northwest. Both were bold, shrewd men, who had defied the laws and evaded justice by one artifice or another for years and were noted for their courage and coolness in the face of danger.

town, and the confounded telegraph will lead us off which ever way we turn.
"No, there's no hope of escape in that direction."
"What are we to do then?"
"Do? Why stay and take our chances where we are."

and not leave her at the mercy of a brace of villains, who might be secreted within sound of their voices for all that they knew to the contrary.
This the officers did not believe, feeling convinced that the game had taken wing; nevertheless, they made a hasty search of the house and out-buildings, running against and nearly capturing the irritable Amanda, who was carrying a tab of salts, and who resented the indignity by an offending jerk which came near deluging the luckless Denning with its scorching contents.

My Wife's Bridal Tour.
BY MORE SKINNER.
When I married my second wife, she was dreadfully set about going off for a bridal tour. I told her she'd better wait six months or a year, and I'd try to go with her, but she said she'd rather go alone—when a woman was traveling, a man was an out-and-out hump.

A Curious Robbery.
A daring robbery has been perpetrated at Mazas prison. A thief in the very den of the law, and certainly quite as audacious a one as the crime of the woman who, about a year ago, was caught stealing gas globes from the Seventeenth Precinct Station-house store-room in New York.

Excellent Maxims.
Hard words are like hailstones in summer beating down and destroying what they would nourish were they melted into drops.
