Colonel Forney and hancock.

A Correspondent who Recalls the Colonel's Praise of Garfield Ten Years Ago.

From the Phila, Press. Colonel Forney in his Democratic peech on Thursday night last said, in speaking of the Republican Convention, "They rushed in hot baste to confer the Presidential purple upon an Ohio politician, who is so bar-nacled and blasted, and tabooed with offences against the law, that since he has been placed upon their ticket for the Presidency it is daily becoming a question whether they shall not pull him off as hastily as they put him on," Had the above been said by our friend Colonel McClure but little would have been thought of it. but coming from the lips of Colonel Forney it seems out of place. From Colonel Forney's writings regarding the merits of General Garfield, up to within a few days after his nomination, I had an idea that Garfield was his ideal of a statesman, Christian and a soldier; but when be states that it is daily becoming a question sertion that will do him no good and void.
