Rowell's Newspaper Directory.

It has created a great revolution in the manner in which advertising is awarded to newspapers by business men, who can rely upon its statements with much greater accuracy than those of mercantile agencies in regard to the financial standing of dealers, inasmuch as the business of newspapers is of the most public and transparent character, and may be readily arrived at, even by those possessing a much less thorough and complete system than that employed by Messrs. Rowell & Co. It would require a very rigid system of crossexamination to get closer figures or estimates on the comparative values of the different newspapers in this vicinity, as advertising mediums, than is disclosed by their circulation given in the Directory.—Delhi (N. Y.) Republican, 1880.

Last Sunday evening this community was startled by the report that another death by suicide had occurred near town. Investigation proved that the rumor was correct, Daniel Reish being the second victim of self destruction, in Union county, within comparatively recent date. Mr. Reish was a son of Mrs. Catharine Reish, of West Buffalo Twp., was married and resided with his family at Hightown this county. He was visiting relatives at Forest Hill, Mr. Ben. Reish's, at the time of his death, and, for some days previously, have evidenced signs of mental trouble. Early on Sunday morning he left the house, and, not returning, search was made for him, when he was found, some distance away, lying on the ground with his throat cut. Life was entirely extinct, the jugular vein having been severed; A pocket knife, with blade opened and blood stained lay near him, showing the means used to commit the deed. Deceased leaves a wife and seven children to mourn his untimely death. A coroner's inquest was held which resulted in the verdict of self-destruction in a moment of mental depression caused by sickness.—Mifflinburg Telegraph.

We have no space for further comment on the meeting, but have simply to say that no meeting anywhere in the State has been more ably and fairly addressed, nor a deeper interest manifested by any audience than the people of Snyder County gave the speakers on this occasion.

The celebration held by the Chestnut Ridge Sunday-school in Mr. Jacob Hummel's woods was a success. There was a good turnout. Good music was furnished by the Shamokin Dam Cornent Band. ADVERTISING.—Fugitive advertising is little good. It is the steady steam that works the mill. Some people never think of advertising until some canvasser comes to them with a wonderful advertising blotsheet or a photographic medley to lay on hotel tables. To him they pay prices proportionate to the high value he sets on his trick for catching the public eye. Very often the public eye. Very often the public eye is caught and people become very much interested in the trick without taking much note of those who make use of it. These methods are all good if they are supplemental to some regular channel of advertising, by which all are made familiar, not with one's name, but with his business. The greatest advertisers despise no method, but people who use fugitive methods only, or chiefly, waste their money.—Ex.

THE VALUE OF GOOD ROADS.—If the people in the rural districts would reflect for a moment how much value good roads add to property, they would not object to the supervisors expending three times as much as they do in the repairing of roads. The accessibility of a farm is taken largely into consideration by one who desires to purchase it after the character of the soil, its proximity to churches, schools, mills, and the city market are taken into consideration. There is no outlay that brings the returns so soon or so surely as the outlay on the roads. If it was only the pleasure of easy riding, that item would be an important item. But when the wear and tear of horse-flesh and articles is taken into consideration, the utility of good roads presents itself forcibly For example—Here is a tolerably good farm on which the road tax would be $20 per annum. Suppose each farmer would agree to expend double that amount of labor on the roads for a year or two. At anything like hauling, two horses would do as much as three on an ordinary road, and it does not take long for the ordinary horse to earn $20, and the saving in the wear and tear of wagons will amply repay the additional taX in one season. A good wagon, costing from $100 to $120, will wear twice as long on a good road as on a poor one. If the people in the township would consider over these matters, there is no doubt they would eXpend liberal sums in the repairing of their roads. After the roads are once made the outlay is inconsiderable.—EX.

SAD AND FATAL ACCIDENT.—Yesterday afternoon David Kline rode one of Alfred Kline's ponies out Valley street and on the way was stopped at Gross' smithshop, where he got off for the purpose of examining some work. On coming out the pony started and commenced running. Dr. H. M. Dunmire, one of our most esteemed citizens, happened to come from his home with a basket on his arm, and going out on the street waved his basket and attempted to stop the animal, but it ran fairly against him, knocking him over and from the injury on his breast probably trampled or jumped on his body. He also received severe contusions on his head. He was carried into Mrs. Dipple's close by, and Drs. Hurlbut and Shaeffer called, who, after examining him, pronounced his case very critical. In the evening it was thought best to move him to his home not far distant, which was safely accomplished. He lingered in an unconscious state until between 4 and 5 o'clock this morning, when he died. Probably nothing of an accidental character has ever occurred here that seems sad as this. The fact of there being no vehicle attached, no lives to be saved—simply a horse with halter running toward its home, and an attempt on the Dr.'s part to arrest its course—being the meanse of crushing out a valuable life, seems hard indeed.

It was a sad accident which cast a gloom over town as it became known and elicited universal sympathy for his wife and children. The doctor is well known over the county as a skillful dentist, and in all the relations of life sustained an enviable character.—
