

He felt tired.

Stephen Highman, a stranger from Ohio, who came here to secure work at writing speeches for members of the Comm. Council, found himself the other day with just funds enough to buy two drinks. While after taking the drinks he felt tired, and about that time along came a black woman drawing a baby cart full of clean lines. Stephen thought it better to ride than to go on foot, and he made a lunge for the cart. The result was the awfullest snafu ever seen by mortal eyes, and the woman ran up the street, yelling "Murder" at the top of her voice. Stephen fell asleep amidst the wreck, and he was darning of the evergreen shore when hauled at the station house and hauled into a cell.

"Dat's de man—dat's de wery 'fentional man!" exclaimed the black woman as the prisoner was led forth. "Judge, I'm a fast walker on a dirt road!" whispered Stephen as he leaned forward.

"Can you pay for the damages to the cart?"

"Dat's de man—dat's de wery 'fentional man!" exclaimed the black woman as the prisoner was led forth. "Judge, I'm a fast walker on a dirt road!" whispered Stephen as he leaned forward.

"You needn't mind about the to wit," chipped in the court. "I shall send you up for thirty days and give you a chance to get a rest."

"If you send me up what shall I do about de cart?" asked the woman.

"If I let him go, what will you do?" he hasn't got a cent of money."

"Judge, let me git at him for a minute!" she said, as she came nearer and got ready to spit on her hands.

"No; couldn't do that. This court feels to sympathize with you in your case, but it can't right there. You will continue your journey through life, and this tired man will take a ride to the Work House. Please fall back now and give the rest a fair show."

Turning Points of Life.

The switch tender was weary, and as he sat at the post his eyes were heavy, and he fell asleep. The train came thundering along, and as it neared the place the man heard the whistle and arose to adjust the switch. He was just too late—his sprang aside. The cars moved on, were thrown from the track, and a scene of death and disaster the consequence.

It was only a little switch—a bar of iron a few feet in length, which opened at one end only an inch, to allow the passage of the wheels to pass through the narrow way. Only a few seconds more would have placed the little bar at the right angle, and all would have been well. But the few seconds were lost; the little bar was out of place, and the train, with its valuable freight of life and property, was nearly all burned in a mass of death and ruin.

A young man was once under state of deep inquiry about his eternal interests. Two or three of his companions learned that he was going to prayer meeting, and they determined to change his purpose. They persuaded him, only this one to go the accustomed place of resort. He finally yielded. They piled their arts of amusement, gaiety, and pleasure, and he went at last to the scene of a female companion.

It was his fatal moment. In a few weeks from that time he had committed murder, and followed it with a deed with instantaneous self-destruction.

A young man went to visit his friends on New Year's day, according to the custom of New York. He had abandoned the intoxicating cup. He had suffered from the eye, and was a sworn total abstainer. He unforunately refused to taste or had it until he called upon a young lady who, finding her invitations all declined, began to banter him with want of method, and plied her tongue so far that at last he yielded. It was the setting of the switch. It was taken from its state of intemperance, and a few months afterward died, suffering terrible torments up to the tempter who had been the cause of his ruin.

Ayer's Hair Vigor, FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brassy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The Vigor cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair, The Vigor is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.
