

HUMOROUS.

Sensible to the Last.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Malchay lived on a farm. They were shrewd and thrifty, and had the reputation of being "close." Finally, Mrs. Malchay sickened and was about to die.

Find a girl herself nursing him, and she expressed a desire to put things in order before that great occasion, and old Tom prepared to listen.

"Tom," said Mrs. Malchay, "there's Mrs. Smith, up at the crossing she owes me a dollar and eighty cents for butter; see you get it."

"Sensible to the last, my dear; sensible to the last," said Tom. "I'll get it."

"There's Mrs. Jones, up at the creek, she owes me a dollar and a half for chickens."

"Is it look at that for mind; she forgets nothing."

"And Mrs. Brown, in the village, she owes me two dollars and thirty cents for milk."

"Dye hear that? Sensible to the last! sensible to the last! Go on my dear."

"And—and—Yes. "And Mrs. Roberts, at the toll-gate, I owe her—"

"Ah! poor dear! poor dear!" broke in old Tom, hastily: "how her mind does wander! I saw we've a lower her too much entirely, so we have!"

Wanted to see Her.

The other night when Dickles went home, he found his wife particularly retrospective. She talked of the past with a tear and looked to the future with a sigh.

"Oh, by the way," said Dickles, as he sat on the side of the bed pulling off his boots, "I saw a gentleman down town today who would give a $1,000 to see you."

"Who was he? Dead or alive in Little Rock?"

"I don't know his name."

"I'll warrant that it was Oliver Greig."

"No."

"Then he must be George W. Thornton."

"Guess again. I might know his name if I were to hear it."

"Oh, I do wish I knew," said the lady, exhibiting excitement. "Why it's Oliver Greig!"

"Guess again. I remember his name now."

"Harvey Gleaming?"

"No; his name is George W. Thornton. I don't know a man by that name. Why would you give $1,000 to see me? I'm not a bit blind."

The minister asked the school children, "With what mark did you on did Sampson at one time a number of Philistines?" For while there was no answer, and the minister was silent the children a little, commenced tapping their jaws with the tip of their fingers, at the same time saying: "What's that—what's that—quick as thought a little fellow's name replied: "The jaw bone of an ass, sir."

"Here, lend me a hand some day," cried good little Billy, stretching to climb over the back fence to run away to the circus. And his father, who happened to be near and heard him, came up and lent him a hand, about the size of a sugar-cane head, sixteen or seventeen times. And the next time he runs away to the circus Billy will try to get along alone.—Burlington Heralder.

"Do you love her still?" asked the Judge of a man who wanted a divorce. Certainly I do," he said; "I love her better still than any other way, but the trouble is she never will be still." The Judge, who is a worried man himself, takes the case under advisement.

"Know all men by these presents," read an old bachelor lawyer. "Why don't they put in women, too?" asked his lady client. "Because," said the o. b., "if one woman knows it, all women know it."
